The walking portion of the course will be conducted at the Grantsville town park. The course will be instructed by Lesa Whittemore, a graduate student at Frostburg State University who is focusing on senior fitness and human performance.

Computer Skills for Seniors, Level I, will meet Tuesday mornings, Sept. 9-23, from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. The three-session beginners' course will offer interactive instruction on the essentials of working with a computer. ## Bartlett, Titanium Co. Rep. Look At Possible GC Sites

Congressman Roscoe Bartlett recently accompanied Garrett County Economic Development officials and a representative of International Titanium Powder LLC on a tour of potential sites in Garrett County for the company's planned new titanium production manufacturing facility.

"As a result of this tour, which was initiated by Congressman Bartlett, International Titanium Powder is actively pursuing Garrett County as a potential site for our new titanium manufacturing facility because of its attractive and competitive combination of available land, intelligent conscientious workforce, and key infrastructure," said the company's representative, Taras Lyssenko.

"International Titanium Powder's innovative, high-purity, low-cost titanium manufacturing process will make titanium a common material," said Lyssenko. "We anticipate our new production facility will create up to 100 high paying technical manufacturing jobs. We plan on finalizing our site decision and proceeding to construction within a year."

"I am pleased, but not surprised that Garrett County made such a favorable impression," said Bartlett. "The prospect that International Titanium Powder might locate in Garrett County is exciting for the country as a whole because titanium is stronger and lighter than steel and doesn't corrode. A domestic source of higher quality, low-cost titanium will enhance national security with significant improvements in a wide array of equipment with military and commercial applications, such as future combat systems."

LOCAL BIKER ON TRAIL TO WORLD CHAMPIONSHIPS – 19-year-old Holly Kuhn of the Oakland area has earned a spot on the U.S. Mountain Biking Team, making her one of the youngest riders ever to make the squad. She is currently undertaking intensive training workouts in Los Angeles in order to don the Team USA jersey along with her teammates to compete in the upcoming World Championship Downhill event in Lugana, Switzerland, set to run from Wednesday to Sunday, Sept. 3-7. A downhill mountain biking race competitor since the age of 13, Kuhn is presently ranked tenth on the professional women's circuit, which includes riders from all countries, and fifth in the U.S. professional women's rankings. Her mountain biking skills and achievements were the subject of a 20-minute television documentary which aired on television's Outdoor Life and Oxygen networks. The versatile athlete is also a top snowboarding competitor who made the U.S. Junior National Team, but was sidelined by injuries when the team traveled to New Zealand for a world meet. Riding under the sponsorship of Zoo York, Voo Doo Extreme, and Martin's Auto Parts of Deer Park, Kuhn says, "My goal is to do the best I can and have fun."

Grantsville Man Charged With Sex Offenses

A combined investigation by investigators from the Garrett County Sheriff's Office and the Department of Social Services resulted in the arrest of a Grantsville man for various sex offenses.

Gary Lynn Yoder, 42, New Germany Road, was charged with second-degree rape, second-degree sex offense, child abuse, sodomy, fourth-degree sex offense, and second-degree assault. The charges stem from an investigation in which Yoder confessed to having sexual relations with an 11-year-old female, according to police.

The District Court commissioner placed a $50,000 unsecured bond on Yoder. The bond allowed Yoder to be released from jail without posting any money, but obligated him to a $50,000 penalty if he failed to appear in court.

Editor's note: The man charged is neither Gary Yoder, the world-renowned bird sculptor, nor Gary Yoder of the Department of Natural Resources, Deep Creek Lake.

Grantsville Man Charged With DUI After Jeep Crash

A single-vehicle accident Sunday morning just outside Friendsville injured the driver of the vehicle, who was subsequently charged with driving while under the influence (DUI) by the Maryland State Police.

At approximately 3:39 a.m., Adam Lynn Brenneman, 20, Grantsville, was traveling east on Bear Creek Road when he attempted to turn onto Accident Friendsville Road. Troopers said that Brenneman apparently started making the turn before actually reaching the intersection itself, and turned his 2000 Jeep Wrangler into the guardrail. The vehicle overturned and came to rest on its right side.

Brenneman was transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad. The Friendsville Volunteer Fire Department assisted at the crash

Commissioners Hear Staff Reports; Sanitary District Hearing Date Set

The Garrett County commissioners held their monthly staff meeting this week, hearing reports from 16 county departments and agencies. Among the topics discussed this month were the Deep Creek Lake Sanitary District, Rt. 40 School, Domestic Violence Awareness Month, the Oral Rabies Vaccine Program, cutbacks at Social Services, the new Learning Resource Center at Garrett College, and the Summer Youth Employment Program.

Public Utilities

Mark Tonkovich, director of Garrett County Department of Public Utilities, reported that the date for a second public hearing on expanding the Deep Creek Lake Sanitary District had been set. The hearing will be held Tuesday, Sept. 9, at 10 a.m. in the commissioners' meeting room at the courthouse.

The director said a public hearing will also be held sometime in late September or early October on expanding Deep Park water service to the Pergin Farm area. He said some residents in that area had adequate water, while others did not. Some of those residents requested the service.

Board of Education

The newly renovated Rt. 40 School is a "beautiful facility," reported Dr. Wendell Teets, superintendent of Garrett County schools. The school was built in 1958, and its first principal, Mr. Harris, was at the school this week to greet students and see the renovations. An open house and dedication will be held sometime in the new future for the school, Teets noted.

He also reported that Northern High School's FFA had recently completed state judging competitions. The Livestock Judging Team placed first in the state, and the Agronomy Team placed second. The teams will now compete in the national FFA judging competition.

Commissioner Fred Holliday commended the teams, and said the commissioners would like to officially recognize their achievements at a public meeting. The Board of Education will also recognize the teams during one of its sessions, noted Teets.

Dove Center

October is Domestic Violence Awareness Month, said Heather Hanline, Dove Center director. The center is planning several awareness campaigns for the month, including the Clothesline Project. The event will be held at the Oakland Train Station, where the T-shirts of domestic violence survivors will be displayed. The shirts represent the survivors' healing process, said Hanline.

VISITING BOATER INJURED WHEN VESSEL RUNS AGROUND – A Colorado man was injured in a Deep Creek Lake boating accident when he ran his boat aground Sunday morning near the Garrett Highway bridge. Edward Joseph Hanrahan, 42, Aurora, was boating with a passenger in the early morning darkness when their vessel hit the shoreline in the area of Marsh Hill Road. Hanrahan was initially taken to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad, then moved to Ruby Memorial Hospital in Morgantown where he was listed in critical condition earlier this week. (Attempts at securing updated patient information were unsuccessful.) Natural Resources Police said that the passenger refused medical treatment. Charges are pending against Hanrahan, police reported. Photo by Jay Kamineck.

Commissioners Asked To Support Third Emergency Squad In County

The Garrett County commissioners were asked this week to support a third emergency medical service in the county. Jonathan and Jamie Hamilton of Keyser's Ridge have begun preliminary work to establish a nonprofit corporation, Deep Creek EMS Inc., which would serve the McHenry area. Members of Garrett County Emergency Management and other emergency medical personnel attended Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton's meeting with the commissioners.

The couple filed their company's 503-3C charter on Tuesday and expect it to be finalized within the next two weeks. Jonathan noted that Northern and Southern rescue squads have the same type of charter.

Jamie is a Garrett County native and served as a volunteer EMT with Northern Rescue from 1995 to 1999. She is a licensed practical nurse and is currently pursing a bachelor of science degree in nursing.

Jonathan is also a Garrett County native and holds an associate of science degree in paramedic science. He is a nationally registered paramedic and is currently licensed in Maryland and West Virginia. A veteran of the U.S. Coast Guard, he is an active volunteer member of Northern Rescue and has been active in emergency services for 11 years.

The Hamiltons say the additional EMS unit is sorely needed because of delayed and failed responses from Northern Rescue. They want to, as stated in their bylaws, "protect the citizens and visitors of central Garrett County by providing prompt crisis response, professional emergency medical intervention, and emergency transportation."

With stations in Grantsville, Accident, and Friendsville, Northern Rescue Squad currently responds to calls north of the Rt. 219 bridge at Deep Creek Lake. Southern Rescue's one station serves the area south of the bridge. Both of the squads rely solely on volunteer emergency medical responders.

Deep Creek EMS, as proposed by the Hamiltons, could operate between Hoyes/Sang Run Road and Mayhew Inn or Sand Flat roads.

To illustrate the need for another service in the county, the Hamiltons cited statistics from Northern Rescue's station in Accident. Between August 2003 and July 2003, the station received 404 calls. Of those calls, 80 were delayed responses, while 113 were failed responses, according to the Hamiltons.

They said "delayed" meant the ambulance responded more than 10 minutes after being alerted. A "failed" response meant the ambulance did not respond at all, and an ambulance from another station had to be alerted to take the call. A total of 193 calls, out of the 404, were either delayed or failed responses, according to the Hamiltons.

Ed Shoemake, Jamie's father, said McHenry residents could get pizzas delivered to their doorstep faster than they could get an ambulance.

"We're not here to put anybody out of business," Jonathan said. The couple asked that the county recognize their plan as an "legitimate solution" to the problem and financially support Deep Creek EMS, as it does Northern and Southern rescue squads.

Northern and Southern rescue squads rely on donations, grants, and equally shared revenue from a special county tax levy. For FY

GC Task Force Seeing Increase In "Hard" Drugs

Local law enforcement officers recently briefed the county commissioners on the increasing drug problem in the county. "There's a lot of naivety," said Sgt. Mark Rodeheaver, supervisor of the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force. "Some people think it's not around in little Garrett County."

The task force is a collaborative effort between the Maryland State Police, Garrett County Sheriff's Office, and Garrett County State's Attorney's Office. The sergeant has been with the Maryland State Police for 15 years and the task force for 6 years, long enough, he noted, to see certain trends and changes in illegal drug activity in the county.

"We're seeing an increase in hard drugs," Rodeheaver said. "These things don't pop up over night." To illustrate the growing trend, he compared statistics from 1997 to those from 2002. In 1997, 62 drug-related arrests were made in the county, and the task force seized 2.6 pounds of marijuana, 9.6 grams of cocaine, 8.3 grams of mushrooms, 9.6 grams of methamphetamine, and 7 weapons.

In 2002, the force arrested 72 persons and seized 6.2 pounds of marijuana, 564.9 grams of cocaine, 73.7 grams of crack, 25 grams of mushrooms, 67.1 grams of ketamine, 63.4 grams of methamphetamine, 25 ecstasy pills, and 17 weapons. Officers have already handled 123 drug cases and made 85 arrests so far this year.

"Garrett County Time" Is Ticking Again As Smith & Roberts Reunite

Reunion Concert Slated For Tomorrow At Yough Music Fest

"Every sunrise in the valley, puts me deeper in the rhythm of this life...It's not to hurry, I forget to worry, living on Garrett County time..."
—from "Garrett County Time," by Rob Smith

By David Foster

During my college years, before ever setting foot in Garrett County, I fell in with a set of buddies from Bloomington and Grantsville. We soon perfected a Thursday night ritual of spirited late-night basketball play which was always capped back in the dorm with a few cigars and a few cold ones. Those nights invariably wrapped up well after midnight with one final ritual, a sing-a-long to tunes off an album titled Buffalo Run, by a Garrett County duo called Smith and Roberts. Although entranced from the first listen by those songs of mountains, woods, rivers, and relationships, little did I know then one day I would be lucky enough to live on "Garrett County Time."

Rob Smith and Keith Roberts, a top folk-rock duo on the regional music scene in the late 1970s and early '80s, make their public return to the concert stage tomorrow evening, Friday, Aug. 29, at the Little Yough Summer Music Festival in Oakland. The summer's final installment of the free outdoor music series will kick off at 7 p.m. (no headlining act) at the Mtn. Fresh Pavilion, located at the Oakland town parking lot.

Reunited after a two-decade hiatus dedicated to raising their respective families, Smith and Roberts have expanded their origi-

Financial And Volunteer Support Being Sought For Cindy's Fund

When Cindy Kutchman realized that she was ultimately losing her long, courageous battle against cancer, it was her desire that a special fund be established to promote early cancer screening for all Garrett County residents.

CINDY KUTCHMAN

Thus, Cindy's Fund was created this year by a group of concerned local cancer survivors and friends from the Garrett County Cancer Coalition in memory of Cindy, who headed the Garrett County Health Department's early cancer detection unit prior to her death this past spring. All donations to the fund are used for detecting breast, prostate, colon, and skin cancer at a stage when the cancers can be detected and treated successfully. No administrative costs are incurred, as all screenings are carried out under the auspices of the health department.

Several fund-raising efforts are either planned or currently under way to support Cindy's Fund.

A project that is currently in progress is a quilt raffle, with eight quilts plus a consolation quilt being awarded. The winning tickets for each quilt will be drawn beginning November 4 and continuing each day thereafter. A single ticket will provide nine opportunities to win a quilt.

The cost of the tickets is $5 each, or five for $20. They are available at the Visitors Center in McHenry, the Book Mark'et in Oakland, Christmas Chalet at Deep Creek Lake, and on Saturdays at Arrowhead Market, Deep Creek Lake. The quilts are on display at the Littman building of First United Bank & Trust in Oakland.

Tickets for the quilt raffle will also be available through various clubs and organizations throughout the county. During the Autumn Glory Festival (Oct 9-12), tickets will be sold at various locations.

A poker run to benefit Cindy's Fund will be held Saturday, Sept. 13, with registration from noon to 1 p.m. at JG's Pub. Drivers of motorcycles and automobiles are invited to participate.

Early registration for a fee of $15 is available at JG's Pub, and with Brenda Dixon at the sheriff's office, Charles Nolan at Garrett County District Court, and Dee at the Elks Club in Oakland.

LaDonna's Restaurant, Oakland, is creating a gingerbread house that will be raffled off over the Christmas holidays, all proceeds of which will go to Cindy's Fund.

The Cindy's Fund committee is seeking volunteers, organizations, and businesses that wish to help with the cause, either with contributions or by helping with fund-raising efforts. Any individual, group, or business interested in becoming involved is invited to contact Liz Morin at 301-387-8970, Brenda Dixon at the sheriff's office, or Charles Nolan at the district court.

According to a spokesperson for the fund, existing medical evidence proves that early screening for cancer provides the best means by which to attain cancer cures, where possible, and prolong survival and quality of life. The Garrett County Health Department has all forms of screening available and strongly recommends screening, as well as regular checkups, for all Garrett County residents.

"This is the best protection against cancer," he said.

ARGENTINA BOUND – The Garrett County Sportaerobic Team, recently named the champion youth team of the world, is taking yet another step into international competition, this time in Buenos Aires, Argentina. ## World Champion Sportaerobic Team Traveling To Argentina To Compete

The Garrett County Sportaerobic Team — the 2003 national and world champions in sportaerobics — have been invited to compete in the 2003 Extreme World Aerobic Open in Buenos Aires, Argentina, slated for Sept. 30 to Oct. 8.

The Extreme Aerobic Open will be attended by teams from six to eight South American countries as well as from Italy, France, and Canada, reported Brenda Brosnihan, coach of the local team.

"We are all very proud of this team. These kids and their families have been dedicated to sportaerobics for several years and this invitation to travel internationally is quite a thrill," said Coach Brosnihan.

"Traveling to a different country may give our group a better understanding of the challenges athletes visiting the United States experience with language and time barriers, as well as different foods and customs," Brosnihan said. "Our common interest is the love of our sport and the camaraderie it encourages. The educational value of taking this trip includes everything from obtaining passports and researching travel information to maybe even learning a little Spanish."

She noted that event coincides with one of the largest dance competitions held in Argentina.

"We look forward to seeing the dance competition and viewing how dance compares and differs between our two cultures," said Brosnihan.

While in Argentina, the team plans to visit the American Embassy as well as other recommended sites.

The team is planning an extensive fund-raising campaign to help defray travel costs for the athletes. A car wash will be hosted by the team on Sunday, Aug. 31, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Garrett 8 Cinemas parking lot.

On Labor Day, the team will give demonstrations throughout the afternoon at on the lawn of Uno's.

"If you would like to help support the world champions' trip to Argentina, you may send your donation to the Garrett County Sportaerobic Team, 1013 Madison Street, Mtn. Lake Park, MD 21550," Brosnihan said. "Pledges can also be given by visiting the team's web site at www.sportaerobics.org.

Leads Sought In Thefts From Parked Vehicles

Maryland State Police troopers assigned to the McHenry barrack are investigating several incidents of thefts from parked autos that have occurred in two separate areas of Garrett County recently. Persons with information on the thefts are asked to call the respective investigating troopers at 301-387-1101 or 301-895-1101.

The first theft occurred late Monday night, Aug. 11, in the Long Stretch area, when a vehicle parked in front of a Church Run Road residence was entered by perpetrator(s) who took a pair of stereo speakers. The speakers were valued at $500. Tfc. K. Stakem is investigating the incident.

The second probe concerns a rash of incidents that took place in the Deep Creek Lake area Saturday night. Various items including cash, compact discs, and cigarettes were taken from unlocked vehicles parked along Rock Lodge Road, JRS Drive, and Lake Shore Drive. Tfc. J.B. Schlossnagle, the investigating trooper, indicated that a reward may be available for information that leads to a conviction.

In both instances persons who call the barrack may remain anonymous. The MSP reminds citizens to lock their vehicles and remove valuables.

Oakland Man Jailed For Driving While Revoked

An Oakland man was jailed by Oakland police Friday, Aug. 22, for driving on a revoked license.

Christopher Alan Glotfelty, 29, was stopped at approximately 9:40 p.m. when an officer who had prior knowledge of his driver's license status observed him operating a vehicle on Oak Street.

Glotfelty was released from the Garrett County Jail when he posted a $1,000 bond set by a District Court commissioner.

Worth the Effort...

The summer of 2003 in Garrett County has seemed like one of the shortest on record, with the 2002-03 school year having to be extended halfway through June, and with monsoon-like conditions lasting well into July. The best weather of the season arrived just this past weekend, the final one before the resumption of school.

Even though the summer seemed to zip by so quickly, the return of our younger citizens to school still generates a big sigh of relief by some parents. Life is just easier for some when their children are back in school, being tended to by other adults for about seven hours each day. And, of course, the schools and teachers are basically held accountable for their children's academic success, or lack thereof.

However, research continues to show that consistent, regular parental involvement in a child's educational life, coupled with the values that are taught to that child within the home, are the single most crucial elements necessary for success.

William A. Sampson, an associate professor at DePaul University who has done extensive research in this area, states in one of his two books that, with all of the talk about the importance of school vouchers, increased spending for education, smaller classrooms, and standardized testing, "the family is more important in improving schools than the schools themselves." He said that, rich or poor and regardless of race, student performance depends directly upon how well parents promote the old-fashioned virtues of discipline, delayed gratification, responsibility, self-control, self-esteem, and cooperation.

Another interesting study has found that verbal stimulation, that is, the number of words a young child hears at home, may be the most important predictor of that child's future academic, economic, and social success. The number of words addressed directly to the child, and whether or not they are words of encouragement or ridicule, were also found to be significant factors. This reinforces the importance of reading books to young children on a regular basis.

So, while the return of children to school may in some respects give a bit of a breather to local parents, we strongly encourage each of them to get involved and stay involved in their kids' education, instead of making the school system or teachers the scapegoats for their child's failures and problems. Attending back-to-school events, staying in touch with teachers, serving as a school volunteer if possible, keeping a close eye on test scores, being there for athletic events and various school performances, providing some kind of daily schedule for the completion of homework, and making sure one's child gets sufficient rest, exercise, and nutrition are the most important keys to success.

It's a lot of hard work, especially with the general stress and dozens of distractions that are characteristic of today's society. But are not the ultimate success and happiness of one's child well worth the effort?

Letters to the Editor

Dear Church Members:

I want to thank you for including me in your prayers. I have been in several situations in which I know God had me in his protection.

I am in southern Iraq, in the city of Al Hillah. We are about 80 miles south of Baghdad. Contrary to what CNN says, the Iraqi people are happy we are here. They have told us now they feel safe. Before, they only knew fear. When we first got here we heard gunfire every night. Now we rarely hear it. The criminals know now that there are repercussions for their actions.

We have conducted numerous raids. The people see us doing this. They know the people we arrest are criminals. I have seen a lot of smiles when we lead someone out in handcuffs.

I am proud to be a part of this. I know I am a part of history. I do miss my wife Alisa, and our two little girls. I do have a job to do.

Now we are letting the Iraqi police handle everything. If they request our assistance, then we go. The Iraqi people are a proud people. For the most part they are grateful we are here. There are always bad apples.

Thank you for your support.

Rick Kline

Dear Fellow Americans,

My name is Daniel Pacheco and I live in Roswell, New Mexico. My honors biology class is doing a leaf project, which requires leaves. I would love to feature a leaf from your state in my project. It would be greatly appreciated! If you can, please send three healthy leaves (not leaflets) to: Daniel Pacheco, 712 South Washington, Roswell, NM 88203.

If you know the name of the tree, please include it in your mailing, along with your name so I can give credit to who deserves it!

Thank you very much,
Daniel Pacheco

To the Editor:

It was nostalgic to see Shaina Custer, crowned '03 Garrett County Farm Queen, on the front page of the 8/14 Republican.

Why wax nostalgic? Because "Farm Queens" won't exist in another decade!

Indeed, our age of political correctness has already eliminated "Farm Queens" in a number of Maryland counties. There has been a spate of articles, announcing the queens are to be henceforth known as farm "ambassadors," in various other local newspapers around Maryland.

Garrett Countians, remain true to your core beliefs. Let others decry you as a "provincial backwater," and let them miss out on traditional American values!

As for me, I'll lament the loss of "farm queens" in all the pseudo-sophisticated jurisdictions!

Sincerely yours,
Douglas Scott Arey

To the Editor:

Hi. My name is Chase. I would like to tell you a story of my life. I once lived in a very loving home; great owner, green pastures, and lots of friends. My owner had to sell me back in March of 2003. I'm a 900 lb., 3-year-old quarter horse.

I was moved to my new home on Devil's Half Acre Rd. There I was put in a barn and tied to a 42" rope. I was given no food and little water. The musty hay in the place where I lay was wet with manure. I stood there for five months with no exercise, other than moving my legs to try to get the flies off of me. There are other horses in the barn tied beside me that would kick me and bite me. I couldn't get away from them because my rope was too short. Day after day, the same thing over and over, for months.

Then one day a man came to visit me. He had a very familiar scent. He took one look at me and seemed to have lost his spirit. He asked me, "Chase, what has he done to you?"

A few days later a lady named Joyce Colbert, Bernadine Friend, and Officer Steven LeMay came to visit. I was taken from that place immediately. My now 300 lb. body with weakened legs was loaded onto a trailer and I was taken to a new home.

Once again I have green pastures, fresh water, oats, and a dry stall to relax in on stormy nights. My feet were trimmed, my mane is brushed, my legs are getting stronger, and my spirits are higher than ever.

Some people would call this animal abuse. I would call it torture. I'm getting a lot of TLC and vitamins and medical care to help me restore my immune system. I think I'm going to be all right. Just knowing I'm going to be fed, watered, and brushed every day makes me want to live another day. That's not too much to ask; after all I'm a loving animal.

I would like to give my special thanks to Joyce, Bernadine, the Animal Shelter and Officer Steven LeMay for giving me a second chance at life.

If anyone knows of any other friends of mine being tortured, please try to help them too. After all, life is great.

Thank you,
Chase

Babbling Brainstorms

By Beth L. Bowers

AN ADDITION TO THE MORNING ROUTINE

by Beth L. Bowers

One of the things I joked about with having boys was that I thought I wouldn't have to worry about doing their hair. I have a hard enough time doing my own, let alone someone else's, so I never expected to have to schedule styling hair into the morning routine. Not to mention having to worry about coiffing at kindergarten age. Tyler got his hair cut a few days before school started, and Tammy asked him what he wanted her to do with it this time. She asked this knowing the answer, but she gets a kick out of his standard answer – "flat like a road." So this time it was the same as we expected.

The next day when he got off the wave runner his hair was all spiky. Brian commented on it like usual, because he looks so cute, and Tyler usually insists that we flatten it immediately. But for some reason, this day was different. He agreed that it looked cool, and had a huge smile on his face every time someone commented on his new do.

I noticed out of the corner of my eye that every time he walked past anything shiny or reflective, he checked his hair. I knew better than to let him know I noticed. It was quite funny to watch him hesitate before getting in the car to check his reflection in the car window. I really wasn't prepared for this. I mean he isn't even 5 years old yet.

So before he headed off to bed the eve of the first day of school, he reminded me that he would get up at 7 a.m. sharp and I was to spike his hair before we left. Well, I tried, but as Brian walked past the bathroom and said, "Did you do his hair?" I knew I had failed at Spiking 101. So I left them alone in front of the mirror to spike away. Tyler looked much better after Brian was finished, so it looks like this will be scheduled into Brian's morning routine and not mine.

This week brought some other changes. When we registered Tyler for kindergarten back in the spring, he looked so little and young. Now, he looks all grown up. He is one of the tallest, no surprise knowing my genes, and is tanned and blond – and now spiky.

He is also getting completely into the lake "thang" now that Labor Day is around the next corner. He seems to do this every summer. As summer winds down, he starts to really enjoy it and try new things. The day before school started, he started jumping off the dock into the water with his life jacket on and even tried tubing. Hopefully September will prove to be one of the nicest months so he can continue to enjoy his love of the water.

But for now I am glad to see that Tyler enjoyed his first day of school. Right now, recess was the biggest highlight. I can only hope that Carter's transition into pre-school at Little Rascals will go half as smoothly. But for some reason I am skeptical; maybe it is because every time someone asks him if he wants to go to school, he yells "Oh, Man" or "Darn it," his favorite sayings this month.

THE CHANGING FACE OF VACATION

Conclusion, In Which I Finally Stop Yapping Already

There are just two more things I'd like to write about our vacation before ending this marathon, which I need to do seeing that school has already started and autumn is on its way. The first thing is our foray into Lazer Tag, and the second is a bike ride worth remembering.

The Splash Lagoon facility, which is all built around a collection of hotels, includes a Lazer Tag arena. While I'm glad all three of our sons can now read well enough to understand road signs, I would have been happier if they hadn't been able to read that one. But they all saw it on the first day. "Lazer Tag? Wow! Can we do it? Can we do it? Canwedoit? Please! Pleasepleaseplease!" All right already! We did it.

As we checked in to play, a group of people were coming out. "Those people are all hot and sweaty," John noted. Well, I wasn't going to get worked up in there, I decided. I'll just shoot at the kids as they run by. Hmmm. We were taken into a room with only black lights turned on — which made us all grin at each other's white, white teeth. A girl decked us all out with our harnesses and guns. It would be the kids against their old parents.

Oh, John talked big at the beginning. "You're going down, losers," he said. They took that challenge so very seriously. Thanks a lot, John. We entered the black-light-lit room and were shown our "territories." Basically, each team had two towers that were to be protected from the other team. Each player had about 20 shots in the gun. After they were spent, the player was to run back behind his "base," where some kind of state-of-the-art creepy light thing would give him a reload. The harnesses, which were stinkin' heavy, also had speakers in them. This spacey guy would talk in our ears every now and then, making us jump because we thought he was standing right behind us.

And so we were off. We started shooting all over the place amid Star Trek sound effects, and in a mist produced by a fog machine to illuminate the laser beams. Five seconds into the game, Michael got hurt. {MIT report} I knew nothing about this until later, but John said he lasered Michael, and Michael, forever the action hero, died with all the required dramatics. This meant he let every muscle go limp, fell backwards, and conked his head really hard on a metal beam. Ouch. John felt terrible and said he was sure for a minute that we would have to stop the game, but Michael rallied. He showed his recovery by shooting the stuffings out of his dad. Crisis averted.

Around we all ran. I was pretty sure I was going to die. And I mean really die. I'm not in great shape anyhow, and I was recovering from a bout of bronchitis. I was hacking and panting and sweating, yet for some reason I was spurred onward. I'm not sure if it was the atmosphere or the fact that the boys were absolutely creaming us. Boy, that's humiliating. Their score was thousands of points over ours. Just pathetic. So I kept running and shooting, trying to outscore the boys at least once. (There were seven "heats.") The imps would jump out from behind things and scare me to death, and then shoot me. They were laughing so hard I don't know how they kept running like that. And in the end, they were the victors. John said he let them win. Poor, sad, old man.

When we finally came out — about four days later I think — another family was waiting to go in. I swear the father nudged the mother and said, "Those people are all hot and sweaty." And I felt like saying, "Yeah, and you're gonna be, too." But I opted to let them live and learn.

Near the end of our adventure, we decided to finally use the bikes we had lugged around on the back of the van all week. Presque Isle has a bike trail that goes completely around its edge. It's about 11 miles long, but we didn't tell the boys that stark fact. John and I, whose bikes were safe and dusty at home, rented some oh-so-cool ones that were actually trikes. There were two wheels with a seat between them, very low to the ground, and the third wheel in the front center. To peddle, we extended our legs out in front of us rather than down. I couldn't believe how comfortable that bike was! The only real drawback was that there were no gears. It was a one-speed. But the path was so level, it didn't really matter.

After about two hours of preparation — "Don't forget water bottles. Go to the bathroom. Put on some sunblock. Don't fight over the sunglasses. Please go to the bathroom before we leave. You need shoes, not sandals." — we were ready. (Except for one more hurdle — guess who had to go to the bathroom just as we started? Me. Cheesh!) But at last, we were peddling along the trail, which ran along the water's edge where birds of many a feather swooped down, little creatures rustled off into the woods, and other bikers passed us like 60. We began to spread out on the path. Michael was always, always ahead. Watching him peddle madly, I reminded him that he could just let the bike coast once in a while. "Don't like to coast," he yelled back at me, his legs whirling around at such a speed. I didn't care. I just kept peddling, too, keeping him at least in my sight. Alex and Rob fell back a little, and John stayed with them. It was so pleasant. A breeze from across Lake Erie bent the grasses and helped keep us cool as we traveled along. The sky was blue and the air clear. Although I was exerting more energy than I had in a while (except at Lazer Tag, of course), I didn't feel tired, I didn't feel overwhelmed. I felt great.

"Oh, how much longer is this stupid path?" came a cry at about 8 miles. Rob and Alex were exhausted and getting cranky. And I couldn't really blame them — I do think my bike was more comfortable than theirs. So soon we let them stop off at a beach area and wait for us to go turn in our nifty three-wheelers. Was I sore the next day? Yes indeed. But it was worth it.

So after a few other adventures that really don't warrant much attention, we headed home late Friday. It was a lovely week, and a tiring one. Our vacations could never be described as restful, really — but certainly memorable. Thanks for going along with me these past few weeks, back to the beautiful Presque Isle. Hope you had some fun. We sure did.

GARRETT VINTNERS EARN "BEST OF BALTIMORE" AWARD – Friendsville-based Deep Creek Cellars has been named "Best of Baltimore" in a Baltimore Magazine rating of 12 wineries. DC Cellars owners Paul Roberts and Nadine Grabania, both shown above displaying their award, have achieved an annual growth of 30 percent since opening their business in 1997. "We're very pleased, and a bit surprised, to have been selected," Grabania said. The couple had not submitted their winery's name for consideration, but their small, family-run business was singled out for the honor over 11 other wineries located within 30 miles of the city. "A lot of our Baltimore customers first learned of us by visiting our winery during their vacations at Deep Creek Lake," explained Roberts. DC Cellars wines are available in stores and restaurants at various locations in Garrett County and throughout western Maryland and the Baltimore area. See story.

Garrett Winery Earns Coveted "Best Of Baltimore" Recognition

Deep Creek Cellars, western Maryland's only wine producer, has been named the "top winery" in Baltimore Magazine's annual "Best of Baltimore" issue. The small Friendsville-area family business, located three hours from Baltimore, was picked over 11 other Maryland wineries, each situated within 30 miles of the city.

"We're known in Baltimore because we sell wine in stores and restaurants there," said winemaker and co-owner Paul Roberts, "and a lot of our Baltimore customers first learned of us by visiting our winery on their vacations at Deep Creek Lake."

The unsolicited recognition is the first award ever won by Deep Creek Cellars. "This is especially gratifying because we avoid contests where judges taste a hundred wines a day and hand out 40 or 50 ribbons," said Roberts. "This honor was based solely on the quality and value of our wines as judged by the magazine's wine writer. The wines were evaluated with food – the way any meaningful tasting should be done – and were found to be superior.

Deep Creek Cellars was started in 1997 by Roberts, 44, and his wife, Nadine Grabania, 41. They lived for many years in Pittsburgh before building a home at their winery property in 2000. The couple produced about 12,000 bottles of wine in 2002, ranging from light whites to oak-aged reds to a specialty blueberry dessert wine. A spacious new tasting room, featuring local art and crafts and an outdoor bocce court, will open later this month to accommodate the larger crowds, which have been growing at 30 percent a year.

Roberts said that due to surging demand, starting next year some bottlings intended for retail sale off the premises will be allocated to established clients. "We are building a devoted set of stores and restaurants willing to look beyond the label and to trust their own judgments about fine wines, and thanks to them we continue to grow," said Roberts. (A complete list of where to buy Deep Creek's wines is available at www.deepcreekcellars_. com.)

The winemaking couple grow grapes on an eight-acre hillside farm just off Route 42, six miles north of Friendsville. They also encouraged two other county residents to plant grapes – one near the winery and another to the south on Backbone Mountain – and now also purchase those crops. In most years, they also supplement their harvest with grapes from outside the region.

"We are thrilled that Baltimore Magazine critic David Butcher took the time to really consider and appreciate the handcrafted nature of our wines, because wines made with care are not always flashy, and are not easily summarized by a numerical score in a wine magazine," remarked Roberts.

due to the foreign imports of sheet fed paper. We were informed last week that we will be taking temporary downtime affecting approximately 75 employees one week per month due to these imports.

We have contacted our senators and congressmen by mail with no response from them at this time. We are urging you as a community to contact them as well. Everyone in this community will be affected in some way if the paper industry becomes obsolete the way the steel mill, Kelly Springfield, shoe factories, and the other large industries from our community have become. You may not be directly affected by this, but if MeadWestvaco closes due to the foreign import of paper, many, many people will be hurt by this. The importing of paper from China and other foreign countries has cost our Luke Mill over 350 jobs in the past five years.

Here is something to think about: If we lose all of our factories here in the United States to foreign manufacturing, we are not going to need a 9/11 to take us down! They will be able to control us. We will be dependent upon foreign products, and if they decide they want the upper hand they can just stop sending goods to us. This is something that we need to stop and think about! It may not hurt us, but what about our grandchildren and their children.

We need to talk to our senators and congressmen about restricting foreign importing because it is hurting all of us. Keep in mind when it is time to go out and buy your children school supplies to choose American made. We need to secure our futures as well as the future of our children's children.

To the Editor:

This summer 23 New York City children found out just how special summer in the Oakland area really is. Thanks to the dedication of Fresh Air Fund hosts, volunteers, and supporters, these inner-city youngsters spent a fun-filled summer vacation in your community. Our city children experienced the simple summertime pleasures of the Oakland area.

None of this would be possible without Alice Orendorf, your local Fresh Air Fund volunteer leader, who works throughout the year to make sure summer magic happens with host families and children. Alice's generosity and commitment is an inspiration to us all. I invite you to join Alice next summer in planning fun summer activities, interviewing prospective host families, and/or hosting a child.

The Fresh Air Fund, an independent, not-for-profit agency, has provided free summer vacations to over 1.7 million disadvantaged New York City children since 1877. For more information on how you can help to continue this wonderful tradition of volunteering, please call Leona Johnson at 800-367-0003 ext. 8985 or visit www.freshair.org.

Dream Becomes Reality In Work Of Elk Garden "Neighbors" Ctr.

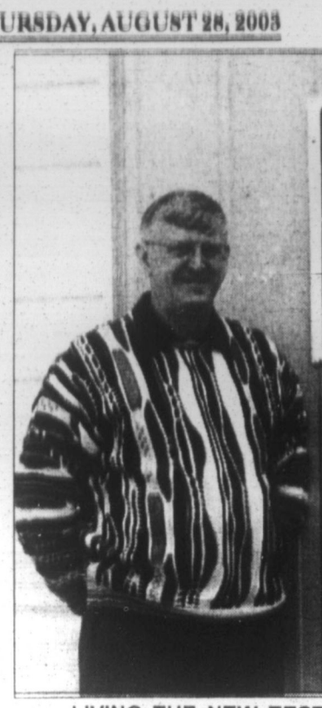
By David Foster

A question sparked by a dream has been answered in the community of Elk Garden, where the "Neighbors Helping Neighbors" center has been bringing together the efforts of a wide variety of people and organizations to help their neighbors in need. Much more than a warehouse filled with food and other items available for the taking, the four walls and roof of the facility harbor a concrete place where a dream has been turned into a feast of giving.

That initial vision of a place where people could receive food, clothing, and other necessities came to Rev. Paul McDonald literally in a dream, but the answer to his question of "How?" has been answered through the dedication and work of his and a seemingly endless supply of donors and volunteers who are taking the biblical story of the "multiplication of the loaves and fishes" and turning it into a 21st century reality.

"The Lord told me that no matter where I would go and share this dream with others, even if they didn't understand at first we'd all eventually be blessed," McDonald said of his inspiration, which is borne out of his personal life as much as it is out of faith. "Nothing disturbs me more than seeing kids go to bed hungry."

"I grew up in Allegany County in the late 1950s and early 1960s," McDonald recalled. "It was a period in our nation much like today, when our country was supposed to be blessed with prosperity, but still our family often went to bed hungry. The people and organizations that support the NHN center will not hear of one person going hungry in 2004, and are committed to not letting that happen in this area."



LIVING THE NEW TESTAMENT'S "FEEDING OF THE 5,000," the Neighbors Helping Neighbors center in Elk Garden, W.Va., has turned a dream into reality, and needs into opportunities. Rev. Paul McDonald, shown above, is spearheading the efforts of a wide cross-section of individuals, businesses, churches, and organizations that is supplying food, clothing, and many other necessities to dozens of families in the region on both sides of the Potomac River. The packed warehouse, first shown to McDonald in a dream, is pictured below. "A tractor-trailer load of food costs $8,000, half of which is picked up by the government and the other half which comes out of our operation," he explained. "If we can get 400 people to donate $10 per month, we can feed 1,000 people each month. It's straight out of the Bible's 'Loaves and Fishes' story."

Since opening in late autumn of last year, the Neighbors Helping Neighbors center has become a focal point for Elk Garden and the surrounding region, serving as a distribution point for items needed by families throughout the greater community. The non-profit, non-denominational support service is available to residents of both West Virginia and Maryland. For a $6 donation twice a month, persons with incomes equivalent to $27,000 or less for a family of four can take home a large grocery bag, overflowing with quality food items arranged in whole-meal fashion and valued at more than $30. No one is turned away if they do not have $6, McDonald added.

"We're a non-profit organization trying to help supplement people's most basic needs, so they can apply more of their income to other needs, including bettering their life situations," said McDonald, who serves as the center's administrator and chief fundraiser.

"What we'd like to see is that people take the other $24 they've saved on a bag of our groceries — or appliances, clothing, toys, books, or anything else we might have available — and put it toward the family's bills in order to either keep out or get out of debt, or to seek other services or education. It's really up to them how they put the money they save to use for their own benefit, however."

The center's volunteers and benefactors are filling a vital need in Elk Garden and the surrounding community, according to statistics from the Mineral County Department of Social Services. Mineral County's unemployment rate is hovering right at 7 percent, meaning a huge number of working age people are out of work. Of the older population, over a third of the county's 5,463 senior citizens age 60 and older have annual incomes of less than $15,000, with nearly 1,000 of those seniors living on in-

MHEC Offers Info And Calendar For College, Financial Aid Search

This week marks the beginning of the school year for many Maryland high school seniors, and the Maryland Higher Education Commission suggests that students begin now to research colleges and financial aid.

To assist students, MHEC has prepared a month-by-month academic year calendar of what to do to make sure the transition into college is a smooth one.

"We want seniors to begin the process of investigating colleges and financial aid right now," said Dr. John A. Sabatini Jr., acting secretary of higher education. "The competition for college admission and financial aid is stiff, so the earlier students apply, the greater the chances are of meeting with success."

September

•Consider your career plans to determine the right type of school for you.

•Request admissions information and school catalogs. Review school Web sites.

•Obtain registration materials and test dates for the Scholastic Assessment Test (SAT) and/or ACT Assessment.

•Start developing a financial plan for college. Contact the Maryland Higher Education Commission to get information about Maryland's financial assistance programs. The MHEC Web site, www.mhec.state.md.us, provides this information.

•Meet with college representatives who visit your high school.

•Mark your calendar with registration, admissions, and financial assistance deadlines and fees.

October

•Take the SAT and/or ACT.

•Work on admissions essays.

•Visit your top school choices. Make appointments with faculty, staff, and students.

•Contact the schools' financial aid offices to determine which forms are required. Some schools require special forms.

•Finalize portfolios, audition tapes, writing samples, or other evidence of talent if required for admission.

November

•Attend college fairs and financial assistance nights. Representatives from the Maryland Higher Education Commission conduct college nights at Maryland high schools throughout the year.

•Obtain financial assistance forms from your high school counselor. Determine what information is necessary to complete the forms.

•Begin completing your admissions applications. Double check the deadlines for submission.

December

•Pick up a Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) at your high school counselor's office, MHEC, your local library, or a college or university. The forms cannot be submitted before January 1. You also may apply online at www.fafsa.ed.gov.

•Research and apply for other financial assistance. Information about Maryland financial assistance may be found online at

DOG WASH FOR CHARITY – The Garrett County Humane Society is once again calling all dogs to come on out and get washed for charity on Saturday, Sept. 6. The dog wash will be hosted by Countryside Animal Hospital, located on Weber Road in Oakland. The wash will be held from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. and the cost is $5 for a regular bath, $7 for a flea bath, and $5 for an ear and nail cleaning. All proceeds of the event will benefit HART (Homeless Animal Rescue & Transport) of Garrett County. HART, in conjunction with the Garrett County Animal Shelter, helps rescue dogs and cats before euthanasia. These animals are then placed with families. HART has placed over 200 animals during this year, a spokesperson said. For more information, persons may call 301-334-0918 or 301-533-3291 after 5 p.m.

Neighbors

comes of less than $10,000 a year. Based on the Neighbors Helping Neighbors income guidelines, well over half the senior citizens in Mineral County are eligible for the center's services.

"Lots of folks with low incomes, especially the elderly, have costly medical needs. We don't want anyone to have to make the choice between buying food or buying medicine they need," commented McDonald. "The only thing needed is proof of income, and patrons must sign a receipt and release form for the food. We don't ask, 'Why do you have this need?' but instead ask, 'What do you need?'"

The NHN center supplies food to as many as 50 families in the summer, and up to 100 in the winter as heating bills begin to gobble up limited fixed incomes. McDonald, who spends a great deal of time searching for food sources both in person and on the Internet, brings in food by the tractor-trailer load and then works with his volunteer staff to sort and bag the 22 pallets of food hauled in on each trailer. Each trailer contains $8,000 worth of food, all of which must be paid for, with half the cost funded by a government program and the balance through donations by supporters from across the country. Although most of the food is distributed to area families, McDonald has been known to send food to those in need as far away as Florida, Alabama, and Indiana. He has also sent toys and financial contributions to charitable efforts in Africa.

As if physical needs weren't enough of an order to fill, the non-denominational center is also is striving to help people equip themselves for better living. "We hope to be in position soon to offer educational classes and counseling services at the center," McDonald said, noting that literacy training would be one of many classes he hopes to have on the schedule. "We want to give people the tools they need to succeed."

A venture such as the NHN center could not exist without the help of neighbors, from near and far. Everything in the building, and the heated 30' x 64' structure itself, was paid for and/or donated through McDonald's tireless work in recruiting individuals, businesses, churches, and social service agencies to join in the mission.

who have played a part are Parks Excavating of Keyser, which dug the building's foundation; a local coal company, which prefers to remain anonymous, that supplied the fill; Nelson Cement Works, also of Keyser, which poured the cement floor, materials for which were hugely discounted by Cumberland Cement; CN Metals of Oakland, which gave a huge discount on the building materials and construction process; the Church of God in Cleveland, Tenn., which supplied $12,500 to see the building erected; and ongoing financial support from Meta Express of Indiana and World Wide Transportation of California, and invaluable support from Jones Trucking of Elk Garden.

"We also get lots of support from all the churches in the area," said McDonald. "Although I'm pastor of the Elk Garden Church of God, I and our congregation want to see every church filled with members, no matter what the denomination. Then if we could pool those resources, no matter how big or how small, that people bring with them to their respective churches, there's not a need on earth that we can't fill.

"The 'Neighbors' concept comes from the Amish. People today don't know their neighbors, and if [illegible] open for service the first and third Saturday of every month from 9 a.m. to noon. Arrangements for emergency services can be made by calling McDonald at 304-790-0991. Persons interested in further information, or in making a donation or providing volunteer assistance, may contact McDonald at any time in the day or evening hours.

walk away. The Amish don't question, don't ask how much time it takes or how much it costs. If they see a need, they all pitch in to help out. If we could get back to that philosophy, we'd all be better off."

Staff Reports

During the month of July, the center served 15 new clients (13 domestic violence and 2 rape), assisted 46 continuing clients, made 7 interventions, answered 20 hotline calls, and housed two homeless persons, according to the director.

Health Department

Rodney Glotfelty, health officer, reported that the Oral Rabies Vaccine program had begun in the county. Fishmeal cakes imbedded with raccoon rabies vaccine were recently dropped from aircraft in the county. The program is part of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's campaign to reduce the spread of raccoon rabies westward.

Raccoons find the cakes irresistible, eat them, and become immune to rabies. The vaccine, however, offers no immunity to other animals. Glotfelty said residents finding the cakes should not touch them with their bare hands. Persons with compromised immune systems may develop a rash if they touch the cakes.

Health Department staff members will now manually distribute the ORV cakes in and around towns, the health officer noted. Persons with questions about the program may call the Health Department at 301-334-7777.

Social Services

Acting director Rick DeWitt, Department of Social Services, reported that he and the other social services directors in the state had met recently with Secretary Christopher McCabe, Department of Human Resources. During a two-day workshop, the officials looked at services that their departments provide and reviewed recent state budget cuts.

In light of the cuts, their goal now is to provide "more effective, more efficient" services, DeWitt indicated. Non-services, such as travel, training, and office supplies, therefore, will be reduced. The good news is, he said, there are no personnel cuts.

In an effort to be more efficient, the Garrett County Department of Social Services has reduced its business hours. Beginning Sept. 2, the office will be open from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. The office had been opened until 5 p.m. DeWitt stressed that new hours would have no bearing on customer service.

Garrett College

Dr. Steven Herman, Garrett College president, reported that the name of the architectural firm that will design the new Learning Resource Center would soon be announced. He noted the $3.5 million project would require no county funding.

Herman also reported that Bowie State University would no longer be offering teleconference courses at Garrett College. Through the courses, local students could earn bachelor's degrees without leaving the county. Bowie has provided for those students already in the program to complete their degrees, noted Herman.

He said it was unfortunate that the program had been dropped since some local students did not have the money or time to commute to a four-year institution. He added that Garrett College is currently looking for another institution to provide a similar program.

Western Md. Consortium

The summer youth employment program recently concluded, reported director John Wynn, Western Maryland Consortium. Though a limited number of youth were allowed to participate this year because of state budget cuts, all went well, he noted.

Twenty-nine Garrett County youth were employed at 18 work sites doing a variety of jobs, including maintenance, clerical, and food service. The director said that, overall, both the employers and employees were pleased with the program.

Sailboat Racing
On Deep Creek Lake

SATURDAY WAS EXCITING, BUT NO WIND ON SUNDAY
by Dan Muss

Our weather guru, accuweather.com, predicted a lovely day, but with wind 8 mph gusting to 14 out of the north. At 11 a.m. the race commander, Tom Wolffe, said that he'd seen gusts up to 17, so we all began looking for a third body to help hold the boat down (also known as "rail meat"). Anne Graham, a very good sailor, consented to join me and fearless crew Marilyn Filemyr, and we all got along well.

But as we sailed out to the starting line the wind had lightened considerably. We were planning to start at the pin end since it looked as though the port tack would be favored; so had everyone else in our fleet. We ran down the line on the starboard tack planning to be at the pin at the start. With about 30 seconds to go the breeze suddenly piped up and I realized that we were going to be over early. So I bore off and jibed onto port, right into a mass of Masters Fleet boats. I was about to hit Rissell, who was on starboard, so I hauled on the tiller and bore off in a frantic maneuver. I avoided hitting Rissell, but then found myself bearing down on Peters, who was also on port, but to leeward. So I then threw the helm over the other way and managed to avoid Peters as the gun went off. How I avoided fouling someone is a mystery. As we headed upwind we all looked over to see if either Rissell or Peters were flying a protest flag, but they weren't.

We didn't place in that race, but it was such a beautiful day; it was truly great just to be out there.

As we headed upwind on our second beat we noticed that coming downwind was Eric Silverman in first place in the Laser Fleet, but with Bruce Spinnenweber practically on his transom. Bruce told me later that Eric had passed him on that downwind leg. It's not often that anyone beats Bruce.

As we rounded the last leeward mark we had to give room to two Championship Fleet boats. The first was Harry Carpenter, two-time Flying Scot national champion, which was not a surprise. But right behind him was a boat sailed by 16-year-old Ashley Dodd, and this race was only her second race at the helm. It's true that her crew was John Meredith, our fleet champion, but John said that Ashley has the same natural touch on the helm that her sister Meredith has. I believe we may be seeing the start of a Dodd dynasty in sailboat racing.

Sunday morning the guru said wind "light and variable," and that's what we had. At 12:30 p.m. the race commander, Kevin Rissell, postponed for a half hour, but all we could see were thermal streaks on the water. There was no real breeze, and Kevin finally canceled. So we all had lunch.

RACE RESULTS

HUSKY ALUMNI STILL SWINGING AWAY – The Northern High School alumni baseball game took place on the NHS diamond recently, and the annual Blue vs. Gold battle resulted in a Blue squad victory in a 10-inning thriller. Trey Brenneman slugged a home run for the winners, Alan Sebold belted a homer for the losers, and current Husky head coach Phil Carr showed he can still practice what he preaches by turning in a sterling six-for-six batting performance for the Gold team. NHS baseball alumni on hand for the contest, pictured above kneeling from the left, were Greg Beachy, class of 1980; Charlie Beiler, '85; Kevin Frazee, '77; Jeremy Frazee, '01; Jamie Workman, '78; P.J. ## Maddawgs Win Home Opener, Still Undefeated

The Northern Maddawgs Pee Wee Football League team crushed the South Cumberland Reds, 36-12, in its first home game at Northern High School.

The Maddawgs' B team took the field first, and a defensive struggle . ensued. Cody Rodeheaver put Northern's first points on the board by evading the Reds' tacklers on his way to a 36-yard touchdown run.

The A team took the field in the second quarter and Josh Duckworth added to the lead by reeling off a 45-yard touchdown run. The Reds countered with a 60 yard touchdown run, but Northern's Patrick Beckman plowed in for a two-yard touchdown run to put the Maddawgs up 18-6 at the half.

Northern's B team defense continued to smother the Reds' offense through the third quarter as the unit recorded its second straight shutout in allowing Cumberland's B team only one first down throughout the game. Northern's B team offense was driving when the third quarter expired.

The dedication was held last Sunday during the club's second annual Founder's Day Tournament. The event was held to celebrate the club's 66th birthday and to raise money for the future of the club. Sixty-eight participants played in the tournament. The members of the winning team were Greg Shockey, Rick Livengood, Lewis Marks, and Steve Liller.

Southern Duffers Storm To Quad Match Triumph

The Southern High School golf team upped its record to 5-0 with a big win at the Cumberland Country Club on Thursday, Aug. 21. The Rams took the quadrangular match by 42 strokes, carding a 156 to runner-up Allegany's 198.

Matt Skidmore paced SHS with a 35 to take low-medalist honors, while teammate Josh Lear shot a 38, Travis Friend had a 40, and Evan Thayer carded a 43.

Aleo's top golfer was Jessica Jewell with a 45, Bishop Walsh was led by Griffin Derrick's 44, and Brandon Buzzard had a 49 for Frankfort.

Maddawgs Win

The squads' respective A teams took the field for the fourth quarter, and Beckman soon scampered 36 yards for a Maddawg touchdown. The Reds closed the gap with a 50-yard pass and run for a touchdown to make the score 24-12. Their momentum was soon broken by Northern's powerful defense, when Josh Duckworth intercepted a pass and ran 50 yards for a touchdown. Northern closed out the scoring with a 30-yard touchdown run by Duckworth to end the game 36-12.

"The offensive and defensive lineman made the difference in the battle," Northern's coach commented.

The Maddawgs' C team was defeated by their speedy Reds C team counterparts.

The Maddawgs have to gear up for what stands to be a nail biter when two of only three Pee Wee League unbeaten teams collide this Saturday, Aug. 30, when Northern hosts the powerful Cresaptown Eagles. Kickoff is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. on the Northern High gridiron.

Third Squad

2004, the two squads will split nearly $200,000. The Hamiltons suggested that the revenue be split three ways to include Deep Creek EMS. Their company would also rely on donations, grants, and insurance payments.

Jamie explained that more and more insurance companies were recognizing emergency medical service. She noted, however, that Deep Creek EMS would not deny service to anyone. Patients would be picked up and their insurance companies billed for the service. If a patient's insurance refused payment or if he or she had no insurance, Deep Creek EMS would ask that the patient pay, but would not be required to do so.

Emergency Management director Brad Frantz said that if the commissioners were planning to endorse a third squad, they would also need to consider raising the special levy as well.

Rayma Weeks of Southern Rescue said she did not think anyone would dispute that there was not a problem with responses. "We have been laboring on it for years," she said. "We know it's there. How to solve it, we don't know."

"We're here to do it,"

Most people don't realize that there are 15 lakes in Garrett County. For the next several months, The Republican will provide information about each of those lakes in this column.

The author of the articles is Jack Slocomb, a retired industrial forester who resides in the Goodwill Village in Grantsville with his wife Evelyn. Originally from Cape Cod, Slocomb holds a master's degree in forestry from Yale University.

Early in his career he worked as a timber and tie inspector at the B&O Railroad treating plant in Green Spring, W.Va. He recalls workers at the yard unloading 300-pound ties from box cars, hoisting them onto a shoulder pad, walking down a plank, and stacking them for air drying. (Among the workers he recalls is Elwood Wagoner, late grandfather of the editor of The Republican.)

At that time, the railroad owned large acreages of timber in 13 states. Slocomb managed most of these lands under a plan of sustained yield/selective cutting.

Slocomb and his wife enjoy exploring, hiking, swimming, and kayaking. He is a member of the St. John's Church choir and the Accident Concert Band.

JENNINGS RANDOLPH LAKE

Location: This lake is situated in the southeastern corner of Garrett County, with the western half in Maryland and the eastern half in West Virginia.

Description: A serpentine-shaped, deep, 952-acre lake, approximately five miles long, with an average width of ½-mile. Two coves or fingers extend deep into West Virginia. A rolled earth-and-rock-fill dam forms the northern end of the lake. The lake is a deep canyon of the North Branch of the Potomac River. From the high ground on the Maryland side, one descends approximately 2,000 vertical feet to the lake shore. The lake is 250 feet deep at the dam. Surface water temperatures are generally from 70-75 degrees (F) during the summer.

How to get there: The Maryland side of the lake can be reached from Rt. 135 via Mt. Zion Road or Walnut Bottom Road.

To reach the more developed West Virginia side from the Maryland side, one has two choices: boat or swim across (¼-mile), or return to Rt. 135 and proceed either to Elk Garden, W.Va., or Bloomington and take Rt. 46 (20 miles!). Rt. 46 from Bloomington south to the lake can be likened to the Burma Road with its curves, switchbacks and steep grades, plus coal trucks. The best route to the West Virginia side is from Elk Garden, again via Rt. 46, which takes one down the very steep Nethken Hill.

Facilities: There are two spectacular lookouts on the Maryland side of the lake with picnic tables and a birding trail that can be reached by Walnut Bottom Road. There is also a first-class boat ramp and floating dock reached via Mt. Zion Road.

The West Virginia side has much more to offer, including 82 ideal sites for camping (hot showers), fishing, hiking, boat ramps for motor boats, canoes, kayaks, rafts, and sailboats, parking for boats and trailers, picnic tables with shelters, a trailer sanitary station, horseshoes, basketball, and a new swimming beach.

What to do: Besides all of the recreational and scenic opportunities already mentioned, the lake property features a fabulous geological wonder called the "Waffle Rock."

Fees: No entrance fee into the park; picnicking, swimming, basketball, and fishing from the banks are all free; boat launch, $3; camping (including boat launch), $16 per day, and $20 with electric hookup; season pass for boat launch, $30; and Golden Age (62 and over) boat launch permit, $15.

In general: The lake and surrounding 4,500 acres of forests and grasslands are managed by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. Lake manager is Jan Gonzales (1-304-355-2346). The Maryland DNR handles the boat ramp on the Maryland side.

The lake is full of trout, largemouth and smallmouth bass, walleye, and catfish. If there is ample water, whitewater paddling below the dam is provided four times in the spring and twice in the fall. Paddlers can boat from Barnum to Bloomington (seven miles). Call 304-355-2346 for dates and other information.

Boating is for day trips only (in and out the same day).

In comparison to other bodies of water in the county, this lake is only sparsely used, but greatly enjoyed by those who find their way into this remote area. In the future, I am sure, a road will be built around the shore of the lake. A seldom-used Western Maryland Railroad track is located close to the lake on the Maryland side.

It is an unusual lake in this part of the country, as you must drive 20 miles by car to get from one side to the other!

Jury Finds W.Va. Man Not Guilty Of Burglary, Assault

A Garrett County Circuit Court jury found a Bayard, W.Va., man not guilty of three charges last week. Roy Richard Rinker Jr., 35, was found not guilty of first-degree burglary, first-degree assault, and second-degree assault. Prior to the trial, the presiding judge acquitted Rinker of a reckless endangerment count.

The Garrett County Bureau of Investigation charged Rinker with the four counts following a Sept. 2002 incident, when he allegedly broke into a dwelling along Kempton Road and assaulted a sleeping occupant.

Wal-Mart To Offer Free Diabetes Awareness Event

The Oakland Wal-Mart will host a diabetes awareness event on Saturday, Sept. 6, which will include free blood glucose screenings performed by certified health screeners. The event is slated for 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the store's pharmacy section.

In addition to the screenings, those who stop by the pharmacy may take home a self-assessment risk test and a diabetes resource magazine to learn more about early detection, risk factors, and nutrition tips, among other topics. Product samplings will also be offered by trained staff.

"Diabetes is a leading cause of death and one of the most costly health problems in America," store pharmacy manager Brian Spiker said. "The disease affects more than 14 million people in the United States, and millions of others who aren't aware that they have diabetes – and those numbers continue to grow."

Adorable Adoptables

FULL OF ENERGY AND LOOKING FOR HOMES – These two black Lab siblings, one male and one female, are 6 months old, full of energy, and in need of homes. Also available for adoption from the Garrett County Animal Shelter is Snoozer, above right, a 12-year-old tabby female. "She's spayed, declawed, and ready to go," said a Humane Society spokesperson. Snoozer, however, would like a home without pets or children. Below, left, is Shadow, a one-year-old neutered male, who "really likes attention." Also available is Babe, a 2-year-old keeshond mix. "She's housebroken and loves kids and pets," said the spokesperson. To see these and other pets available for adoption, persons can visit the shelter's new web site at gcadopt.tripod.com. The Humane Society reminds residents and visitors to please put collars and IDs on their pets. Should the pets become lost or stolen, the IDs will speed their safe return to the owners.

"ARE YOU TALKIN' TO ME?" — A juvenile black bear was caught "red-pawed" by a McHenry area homeowner on a recent afternoon as it was helping itself to a finch feeder. The feeder had been hanging in the eaves of the home for over a month, safely out of bruin's way, but the residents moved it to ground the previous night in hopes of attracting more birds. The plan was foiled by this youngster, who soon got wind of the tasty scent and decided to help itself to a snack — and, as one can see as the incident unfolded, this bear prefers carryout. Daylight sightings of bears are likely to be increasingly common through the rest of the summer and into the fall, according to Maryland Department of Natural Resources wildlife biologist Clarissa Harris. "Adult sows have dispersed their young, who are having to learn to fend for themselves," Harris explained, "and bears of all ages are working to put on the extra weight they'll need to get through this winter's hibernation. It won't be unusual to see a bear at any time of day or night." DNR's Bear Emergency Response Team may be contacted at any hour of day or night through the State Forests and Parks Communications Center at 410-260-8888 for emergencies including instances of bears harming humans, pets, or livestock; an injured or killed bear along a roadway; or a bear that has entered a residence or structure. ## Drug Charges Filed Against McHenry Men

Two McHenry men were arrested on drug charges by the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force this week after a Friday, Aug. 22, search of a Gravelly Run residence recovered suspected marijuana plants and other materials.

Morgan Wiseman, 21, and Sean O'Brien, 20, each face charges of manufacturing marijuana, possession of marijuana, and possession of drug paraphernalia. Wiseman was arrested the night of the search, and O'Brien turned himself in Tuesday after a warrant had been issued for his arrest.

Wiseman was released from the Garrett County Jail on his own recognizance, and O'Brien was released after he posted a $500 bond as set by a District Court commissioner.

Third Squad

Jonathan said. The couple's goal is to have a paramedic staffed ambulance "on the street" in less than three minutes and at the scene in less than 12 minutes. "We plan to combine a volunteer base with paid staff to assure 100 percent coverage of emergency calls," he said.

The staff would be made up of a full-time paid EMT, a full-time paid paramedic, and volunteers, which would provide service 24 hours a day, every day of the year.

Commissioner Fred Holliday wondered if there would be enough volunteers for the company, given the current shortage of EMTs, and if it would drain volunteers from other stations.

"We have no intention of actively recruiting anyone away from other stations," Jamie said. "If they chose to volunteer with us, then we would accept them."

"The volunteers are there," said Shoemake. He said 10 persons have already expressed interest in volunteering for the new company.

The Hamiltons stressed that they were serious about establishing Deep Creek EMS and had researched its feasibility. "It will take $65,000 to get an ambulance on the road," Jonathan said. Of that amount, $30,000 would be needed for a used ambulance, and the remainder would be used for medical equipment, pagers, insurance, and other expenses. It would not include any money for a building.

The couple said they are looking for someone to temporarily house the ambulance. But once grants and donations start coming in, they said, a pole-type building could be constructed. The building would include amenities such as a kitchen and sleeping quarters for the volunteers. "We know this is expensive," Jonathan said, "but we have also found out that funding is available."

Commissioner Ernie Gregg said he did not doubt the Hamiltons' sincerity, but their proposal came up rather quickly and the board was not yet ready to make a decision. He suggested that they discuss their plan further with the Garrett County Fire and Rescue Association.

Commissioner Dave Beard also suggested that the Hamiltons prepare a business plan so that they may have a better estimate of the company's cost.

The couple said the Small Business Center at Garrett College was helping them with their plan. They are also seeking advice from successful local business persons.

"Obviously, we can't solve every problem," Jonathan said about resolving emergency medical care problems, "but we're going to do the best we can." They said they will proceed with their plans even if the commissioners do not support it.

"If patient care is the bottom line, it's a no brainer," Phil Rook, assistant director of Emergency Management, said about establishing a third emergency service. "But it's obvious, there's a plethora of issues to discuss."

Noted Branson Performer To Take PSC Stage

Branson, Mo., based performer Barbara Fairchild and her husband, Roy Morris, will bring their musical variety show to the Church-McKee Arts Center at Potomac State College in Keyser, W.Va., for a benefit concert this Saturday, Aug. 30. The doors for the Mineral County Historical Foundation fund-raiser will open at 6:30 p.m., and the concert will begin at 7:30 p.m.

With a show that combines the musical styles of country, gospel, patriotic, and pop with family-oriented comedy, Fairchild is noted for entertaining audiences of all ages. The program will include salutes to area soldiers and veterans representing various service branches. Local veterans organizations and military personnel have been invited to participate, and all veterans and military personnel and their family members are encouraged to attend.

Best known for her smash signature Columbia Records crossover hit, "The Teddy Bear Song," Fairchild has traveled throughout the world and has been a favorite artist among U. S. soldiers through her many USO tours across Europe. Other Fairchild country hits include "Kidstuff," "Babydoll," and "Vincent," and her major southern gospel recordings include "Could You Walk a Mile, "Turn Right and Go Straight," and "Apples of Gold."

Fairchild's work has been recognized with two Grammy nominations, and she has made a number of appearances on such nationally broadcast programs as Johnny Carson's The Tonight Show, Hee Haw, Nashville Now, and The Grand Ole Opry.

Tickets for the concert are available for $12 in advance, and $15 at the door. Children under 5 will be admitted free if accompanied by a parent. For locations of advance ticket sales, or other information, persons may call 304-788-3989 or 301-387-9275.

The structure will eventually become the Historical Society's repository for historical artifacts, documents, and information from across Mineral County and the region.

GOSPEL DUO WINS NATIONAL AWARD – Local gospel music duo Chester and Isolina Gaither have been recognized by their musical peers as the top performing duo in the eastern United States. The Kempton couple received the honor Saturday after a five-night winnowing process involving a number of top performers at the Country Gospel Music Association Convention in Nashville. "We sang 'I'm Free' for our final selection," Chester Gaither said, "and when we were done we got a very long standing ovation and a curtain call. We were very honored." The selection puts the duo in the running for the top International CGMA award, which will be presented in October in Branson, Mo. The Gaithers' first CD, From the Streets to the Cross, is slated for release this week, and their original title cut tells the story of Isolina Gaither's life journey, which included living as a drug addict on the streets of the Bronx. Her story is the subject of an upcoming television documentary that will be aired on the SkyAngel satellite network in coming weeks.

The seven-member group was formed in 1973 and quickly established itself in all aspects of country and bluegrass music. The group, under the direction of guitarist and vocalist Senior Chief Musician Wayne C. Taylor, is a specialty unit of The United States Navy Band in Washington, D.C.

Touring the country each year in support of Navy Recruiting, they have also performed with such artists as Charlie Daniels, Vince Gill, and Boots Randolph. Country Current performed at the "Branson Cares-Help Start the Healing" tribute to the citizens of Oklahoma City at the Glen Campbell Goodtime Theatre in Branson, Mo., on Memorial Day 1995. Other credits throughout their 29-year history include the Grand Ole Opry, Wheeling Jamboree, and the Academy of Country Music Awards show.

In March 2000, the group was featured at the Mississippi Country-Bluegrass Spectacular in Columbia, Miss. In February 1999, the group performed with country music singer David Ball as part of The Pentagon Pops Musical Salute to America's "Guardians of Freedom" at DAR Constitution Hall in Washington, D.C. In July 1998, the group performed for over 100,000 people at the Fort Vancouver 4th of July Fireworks Spectacular in Ft. Vancouver, Wash.

NAVY CONCERT SLATED BY GLAF – Country Current, the U.S. Navy's premier country music group,' will perform a concert this Sunday, Aug. 31, at 4 p.m., in front of the bath house at the Deep Creek Lake State Park. This free concert is presented by Garrett Lakes Arts Festival. Band members are Wayne C. Taylor, senior chief musician; Keith M. Arneson, chief musician; John H. Emrich, chief musician; Frank L. In June 1994, they appeared at the Nova Scotia International Tattoo, and in September 1992 at the Swedish Army Tattoo in Stockholm. In February 1989, they entertained Chinese officials in Beijing at a dinner hosted by former President and Mrs. George Bush.

In 1996, Country Current released a compact disc entitled, Sugarland Run, featuring 18 country and bluegrass standards and originals. The CD received a rave review in the September 1997 issue of Bluegrass Now Magazine. The group's latest CD entitled, Havin' A Ball, was released in the spring of 1999. The group also received national acclaim during Operation Desert Storm for an original composition titled "We Are With You," which aired on ABC's Good Morning America, TNN's Nashville Now, and over 500 U.S. and Canadian radio and television stations. Country Current appeared on CBS's This Morning in July 1994, and was featured for four consecutive years on the Department of the Interior's "Salute to America" Independence Day Radio Program airing on over 1,600 stations nationwide.

The group also features an acoustic bluegrass quartet that was featured in 2002 at the Folk Festival in Anchorage, Alaska, and in 2001 at the Mississippi Bluegrass Reunion in Purvis, Miss. In 2000, they were featured at the Withlacoochee River Bluegrass Jamboree (Dunnellon, Fla.) and the 20th Annual Music in the Mountains Festival (Summerville, W.Va.).

They were also featured at the 1999 Kissimmee Bluegrass (Fla.) and Winterhawk Bluegrass (Hillsdale, N.Y.) Festivals. The bluegrass quartet performed at the 2000 and 1997 International Bluegrass Music Association's "Awards Show" and "FanFest" in Louisville, Ky., and in 1994 they performed at the IBMA's "Showcase" in Owensboro, Ky. In 1995, the quartet performed with bluegrass legend Bill Monroe in Rosine, Ky. Other festival appearances include "Wintergrass" (Tacoma, Wash.), "Festival of the Bluegrass" (Lexington, Ky.), and "Cherokee" (Cherokee, N.C.).

Constantly in demand as part of the Navy Band's "Music in the Schools" program, they offer a variety of concerts and demonstrations that complement music curricula in area schools.

OTT To Present Play Reading For Children

Our Town Theatre will present its final play reading for the summer season on Sunday, Aug. 31, with this last one designed for both children and adults, according to Jane Avery, who is spearheading this project.

The reading will be of a dramatic adaptation of E. B. White's The Trumpet of the Swan. The play reading will be held at 7 p.m.

"The Trumpet of the Swan parallels E.B. White's other works for children (such as Charlotte's Web and Stuart Little) in its combination of the human world and the animal world in dialogue and understanding," Avery said. "The play is about a young trumpeter swan named Louis who can't make any sounds, so he learns to play the trumpet. Local musician Tom Simpson has agreed to play the trumpet for the reading.

"Anyone who wishes to read a part in the play may do so," Avery added, "or you can just sit back and relax and listen."

The reading is free of charge, although donations are always appreciated, she said. Refreshments will be served.

Questions may be directed to Our Town Theatre at 301-334-5640, option 3.

Produced by special arrangement with the Dramatic Publishing Company, this performance is funded in part by the Garrett County Arts Council and the Maryland State Arts Council.

Baptist Church Slates Concert At State Park

Heaven's Mountain Band will give a free, outdoor bluegrass/country concert of spiritual music this Sunday, Aug. 31, beginning at 7 p.m. in the amphitheater at Deep Creek Lake State Park. The concert will be Deep Creek Baptist Church's final Evening in the Park event for the season.

"Attend the Navy Band concert in the afternoon and come back for this event in the evening," said a church spokesperson. "Prepare for some hand clapping."

Participants may sit on the benches at the amphitheater or bring folding chairs. The amphitheater is just a short walk from the Discovery Center parking lot.

WORLD CLASS QUARTET IN OAKLAND

Garrett Lakes Arts Festival. Shanghai String Quartet: Weigang Li, Yi-Wen Jiang (violins), Honggang Li (viola), Nicholas Tzavaras (cello). Haydn: Quartet, op. 76, no. 4 (Sunrise); Yi-Wen Jiang (arr.): China Songs; Beethoven: Quartet, op. 127. Our Town Theatre, Oakland.

The world-renowned Shanghai String Quartet played to a sold-out house as part of the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival on Thursday. The standing ovation they received at the conclusion was, as one listener put it, "what I would have given them after each piece." While someone who was not there might consider that remark a bit "over the top," those who were in attendance would only nod their heads in agreement.

The most talked about piece on the program was the China Songs listed in a prime example of understatement as being "arranged by" second violinist Yi-Wen Jiang. The three songs are actually the foundational material for post-Bartók movements of extended length which had the audience fully engaged. "Yao Dance" teases the ear into thinking that it will be entertaining little plucked imitations of the pipa (Chinese lute) accompanying a bowed erhu (Chinese violin). But the music soon becomes far more than a simple arrangement as rhythmic and harmonic complexities develop. Even the "Shepherd's Song," which often sounds like a sweet lullaby, has shaken off the simplicity of the folk song to become an emotional contemplation of the composer's homeland and his relationship to it.

Anyone familiar with an agrarian community can recognize that the final movement, "Celebrate a Bumper Harvest," describes a rambunctious festival. This includes "drums" as cellist Nicholas Tzavaras was asked to strike the top and side of his instrument and even beat the tailpiece with his bow, all for percussive effect. Cheers erupted from the audience at the work's rousing finish.

The concert's beginning and ending were neatly interlocked by presenting teacher and student – Haydn and Beethoven – in their most mature thoughts on the string quartet genre. But Haydn's Quartet also related well to the China Songs as Haydn uses folk music (especially the droning musette in the "Menuetto's Trio" section) which he unexpectedly twists into darker, less innocent expressions.

The composer's elevation of the half-step motive, which opens the work as part of the "sunrise" effect, became a lucid element of the musical discourse in the hands of the Shanghais. As the motive is turned every which way, their attention to retaining a recognizable shape through carefully nuanced phrasing allowed the listener to enter Haydn's mind and see it working.

This same virtue was present in the first of what are considered Beethoven's "Late Quartets." Again, the building blocks of the music – the motives presented at the outset – were given recognizable nuanced shape, allowing the permutations and evolutions to become apparent.

Both Haydn and Beethoven wrote slow movements of great emotional depth. Haydn, in this instance, seems to have looked to his own emotional life, something which music of his period rarely does. This degree of personal intensity created a balance with Beethoven, whose evolution as a person can be traced in his ability and desire to reveal himself.

The Shanghai Quartet brought forth all the drama by unfolding the music with great care. Yes, the finale seemed to have been no holds barred, but it all rested on artistic control of the highest degree.

DARKNESS

I appreciate the darkness I am walking in.
I bathe in the darkness.
I wear the darkness as a cloak – the darkness sweeps from the cloak like a train following my steps.
I smell the darkness – the smell is the smell of the blackberry cigar I smoke –
sweet and smoky.
I hear the darkness, and the darkness sounds of the stream overflowing, overflowing, overflowing and making a ripple.
I want to jump in the darkness, feel the wetness of the darkness – the wetness will be cold and dark.
I want to swim in the deep, deep, deep darkness.
Swim and turn and kick and paddle; paddle my arms in the darkness.
I smoke the darkness and see the stars, and know I will share those stars forever every night forever with those on continents far away – and we will all be bathed in darkness – we will wear the darkness as a cloak and pull up the darkness as a hood over our heads.
We will turn to look at the darkness and will see the whites of our brothers' and sisters' eyes – our brothers and sisters standing on those other continents with whom we share stars, stars, stars and the darkness will fall down on us in America, in Africa, in Europe, in Asia, in South America.
We will dance
to the beat of the darkness, to the grassy sound of the darkness, and we will drink the darkness –
a tea brewed with honey and orange – and clove from a cup of darkness, and our cup will always be full.
We will laugh in the darkness and run our hands through the darkness, and the darkness will feel like sand.
We will watch our children and our grandchildren build in the sand, castles and turtles.
The darkness will be swept, washed away by shells seeping in from the sea.
We will sleep in the darkness.
We will sleep in the threads of darkness, and we will dream.

Grantsville After-School Program Has Another Successful Summer

The Partners After School Program at Grantsville recently concluded another successful summer. The summer program was a coordinated effort between Garrett County Community Action, the Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families, and the Gar-rett County Health Department.

According to a program spokesperson, 50 students were enrolled this year, and enjoyed a summer of various educational, recreational, and cultural activities, including a production of Annie at the Allenbury Dinner Theater. Among the chaperones for that trip were Mike and Cindy Downton, members of the advisory committee.

The students attended six weeks of swimming lessons at the YMCA in Cumberland. Caleb Walters, Aaron Wilburn, Derek Silbaugh, and Ruthanne Walters were recognized as the most improved swimmers.

The students also partici-pated in the Nature Explorer program at various state parks. At Deep Creek Lake State Park, they took a boat trip and learned about the history of the lake. At Rocky Gap, they participated in a water olympics, which was organized by the service-learning students.

The 10 service-learning students who assisted with the program were Pennie Durst with 75 hours, Katrina Durst, 65, CJ Fazenbaker, 35, Alyson McKenzie, 40, Aaron Menges, 85, Dan Miller, 55, Jayme Miller, 70, Kayla Nazelrod, 60, Siobhan Wilcock, 75, and Tiffany Wilt, 85. They volunteered a total of 645 hours, and for their dedication to the program were given a Wal-Mart gift certificate.

The Partners After School students also participated in the Developmental Assets Program. Topics covered were support, empowerment, boundaries and expectations, constructive use of time, commitment to learning, positive values, social competencies, and positive identity.

"The summer reading program proved to be another success," said the spokesperson, with the students reading a total of 33,426 pages. Their reading incentive was a trip to Idlewild Park. The students voted to purchase two books, Old Yeller and Verdi, for the new library in Grantsville as their learn and serve activity. The books will be dedicated when the library opens.

As a family-oriented project, program participants were given a bird house kit to be completed at home. Volunteerism from the parents continued with the summer program, with 83 percent of the parents participating, noted the spokesperson.

Program staff members for the summer were Karen Wood, coordinator; Denise Fazenbaker, Jeanette Bland, and Wayne Menges, aides; and Melissa Green, Partners After School Program at Accident coordinator.

The participants held their closing ceremony for the program at New Germany State Park, with 80 persons in attendance. The theme for the event was the 1970s, and parents and students dressed in the '70's fashion.

The fall activities of th Partners After School Program will begin on Sept. 2. For further information or registration forms, persons may call Karen Wood at 301-387-9157 or Linda Green, program director, at 888-877-8403.

McDaniel Named To Dean's List

Allegany College of Maryland recently noted that Jonnie Jo McDaniel, Oakland, was inadvertently omitted from the dean's list for the summer 2003 session.

The 56 students named to the list earned a 3.8 grade-point average or high-er on a 4.0 scale and were enrolled in five or more semester hours of course work.

Moomau Earns Highest Honors At McDaniel College

Katelin Moomau, a 2001 graduate of Southern High School, has received "highest honors" on the McDaniel College dean's list for the spring 2002 semester.

During the same semester, she was selected to serve as lobbying intern with the Maryland Independent College and University Association (MICUA). The organization is headquartered in Annapolis. After she and other college applicants were interviewed, Moomau was selected on a competitive basis.

Additionally, Moomau is the vice president of membership of the Gamma Sigma Sigma Service Sorority a (community service organization), district chairperson of Maryland Student Legislators, and a peer mentor and teacher's assistant for the second year in a row at McDaniel.

A member of the college's Democratic Club, Moomau was inducted into Phi Sigma Alpha, a political science honor society, and plans to apply to law school upon completion of her undergraduate degree.

She has also studied jewelry and lapidary at McDaniel and recently started a business: Kate Taylor Jewelry. She premiered her beaded and silver jewelry pieces last year at Mtn. Arts Cooperative's Autumn Glory Show and Sale. Her jewelry is currently available at the Garrett Arts Council Gallery, Oakland, as well as other artisan galleries.

She is the daughter of Henry Moomau, Oakland, and Mikal McCartney, a former Oakland resident now residing in Annapolis.

DeArmon Drops Challenge To Take Bartlett's 6th District Seat

By Rolando Garcia
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON - After two unsuccessful bids to unseat Rep. Roscoe Bartlett, R-Frederick, Democrat Donald DeArmon is throwing in the towel. DeArmon has filed notice with the Federal Election Commission that he closed his fundraising account, leaving the field to Bartlett, who reported raising about $20,000 this year and having a total of $133,000 in his campaign war chest.

"After running twice, [DeArmon] decided he should spend his personal energies on his family and his career," said Paul Littman, DeArmon's campaign treasurer.

DeArmon was on vacation and could not be reached for comment.

But while DeArmon is giving up, Maryland Democratic Party officials said they still hope to mount a vigorous challenge to Bartlett in the heavily Republican 6th District. "[Bartlett] is not invulnerable, and a good candidate could put up a fight," said Josh White, executive director of the Maryland Democratic Party.

DeArmon, a veteran congressional staffer, lost to Bartlett in 2000 and 2002 by wide margins, but White said the party is not ready to give up. Several individuals have expressed interest in the race, he said, although none have yet declared.

The prospective recruit must not only be able to raise enough money to be competitive, White said, but must also be willing to campaign hard and articulate a moderate platform that contrasts with Bartlett's more conservative record.

Littman said the party would need to recruit a moderate to conservative Democrat in tune with western Maryland values to have a chance of winning the seat.

While Bartlett's fund raising this year is much less than the six-figure bundles raised by the state's seven other House members, the conservatism of western Maryland voters and Bartlett's painstaking constituent service means he has the luxury of a leisurely fundraising operation, said Eric Sutton, executive director of the Maryland Republican Party.

"The Democrats' chances of winning that seat are slim to none, and I'd be surprised if f they put up a strong candidate," Sutton said.

Most of Bartlett's contributions — about 90 percent — are from individuals, and the rest from political action committees. In past election cycles, Bartlett has received about one-fourth of his campaign funds from PACs, according to the Center for Responsive Politics, a nonpartisan political watchdog group.

With the general election still 15 months away, Bartlett has few campaign expenditures, spending only $7,000 for the first half of the year, mostly on printing costs and donations to county Republican committees.

Besides a fund-raising letter sent to supporters earlier this year, the campaign has seen little activity so far, said Bartlett spokeswoman Sallie Taylor. She said he does not plan an extensive fund-raising effort unless a credible Democratic challenger emerges. "It all depends on what kind of race we have," Taylor said. "[Bartlett] doesn't raise money for recreation."

Bartlett's campaigns are traditionally relatively low-cost affairs. He spent less than any other Maryland congressman in the 2002 election and was outspent by DeArmon in 2000. Bartlett spent about $230,000 in both races.

"The district is a relatively inexpensive one to run in, and Bartlett counts on the high visibility he has gained through 10 years of constituent work and meetings with voters," Taylor said. "The 2001 redistricting process put the district even further out of Democrats' reach by adding more Republican areas to it and reducing the need for Bartlett to run expensive campaigns."

Bartlett's conservative record is well known in the district and is a good fit for western Maryland voters, according to Taylor. "People here know Congressman Bartlett and where he stands on the issues," she said. "All the money in the world won't save your seat if you're not a good match for your district and you're not representing your constituents."

It is no wonder that this young woman looks to the sea, as she appears to reflect upon the present and perhaps to ponder the mystery that is her future. Will she be able to make wise decisions concerning a possible husband for her and a father for the children she dreams of? Will her career choices give her satisfaction and fulfillment? How will she balance the two? So many questions to answer as she looks to the sea...

In his poem, Young Sea, Carl Sandburg wrote, "Let... the young come, says the sea...Let them kiss my face and hear me. I am the last work; and I tell where storms and stars come from." Perhaps he was thinking of our Creator as he personified the omnipotence of the sea, for indeed God is reflected in the vast waters He created.

God's vastness and omnipresence, the strength of the waves, His assurance through the dependable rhythms of the tides, the light of God's wisdom reflected upon the darkness of the sea... all of these reflect our Heavenly Father's love for us.

Won't you let life reflect the presence of God in your heart? Begin this Sabbath as you visit you local house of worship.

The Immortality of the Soul

At some time or another, we have all wondered what will become of us after our death. Some assume that their personal identity will continue pretty much as it is now, but with their soul transported to another world (i.e., to heaven or hell). Others wonder whether they will continue to exist at all after death, fearing that their personal identity will be annihilated with the death of their bodies. At a fairly young age, children often ask their parents about death, because it is evident even to children that death seems radically different from life. Ironically, we are all in the position of children, since none of us knows for sure what will happen to us after death. We do know that nothing in this world is ever completely annihilated, and that energy and mass are conserved. When plants and animals die, they do not disappear, but instead are reabsorbed into the earth to become the material for new life. By analogy, it is reasonable to assume that our souls are not annihilated at death, but rather are transformed and, perhaps like our bodies, are reabsorbed into the wider ocean of spirit that surrounds us. This view, which gets support from both science and religion, lends credence to the idea that death is a transformation, not annihilation.

Lo! I tell you a mystery. We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed... For this perishable nature must put on the imperishable, and this mortal nature must put on immortality.

Therapeutic Effect of Good Bacteria

Probiotics are over-the-counter dietary supplements that use strains of so-called "good bacteria" to prevent or fight disease. Recent research is showing that probiotics can be effective in treating two forms of irritable bowel syndrome (IBS) and preventing allergic conditions in infants. In people with diarrhea-predominant IBS, a recent study showed that quality of life improved significantly when people took probiotics containing the bacteria Lactobacillus and Bifidobacterium alone or in combination with the antibiotic ciprofloxacin.

In another study, probiotics containing only Lactobacillus GG given immediately before birth to expectant mothers provided protection to the infant from atopic eczema. If the mother took the probiotic two to four weeks before deliv ery, the risk to the infant of atopic eczema was decreased by 43%. Also, if the mother was breast-feeding, this high level of risk reduction lasted an additional six months after the child was born.

'Keen Eddie' had high quality, low ratings

Mark Valley

Q: What happened to Fox's "Keen Eddie"? It seemed the only bright light among the dim bulbs of summer programming. –Bob and Carol in Sarasota, Fla.

A: The action comedy starring Mark Valley was another heartbreaking case of a fresh and original series that was largely ignored by the viewing public, despite generally strong reviews.

It would have been nice if Fox had somehow stuck with this promising jewel, but networks these days are under intense pressure from affiliate stations and corporate executives to yank programs that show little signs of growth. ABC took a chance and relaunched its spring flop "The Family" this summer, only to watch that show bomb resoundingly yet again.

Q: My wife and I are stumped. Where is the "hotel" used in Fox's "Paradise Hotel" located? The setting is beautiful. Is it a real hotel where we could book a room for the night? –Michael Schadek, Columbus, Ohio.

A: To sustain the show's fantasy element, Fox adamantly declines to confirm or deny the location. But the setting has been "outed" on a number of Web sites as a lavish Acapulco residence formerly known as Casa Arabesque, a villa that once belonged to the Baron and Baroness di Portanova of Italy.

Friends of the wealthy couple were entertained in lavish style at the villa, which reportedly had 28 bedrooms, 26 baths, plus multiple swimming pools and waterfalls.

After the baron and baroness died, her brother inherited the property, which he rents out for extravagant weddings, parties and occasional showbiz projects (the villa was featured in the James Bond film "A Licence to Kill"). The new owner says, however, that he hopes to convert at least part of the property into a boutique hotel within a year or so.

Q: On a courtroom drama, what does it mean when an attorney asks for "permission to treat as a hostile witness"? –Richard T. Walters, Hamilton, Ga.

A: Basically, the attorney is asking the judge to allow him or her more freedom to ask what might otherwise be considered leading questions, since the witness might not otherwise freely volunteer the information he seeks. A hostile witness is one whose testimony is not favorable to the party who calls him or her as a witness.

Q: I heard that Richard Dawson married a contestant from "Family Feud." If this is true, when did it happen? –Barbara May, Lindenhurst, N.Y.

A: It's true, believe it or not. On April 6, 1981, Dawson, then 48, met 27-year-old Gretchen Johnson when her family appeared on "Feud." They eventually married in 1991, and they have a daughter, Shannon Nicole. Now 70, Dawson, who also has two sons from his previous marriage to actress Diana Dors, describes himself as "happily semi-retired."

Ask The Everyday Scientist

• by Dr. Thomas P. Sheahen

Would skywriters prefer a windless day or a day with a certain kind of wind?

The main thing they need is no turbulence, because the air swirling around breaks up and dissolves the letter pattern. "I love you forever" written in the clouds doesn't mean so much when the letters blow away in five seconds.

If the wind speed is zero, skywriters will have no problem; but you don't often get that at altitudes where the skywriting smoke is released. (By the way, the "smoke" is just small, floating, light-reflecting particles.) If the wind flow is "laminar" – meaning that the streamlines all go alongside each other – then the smoke pattern will stay together and the written words will still be readable. But if the air is turbulent, the smoke will get broken up and the skywriting will become illegible very swiftly. A very windy day is likely to have turbulent wind conditions, so skywriters generally skip such days. A gentle, steady breeze works out fairly well.

DCL Managers Issue Lake Buffer Strip Reminders

The staff of the Deep Creek Lake Natural Resource Management Area has issued a reminder to owners of property located adjacent to the state-owned buffer strip at Deep Creek Lake of several important lake regulations.

As the water level drops, many permit holders are seeking to install or repair shoreline erosion control (SEC) walls in their areas of use. If any permit holders want to install a new wall, they must first apply with a shoreline erosion control packet available at the Lake Management Office. Existing structures may be repaired after a special permit is submitted and approved by the Lake Management staff.

Another important reminder for property owners is that the burning of brush and debris is prohibited on the buffer strip and the conservation easement buydown areas. "Absolutely no cutting, trimming, and/or pruning of vegetation is permitted unless authorized by the Lake Management Office," a spokesperson said. "Hazardous trees and limbs will be inspected and considered by the Lake Management staff for removal."

All permit holders are to remove their docks from the lake to an area above the high water mark (2,462 feet) before Monday, Dec. 1.

For more information, persons may call the DCL State Park office at 301-387-4111.

GC United Way To Benefit From Wisp Chair Sale

The United Way of Garrett County will benefit this weekend from a unique event. The Wisp at Deep Creek Mountain Resort is replacing its last two double chairlifts, constructed in 1979 and 1981, with two new triple chairlifts. A limited number of the old chairs will be sold during the resort's annual Labor Day Sale, Aug. 29 through Sept. 1.

The chairs are $500 each or $400 with the purchase of an unlimited season pass. United Way will receive $50 from each sale. The organization hopes to raise $2,000 during the sale.

"We are so fortunate to live in a caring community where businesses, like the Wisp, get involved with United Way of Garrett County," said Robin Murray, campaign chairperson. "Without the support and dedication of our businesses and individual donors, many of our affiliates would not be able to provide the necessary services for our county residents and neighbors. This is a great event to assist the fund-raising committee in meeting this year's goal of $100,000. We are grateful that the Wisp has presented this opportunity to our organization."

Hank Thies, general manager of Wisp, agreed. "We had approximately 40 chairs left after the tear down of the last of the double chairlifts and thought they would make a unique collector's item, especially for those owning a home at the lake," he said. "We also liked the idea of helping to serve those in our community. Donating a portion of the sale of the chairs allowed us to achieve this."

In addition to this fund-raising effort, the United Way will hold its third annual Bear Claw Snow Tubing event during the week of Jan. 26, 2004. Two dollars from every full-price snow tubing ticket will benefit the United Way during that week.

The United Way of Garrett County, formed in April of 2000, is fully supported by contributions from individuals and businesses in the community. Affiliated organizations have met the requirements Garrett County by delivering community services to improve the quality of life for the county. Any non-profit organization meeting the human needs of the community is welcome to apply for affiliation.

Volunteer representatives from the United Way of Garrett County are available to any businesses or organization interested in learning more about the agency. For further information on volunteering or supporting, or to receive an application for affiliation, persons may call the United Way of Garrett County at 301-359-9697 or visit the web site at garrettunitedway.org. Contributions may be mailed to the United Way of Garrett County, P.O. Box 394, Oakland, MD 21550.

"Bringing Up Boys" To Be Presented By Local Church

Oak Park Church of the Brethren, Oakland, will present a live satellite telecast of "Bringing Up Boys" on Tuesday, Sept. 9, from 7:30 to 9 p.m. The program, held in conjunction with the Church Communication Network, will focus on the challenges involved in rearing boys in today's society.

"We as parents are raising the next generation of men who will either lead with honor and integrity or abandon every good thing they have inherited," says Dr. James Dobson, the program's presenter. Dobson holds a Ph.D. in child development from the University of Southern California and is considered an authority on Christian family issues.

"Behavioral research shows that young males today are in serious trouble," said a church spokesperson. "They need special care and guidance during each state of their developmental journey. Kids are being targeted, exploited, and manipulated. Because boys are inherently less stable than girls, they are more vulnerable to the temptations and dangers of the world."

There is no charge for the program. Oak Park Church of the Brethren is located at 110 Church Lane across from Southern High School. For more information, persons may call 301-334-2243.

After-School Program Wraps Up At Loch Lynn

The Partners After School Program at Loch Lynn Elementary School concluded its summer session recently during a gathering at Herrington Manor State Park with approximately 45 people in attendance. The Partners Program is a coordinated effort between the Garrett County Community Action Committee, the Office of Children and Families, Garrett County Health Department, and Frostburg State University's AmeriCorps Program.

The Loch Lynn after-school program was staffed by Mendy Paugh, program coordinator; Patricia Falkner, program aide; Ben Bernard, AmeriCorps member; and Melissa Soult, coordinator of the Southern Middle School Partners After School Program. Phil Gordon and Ashley Thrift assisted at Loch Lynn, along with five service-learning students: Matthew Tasker, Tiffany Wotring, Eric Dumire, Ashley Myers, and Megan Soult.

The program enrolled 32 students, and the average daily attendance was 23 students. The summer schedule included swimming lessons at the Wisp hotel pool, and the Junior Ranger Program at Deep Creek Lake State Park, where the students took part in a variety of activities, including a boat ride and nature hikes. The Junior Ranger Program also included lessons on boat safety, the environment and nature, and various types of wildlife.

Another aspect of the Partners Program was a "serve and learn" project, during which students constructed wooden flower boxes that were distributed thoughout Loch Lynn.

Sadie Liller of the Health Department's Outreach Program visited the after-school program participants weekly to conduct sessions on topics relating to summer and health including tobacco awareness, sun safety, and bicycle safety. She also distributed bicycle safety helmets to the students.

Various trips were taken during the summer including going to Lakemont Park, Woodland Zoo, Del-Groso Park, and Broadford Park. The students also took part in activities and crafts throughout the summer.

The Partners After School Program at Loch Lynn will begin its school-year session on Tuesday, Sept. 2. Third- through fifth-graders who reside in the Loch Lynn or Mtn. THE SUN – In September, the duration of sunlight shrinks by more than two minutes each day. September 1 has 13 hours and 4 minutes of sunlight, and Sept. 30 has 11 hours and 50 minutes of sunlight. September opens with 6:46 a.m. sunrises, while the last day of the month will have a 7:13 a.m. sunrise. Early September sunsets are about 7:50 p.m., which fall back to 7:03 p.m. as the month ends. In September both dawn and dusk last about an hour, and in the middle portion of the month one can view the fainter stars as late as 6 a.m. and as early as 8:20 p.m.

THE MOON – September opens with a crescent moon in the western dusk. By Sept. 3, the evening moon will have grown to half full. For a few days before and after this date, the moon (then resembling a letter "D") is at its best for crater- and mountain-spotting with binoculars and telescope. The moon will appear close to the brilliant planet Mars on Sept. 9. The moon will be fullest on the evening of Sept. 10, then appearing in western Pisces. This is the Harvest Moon, the full moon that offers the most extra evening moonlight in the nights that follow. By Sept. 19 the moon will have shifted into the morning sky, not rising till after midnight. On the morning of Sept. 20 the crescent moon will appear near the bright planet Saturn. On Sept. 23 the moon is last seen in the eastern dawn; as September ends, the moon reappears as a thin crescent in the western dusk.

THE BRIGHT PLANETS – Our nearest planetary neighbors appear as points of light that shine steady, unlike the bright night stars that twinkle. The brilliant planet Venus remains hidden in the sun's glare during September. Mars is a brilliant object on September evenings, shining with a yellow tint low in the South. Saturn shines brightly high in the south at dawn. In late September, both Jupiter and Mercury can be seen low in the eastern dawn, with Mercury lower.

SEPTEMBER'S BEST SIGHTS – Mars is spectacular in the southern evening sky, outshining all of the evening stars by a factor of 10. Mars can be identified by its steady yellow light. The brightest evening star is white-blue Vega, shining high in the west. Vega is part of a trio of bright stars called the Summer Triangle, whose longer sides point towards the southern horizon. High in the north is Cassiopeia, a zigzag pattern of five moderately bright stars. The Big Dipper is low in the north-northwest, with its two rightmost stars pointing up to the North Star.

SEPTEMBER ASTRONOMY ACTIVITIES – The Frostburg State Planetarium will reopen for the fall on Sunday, Sept. 7. Our September presentation is "Our Earth, Skies of Mars, and Marswatch." Planetarium showings get under way every Sunday at 4 and 7 p.m., with each program lasting about 45 minutes.

The Cumberland Astronomy Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 19, at the LaVale library. All sky gazers are welcome.

Dr. Doyle writes this column for beginners who would like to identify the brightest stars, planets, and sights in their backyards. To ask questions, or request a free brochure or sky charts, persons may call the FSU Planetarium at 301-687-4270 and press 4. Doyle hosts "SkyWatch," a brief program on days of the week and sky sights, that airs on weekday evenings just before 9 p.m. on WFWM on 91.9 FM in western Garrett County and at 96.3 FM in the Oakland area. Doyle's e-mail address is rdoyle@frostburg.edu.

MLP Man Cited For DUI After Wreck Saturday

A Mtn. Lake Park man was arrested and charged with drunk driving after a single-vehicle accident Saturday along Green Glade Road, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Nathan Thomas Thayer, 18, was apparently driving too fast for road conditions when his vehicle hit a fixed object at about 1:30 a.m., and was charged with driving while impaired (DUI), police said.

Thayer was released after posting $2,500 bond.

GCSO Seeking Information On Three Incidents

The Garrett County Sheriff's Office is currently seeking information in reference to three incidents of destruction of property that occurred in the Oakland area sometime between Saturday at approximately 5 p.m. and Sunday at 8:30 a.m.

Police observed four large windows and a window in the front door of Fitzwater Furniture had been damaged possibly from a BB/pellet gun. The second incident occurred at a residence along Dennett Road, where a window was possibly shot with a BB gun, police said. It was reported that the third incidence was a vehicle that was shot three times by a BB gun along Oakland-Sang Run Road.

Persons with any information regarding these incidents are urged to contact the sheriff's office at 301-334-1911 or Crime Solvers at 301-334-1975.

Crellin Water System
Notice of Violation
Surface Water Treatment Technique
May 2003

The Garrett County Dept. of Public Utilities is providing the following notice regarding the Crellin Water System. The springs for the water system have been evaluated for protection against surface water influence as required by the Surface Water Treatment Rule (SWTR), as adopted in the Code of Maryland; COMAR 26.04.01, Quality of Drinking Water in Maryland. The spring was determined to be under the direct influence of surface water by the Maryland Dept. of the Environment. As a result, this source requires additional treatment, such as filtration, or replacement, or replacement with a protected water source. Federal and state regulations require that the Crellin Water System install filtration.

What is the Department of Public Utilities doing?
The Crellin Water System disinfects the drinking water that is produced from the spring. The drinking water is tested monthly for coliform bacteria and results have met state and federal standards.
The Department of Public Utilities is in the process of testing the design for a new water treatment facility. After the pilot test is completed, design for the project will proceed. Construction is expected to begin March 2004.

What should I do?
People with severely compromised immune systems, infants and some elderly may be at risk. These individuals should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. General guidelines on ways to lesson the risk of infection by microbes are available from EPA Safe Drinking Water Act Hotline (800-426-4791). If you have specific health concerns, consult your physician.

What does this mean?
This is not an emergency. This notification is provided to advise Crellin Water customers of the treatment requirements for their water system. Any questions or concerns should be directed to Allen Festerman at 301-387-9141. Please share this information with others that may find it useful.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• It's staggering to consider the diversity that exists on the continent of Africa. On that one continent, there are more than 50 countries and 600 languages. That averages, out to 12 different languages in each country. It makes you wonder how business and the normal daily transactions of life get done.

• It's been asserted that there are more plastic flamingos in the United States than real ones.

• Have you ever heard of a lipogram? It's a work of literature that deliberately omits at least one letter of the alphabet. You don't see many of them in bookstores these days. In 1939, though, Ernest Vincent Wright published a book called "Gadsby," which didn't use the letter "e" once in the entire work. No one has heard of it nowadays; it's certainly not a great work of literature. But what a technical accomplishment! Could you write even a single page of coherent plot and dialogue without using the most common letter in the English language?

• America once issued a 5-cent bill.

• There was once a statute in Virginia that stated that chickens could only lay eggs between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. I wonder how it was enforced?

• If you're ever in Austin, Minnesota, be sure to stop by the Museum of Spam. Yes, Spam.

• Most children learn pretty early that if you grab a lizard by the tail, the tail will break off. What's not commonly known is why: The broken-off tail wiggles for a few seconds, thus distracting the predator and giving the lizard time to escape.

• Across the entire globe, lightning strikes about 6,000 times per minute.

A. I contacted several dealers who specialize in older books. A first edition in excellent condition and with the original dust jacket is worth about $25. The autographed note perhaps around $15. For a second opinion, you might want to contact an established book dealer.

Others who have written me about books, please make note: I recommend several, including Kevin Ransom, P.O. ### Begging for Food

Q. Is it OK for dogs and cats to beg for food? My cat meows at me all through dinner, and my mom says that's not normal. How can I get the cat to stop? — Jason L., Palm Bay, Fla.

A. Well, of course it's not OK for pets to beg at the table — after all, it's bad manners (for people, too) and can be very annoying.

Not all cats beg, but many do. Cats can be fickle and unpredictable, and while some won't come near the table, preferring to relax in another, suddenly quiet, room, others will stand there, meowing louder and louder as they put on their cutest expressions and lift a paw in plaintive request.

Dogs, on the other hand, are known for their begging ability (in my opinion, a dog that isn't interested in a table full of food has something wrong with it).

It's actually possible to train both dogs and cats to stay silent during the meal — perhaps an easier task with dogs, but some progress can be made with your cat as well.

Both pets should be immediately discouraged from begging in a firm voice: by saying "No!" to the dog and hissing at the cat (an unfriendly or warning signal). Dogs should be trained in the basic sit-and-stay command, and you should use that at every meal. Cats that don't respond to your hiss should be removed from the dining room and placed in a room with pet toys until you're done eating.

After behaving themselves through dinner, give them a treat — not people food, but an approved pet treat. Eventually, they'll associate certain behaviors with a reward and settle down at family mealtimes.

Waltrip gets better of Bristol once more

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Bristol, Tenn.

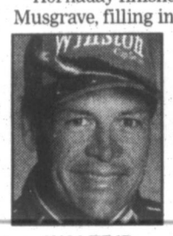
For the second time in his Busch Series career, Michael Waltrip conquered the track that nearly killed him.

Waltrip used a bump-and-run maneuver to take the lead from Ron Hornaday with 35 laps remaining to win Friday's Food City 250 at Bristol Motor Speedway.

Hornaday finished second, while Ted Musgrave, filling in for suspended Jimmy Spencer, took third. Shane Hmiel and Kevin Harvick completed the top five.



WALTRIP

In April 1990, Waltrip crashed into the wall, destroying his car but escaping with no serious injuries in one of the ugliest wrecks in NASCAR history.

He won a Busch race three years later at Bristol but had run 14 races at Bristol without a victory until Friday night.

"Ten years later, we're back," Waltrip said.

Hornaday said he wasn't upset to be bumped from the top spot.

"I knew he was going to catch me, and I was going to give him a corner anyway," Hornaday said. "But he got into me anyway.

"But that's all right. That's what you have to do at Bristol. I'm just glad I didn't wreck."

The race was slowed by 13 cautions for 73 laps, including one on Lap 204 for Matt Kenseth's spin in Turn 2.

Waltrip, Hornaday and Kenseth were in the midst of a typical Bristol battle when Kenseth nudged Hornaday from the top spot only to be then spun by Waltrip, who had lost the lead the lap before.

Kenseth, the Winston Cup points leader, returned to the race only to be spun again. He was credited with 25th place.

Harvick led the first 109 laps but was unable to overtake drivers who pitted earlier.

Scott Riggs spun on the last lap but finished ninth, which boosted his points lead over David Green from two to 28. The eighth caution of the race came on Lap 174 when Joey Clanton hit the wall in Turn 4. Clanton felt Jamie McMurray was to blame for his crash, so he waited on the track for McMurray to circle back around.

McMurray swerved at Clanton, prompting NASCAR to order him to report to the NASCAR trailer after the race..

"I just want [McMurray] to know there's going to be payback," Clanton said.

The good fortune that graced Waltrip on Friday night, however, didn't carry over to the next evening. In the Winston Cup race Saturday, Waltrip lost control of his No. 15 Chevrolet on the apron at Bristol. His car slid down the track and was struck by the No. 2 Dodge driven by Rusty Wallace. Both cars were destroyed and Wallace was transported to a local hospital, where he was treated and released.

Waltrip is 18th in the Busch standings and eighth in the Winston Cup standings.

Brash Busch gets win

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Bristol, Tenn.

The brash, young Kurt Busch won the Sharpie 500 at Bristol Motor Speedway Saturday night, but his victory was not without controversy.

NASCAR's reigning bad boy, already on probation for an altercation with Jimmy Spencer at Michigan, continued his on-track attack on the veterans of the sport by knocking Sterling Marlin out of second place on Lap 372 as the two sped into Turn 1.

"He didn't even try to go under you, he just ran into the back of you," Marlin's team manager Tony Glover radioed his driver.

Said Busch to his crew: "Nobody's going to cut me a break tonight. Tell them I'm sorry."

Eight laps later he sped by Kevin Harvick and led the remaining 120 laps to get his fourth win of the season and the eighth of his three-year career.

A good portion of the 164,000 fans in attendance booed as Busch pulled into Victory Lane.

He apologized to Marlin, which drew more boos, then added that the incident with Marlin "somewhat overshadows this."

Second-finishing Harvick said Busch gets booed because "he's a cocky, arrogant punk and he has a really, really bad attitude, but he can wheel a race car."

Jamie McMurray finished third, followed by series points leader Matt Kenseth and Jimmie Johnson.

The race turned out to be far more eventful than the typical fender-bender that races at Bristol can become. There were a Winston Cup-record-tying 20 cautions.

Of the first 375 laps, 102 were run at idle speed as a result of nine caution periods.

The most serious crash occurred in Turn 4 on Lap 89. Michael Waltrip lost control of his No. 15 Chevrolet while trying to pass his Dale Earnhardt Inc. teammate Jeff Green. Waltrip's spinning car slid down the track into the oncoming No. 2 Dodge driven by Rusty Wallace. Both cars were destroyed and Wallace was taken to a local hospital for observation. He was released after tests showed no injuries.

"[Green] squeezed me down a little bit, just doing his job, and I got down on the apron and went sideways," Waltrip said.

Just as he has for nearly every race this season, points leader Matt Kenseth got breaks when he needed them. First, he had a right rear tire begin to deflate on Lap 159. As he slowed on the track, traffic stacked up behind him and Busch wound up spinning Casey Mears. That brought out the caution and allowed Kenseth's crew to replace the tire without losing laps.

He got another break on Lap 223 when the caution flew for a spin between Ted Musgrave and Ricky Craven. Kenseth had been losing positions on the track, but the caution allowed his crew to make adjustments.

Then he took advantage of a late-race caution period to put on four new tires and charge into the top five at the finish.

Kenseth's teammate Mark Martin wasn't so lucky. After running in the lead pack and leading 49 laps, he had to make an extra pit stop on Lap 343 because he drove off with the catch can still attached to his car.

He restarted the race in 26th place and crashed a lap later after contact on the front stretch with the No. 4 Pontiac of Johnny Sauter.

Busch defends actions at Michigan

An unrepentant Kurt Busch defended his actions at Michigan and blamed the media for the controversy surrounding him and Jimmy Spencer.

Busch, meeting with reporters Friday at Bristol Motor Speedway, said his intentional denting of Spencer's car during the Michigan race, which led to a confrontation afterward, was a standard racing maneuver.

"There isn't a race that goes by where someone doesn't employ a racing tactic like Jimmy and I did to one another last week at Michigan," Busch said. — Rick Minter

POST-RACE NOTES

Gordon avoids talking about Playboy article

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Bristol, Tenn.

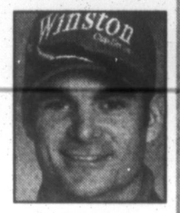
Jeff Gordon found a way to quiet the questions about a Playboy article in which a former perfume salesperson discussed her alleged relationship with the four-time Winston Cup champion.



GORDON

Gordon won the pole for the Sharpie 500 at Bristol Motor Speedway and he quickly indicated that he wouldn't talk about the article featuring Deanna Merryman, who claims she had an 11-month affair with Gordon while he was married.

"It's not even worth commenting on," Gordon said. "All I want to talk about is being fast at Bristol."

He turned a lap at 127.597 mph to break the event qualifying record, formerly held by Rusty Wallace. Thirty-three other drivers — including Wallace — also bettered the three-year-old mark of 125.477 mph.

Gordon finished the race in 28th place after being involved in a wreck.

Parrott joins Sadler

Veteran crew chief Todd Parrott was back at work at Bristol on Friday, saying the problems that caused him to leave Robert Yates Racing earlier this year have been solved.

Parrott had been team manager for Dale Jarrett's No. 88 Ford and Elliott Sadler's No. 38. Now he's crew chief for Sadler.

"There were just some issues and some problems that we had, and they were just problems that needed to be worked out," Parrott said.

He also said he's put behind him the public criticism he got from Jarrett earlier in the year.

"We've all come together, and we're excited to be back racing together," Parrott said.

Sadler finished 38th in Saturday's race.

Another Earnhardt gets a shot

The late Dale Earnhardt helped Richard Childress become a multi-millionaire car owner. Now it appears Childress is making a move to show his appreciation.

Childress said over the weekend that he's in the process of preparing a car for Kerry Earnhardt, Dale's 33-year-old son, to drive in selected Winston Cup events.

"We're probably going to give him a shot at it," Childress said.

Kerry, brother of current driver Dale Earnhardt Jr., has raced in ARCA and Busch for the past five seasons with moderate success. He won his first ARCA race on Father's Day in 2000 at Pocono and registered three wins the next season.

But his career has gone backwards this year. He was dismissed from his FitzBradshaw Racing Busch team earlier this season and his talents were publicly criticized by team co-owner Terry Bradshaw.

But over the years, Childress has been known to hire from the heart. It worked with Robby Gordon, whose abilities were questioned when Childress first hired him but has now become one of the Winston Cup's top drivers.

It might happen again with the lesser known of the Earnhardt sons.

"I think he deserves a chance," Childress said.

Tape of incident reveals a provocative Busch

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

BUSCH

Bristol, Tenn.

A copy of the in-car video from Kurt Busch's car during his encounter with Jimmy Spencer in the garage at Michigan shows that NASCAR had plenty of reason to put Busch on probation for the remainder of the season.

Busch has maintained that his car ran out of gasoline in front of Spencer's pits. But the brief segment of the tape viewed by reporters Saturday indicates that he stopped in front of Spencer's pits, let the car run for a second or two, then shut it off.

Spencer began yelling repeatedly, "Get out of that car."

Busch replies [expletives deleted]: "You better, you better, you better. What ya got?

"You have the run of your life, and you think you got something. One day out of the year, that's 365," Busch said. "Do something. Just do something. You'll die."

More chatter is heard, then what appears to be the single lick from Spencer. After 48 seconds, Busch climbed out of his car and walked away.

Keylock

In the past, Keylock, a locksmith shop, was only a mobile service, but it has now relocated to 173 Friendsville Road, at the top of old Route 42, where it offers complete mobile service as well as a store, which is open Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Keylock was founded in 1997, and is owned and operated by Eric Bowser. Eric has been in locksmithing since 1986. He graduated from Foley Belsaw Institute, and he also graduated from a more advanced locksmithing course in 1987. Eric is also a member of Associated Locksmiths of America, and is a bonded, insured, and licensed locksmith.

"Keylock is unique in our effort to provide same day service," said Bowser.

Some of the services provided are: designing master key systems, installation services, and security consulting.

They also make keys for cars, houses, boats, motorcycles, and ATVs, and open and service safes.

Other services are opening and securing house and car systems, keying locks to keys, changing pins in locks, reinforcing doors, removing broken keys, improving security, upgrading any lock or safe, installing buzzer systems, creating new keys, picking locks, and duplicating keys.

"We also have 24/7 emergency calls, so if you locked yourself out of the house, or you left your keys in the car, Keylock will be there on time, and will provide you with any other help that is needed," said Bowser.

Some of the products sold by Keylock are door hardware for homes, numbers to accent the home, bolts, mortise cylinders, kick plates, hinges, push plates, door reinforcers, Stor-A-Keys, door knockers and door closers.

They also carry door knobs, handle sets, and lever sets in many different finishes and styles, including aluminum, brass, tulip, polished brass, and antique brass. These can be used for entrances, privacy areas, passages, halls/closets, dummy trim, and security.

"We have access to designs and styles that you never knew existed," he added. "These door knobs, lever sets, handle sets come in various grades as well, the higher you upgrade your security the better off you are at someone not breaking into your home."

They also carry deadbolts, mortise cylinders, door reinforcers, Stor-A-Keys, Super Lube, combination locks, and window locks.

"If we don't have it in stock we order it; any special orders that you want for anything that we sell are welcome as well," said Bowser.

Keylock also sells locks and safes for just about anything.

"We are your one-stop source for commercial door hardware for your business, institution, school, or church. We provide you with not only the right item for your job but advice on options and system requirements," he said. "We also provide installation and access control system as well as closed circuit TV systems (CCTV, surveillance cameras). From large to small we service them all."

Keylock is located two buildings down from the McHenry State Police barracks.

"We have three employees who are confident and willingly to do what they must to meet your needs. They are Kenton Wagner, a training service technician; and Lisa Schlosnagle and Jody Moore, the store sales staff.

"So whether you're building a home or remodeling a business, we can help with product and service. We serve contractors too," Bowser said.

Rev. Pino To Be Guest Speaker At Lakeside Assem.

Reverend Nicholas Pino, veteran Assemblies of God missionary to Mexico, will be the guest speaker at the Lakeside Assembly of God on Sunday, Aug. 31, at 10:30 a.m., as announced by Rev. Robert Collette.

Rev. Pino and his wife Ruth have served as missionaries to Latin America since 1975. They ministered in Chile until 1990. While there, Rev. Pino directed a Bible school and co-directed the Chilean Task Force for Evangelism.

"Our work with the task force was based on starting new works and building new churches," he said. "During our last five years in Chile, we helped plant more than 30 churches. Since we began serving in Mexico, we have had the opportunity to return to Chile to assist in the building of four more."

The Pinos have been working with the Assemblies of God in Mexico since 1991, helping to establish churches and open new areas of outreach.

The Pinos have helped build 50 new churches in Mexico and have assisted with several Bible schools. Rev. Pino has also assisted teams of Assemblies of God volunteers from the United States who come to Mexico and Chile to help with evangelism and church construction.

"God has been faithful in adding another phase to the ministry through pastoral and ministerial seminars, as well as in women's conferences," Pino said.

The pastor is a graduate of Davis & Elkins (W.Va.) College and has taught in public schools in the United States. Both he and his wife are graduates of the Zion Bible College of Barrington, R.I. They have pastored and taught teachers' training courses during their careers. The Pinos have three sons who grew up on the mission field.

The public is invited to attend the Pinos' missions presentation on Aug. 31.

"Time" Ticking

nal duo to a five-piece band, with Fred Crozier on mandolin, Dickie Lansberry on bass, and drummer Alex Hicks. Smith and Roberts share singing and guitar duties, with Roberts taking the lion's share of instrumental leads on guitar and at times on banjo, while Crozier and Hicks often pitch in with vocal backings. Tomorrow night's concert will feature all original songs by the talented group.

With the last 20 years serving as a lens through which to help refocus their music and songwriting, Smith and Roberts are again examining in varied ways what life — both on the mountaintop and in general — was, is, and could be. "We're really enjoying what we're doing," Roberts observed recently. "All five of us really love playing music with each other, and we're having a lot of fun." Smith underscored the point by commenting, "We like our old songs much better now with the new sound of the bigger band," and that the duo is constantly adding new songs composed specifically to capitalize on the talents of all five musicians.

Smith and Roberts first got together in the mid 1970s when they teamed up for an off-the-cuff performance at a mutual friend's wedding in McHenry. The pair literally crashed the local music scene when overenthusiastic dancing at the wedding reception resulted in the groom falling onto Robert's guitar, breaking the instrument.

The duo soon became a mainstay on the local music scene, entertaining for appreciative crowds at some of the most popular gathering places of that period in and around western Maryland. They could often be found onstage at establishments including Doc Holliday's, the old Honi Bar, JB's Saloon, and the Blue Moon Saloon in Grantsville, where they were a regular fixture for a rabid following.

During their first musical incarnation, Smith and Roberts honed and expanded their songwriting skills, centerpieced on originals that used just a few lines to speak volumes of the experience of living in Garrett County. It was a period marked by such instantly recognizable local chestnuts as "Wild Turkey and Cigarettes," "Appalachian Love Song," "Plastics," "Ithica," "Papa's Bones," and "Sailing Ships" (a personal favorite of this writer). The recording also featured what soon became the mountaintop's unofficial anthem, "Garrett County Time."

These songs and others appeared on the duo's superb 1980 recording Buffalo Run, which will be available for purchase in CD format at tomorrow night's performance. The album gained lots of airplay on radio stations across the tri-state region, with "Wild Turkey and Cigarettes" actually charting at Number 3 on the playlist of a Clarksburg, W.Va., radio station. Selections from the album were also heard on radio stations as far away as California, and England, Ireland, and Scotland.

The full repertoire of the current Smith and Roberts band hovers in the area of 30-40 original songs ready for performance. About half were composed during the duo's early years together, and tomorrow night's concert will feature many of those older standards along with the public debut of a number of new songs composed over the two-decade interim and since resumption as a five-piece.

The new "Cabin Song" tells Roberts' true story of cutting trees planted in the Cove area by his grandfather, Henry Glass, to build his own log cabin. Warmed by both the labor and his family memories, the singer takes a moment's repose from the work as he "thins a few and thanks the rest."

Another recent Roberts composition is "Frosty Monday," which any local resident can relate to — "Frosty Monday you're something to see, cold morning air sends a chill over me...."

Smith's "Razor's Edge" asks "Wouldn't you just love to go, down the river and on to the ocean below? The world may rush on by, but we'll take it slow; wouldn't you just love to go?"

"What in Heaven's Name?" is Smith's searing commentary, crystallized on 9-11, on the mind, motivation, and ultimate failure of

I got flowers today

I got flowers today.
It wasn't my birthday, or any other special day.
We had our first argument last night and he said a lot of cruel things that really hurt me.
I know he is sorry and didn't mean the things he said...

Because he sent me flowers today.

I got flowers today. It wasn't our anniversary or any other special day.
Last night he threw me into a wall and started to choke me.
It seemed like a nightmare - I couldn't believe it was real.
I woke up sore and bruised all over. I know he must be sorry...

Because he sent flowers today.

I got flowers today and it wasn't Mother's Day
or any other special day.
Last night he beat me up again.
And it was much worse than all the other times.
If I leave him, what will I do? How will I take care of my kids?
What about money?
I am afraid of him and scared to leave.
But I know he must be sorry...

Because he sent me flowers today.

I got flowers today.
Today was a very special day.
It was the day of my funeral.
Last night he finally killed me. He beat me to death.
If only I had gathered enough courage and strength to leave him...
I would not have gotten flowers today.

Neighborhood Watch

The Neighborhood Watch will be sponsoring a Senior Picnic on Thursday, Sept. 11, at noon at the Town Park. The ceremony will be held Thursday, Sept. 11, at the Town Park at 6:30 p.m. This is the second year the lodge is sponsoring this project. Over the past two years, more than 1,100 ceremonies will have been conducted by Woodmen lodges nationwide. Many of the ceremonies, held at town halls, police and fire stations, schools, and other community buildings include the dedication of flagpoles and commemorative plaques and the presentation of U.S. flags.

NHS Finishes Third Overall At State Envirothon Championships

Northern Garrett High School's envirothon team traveled to the Smith Environmental Education Center in Rockville this summer to compete at the Maryland State Envirothon Championships. The group, named the Northern Lights, finished in third place among the 20 teams in the event.

The local team consisted of five seniors: Will Gallagher, Michael Guard, Jordan Halsig, Mitchell Guard, and Vicki Schlosnagle; and one freshman, Michael McKewen.

During the final competition, held on June 26, the team members were scored on their knowledge of natural resource principles and their applications. Students were tested on such things as their ability to age deer, calculate timber board feet, identify fish, and texture topsoil.

When the results were tabulated, the Northern Lights placed third overall out of 20 teams. They tied for the top score in forestry with a high score of 96 points, and also tied for third place in both soils and wildlife.

The team took 6th place in aquatics, 7th place in ag land conservation, and 10th place in the oral presentation segment.

In addition to winning a framed wildlife print for their school, team members each received a cash prize of $200.

Coaches Liz McDowell and Ron Boyer said all of the seniors should be commended for their hard work over the years.

"They are a great group of young people," the coaches wrote about the team members. "Their willingness to stay together for the competition after graduation was truly remarkable."

Michael and Mitchell Guard (team members for four years) will be attending Virginia Polytechnic Institute (Virginia Tech.) this fall. Three-year members Will Gallagher, Jordan Halsig, and Vicki Schlosnagle will attend Garrett College, the University of Maryland and Paul Smith College, respectively.

Before leaving for college, the seniors challenged the remaining members Michael McKewen and Margaret Mastej to top their score at the 2005 state championships.

With the exit of so many seniors, new members are being recruited for the Northern Lights. Interested students should contact April Slagle, science teacher at Northern High, for more information. Slagle recently agreed to act as head envirothon coach in this school year, assisted by McDowell and Boyer.

During the past school year many local resource professionals shared their time and expertise with the team, the coaches said. Those offering their assistance included Kevin Dodge (Garrett College), Garry Morfoot (Natural Resources Conservation Service), Rich Raesly (Frostburg State University), and Mike Dreisbach (Savage River Lodge).

Phenix Technologies and Precision Rafting Expeditions provided team T-shirts for the Northern Lights.

"Without the support and assistance of the Garrett County Soil Conservation District, Hickory Environmental Education Center, and the board of education, Northern High's envirothon team would not have been able to successfully compete at the state championships," the coaches said.

NHS ENVIROTHON TEAM TAKES THIRD IN STATE – The Northern Lights, the envirothon team from Northern Garrett High School, earned third place in the Maryland State Envirothon Championships this summer. The team competed in a field of 20 entrants from across the state. The members were tested on their abilities to complete such tasks as determining the age of a deer, calculating timber board feet, identifying fish, and texturing topsoil. For their achievement, team members each received a cash prize of $200 and the entire team won a framed print, shown above, for display at Northern High. See story. Pictured from left are team members Michael Guard, Jordan Halsig, Will Gallagher, Michael McKewen, Vicki Schlosnagle, and Mitchell Guard. Team members are shown below as they hike along Monroe Run Trail with Kevin Dodge (at left), natural resources professor from Garrett College, who reviewed tree identifications with the students. The Northern Lights were coached by Liz McDowell and Ron Boyer. April Slagle will coach this year, with assistance from McDowell and Boyer.

Garrett College Slates Nursing Assistant Course

A state-approved nursing assistant course has been scheduled by Garrett College, with a starting date of Tuesday, Sept. 9. Maryland regulations require that anyone who performs nursing tasks, delegated by a nurse, for compensation must complete an approved nursing assistant course of study and be licensed through the Maryland Board of Nursing.

The theory portion of the course will meet Tuesday, Wednesday, and Friday evenings from 6:30 to 9:45 p.m. Students who pass the theory portion of the course will continue into an intensive 40 hour on-site clinical experience.

Following the on-site clinical portion of the course, participants who wish to work in a long-term care facility (a nursing home) must take the Maryland registry test to become geriatric nursing assistants. The registry test has both written and skills components. Although the registry test is not a part of the GC course, students who are not employed will have the opportunity to self-fund and be sponsored for the test through an outside agency.

Topics for the course include the role and responsibilities of nursing assistants, major organs and body systems, common medical terms and abbreviations, ambulating devices, human growth and development, ethical and legal issues, and demonstration of various nursing functions.

All potential students must register in person at the Continuing Education and Training office, located in Room CE-300 of the college's McHenry campus. Space is limited and enrollment is being taken on a first-come, first-served basis. For tuition rates and additional information, persons may call Kista Wilt at 301-387-3069.

Arthritis Support Group To Meet

The Garrett County Memorial Hospital Arthritis/Fibromyalgia Support Group will hold a session on how to make one's own herbal rice pack. The meeting will be held Tuesday, Sept. 2, at 6:30 p.m. in the Garrett County Memorial Hospital community services building.

There is no charge to attend the meeting, and all ages are welcome, but persons are asked to RSVP if they plan to attend. For more information about the class, or to RSVP, persons may call Vicki Insley at 301-334-9767.

State Launches Johne's Disease Pilot Program

The state of Maryland has established a pilot program to prevent and eradicate Johne's disease in dairy cattle and train veterinarians to provide education about the disease. Ten herds of varying sizes from different areas of the state are currently enrolled in the program, funded by a $60,000 grant from the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA). The goals of the program are to: provide documentation of Johne's disease in each herd, enhance biosecurity, reduce spread of disease, and enhance herd health and productivity, which increases market value of animals in those herds, as well as, adding more herds in the coming years.

"We want to educate all Maryland cattle farmers about Johne's disease and provide information about management practices to prevent, control and eliminate the disease from their herd," said Agriculture Secretary Lewis R. Riley. "Because herd health and biosecurity play such a key role in the management of this disease, we also encourage herd veterinarians to become involved in the Johne's disease training and eradication program."

Johne's disease, caused by Mycobacterium paratuberculosis, is highly resistant to the infected animal's immune defenses and is very difficult to kill. It is a silent, highly contagious bacterial infection that causes gradual thickening of the intestinal wall, impairing nutrient absorption, which leads to chronic weight loss. Johne's disease is transmitted through fecal-oral contaminations. It is easily controlled and prevented by proper management and herd testing. Vaccines offer incomplete protection and no approved drugs are available for use in food animals. Animals harbor the organism for years before testing positive or developing disease symptoms. A blood test is used to screen the disease, and a fecal culture is used to confirm positive results.

"Clinical symptoms include: reduced productivity, chronic diarrhea, normal appetite with constant weight loss, non-responsive to anthelmintics, and sometimes even death," said Maryland State Veterinarian Dr. Phyllis Cassano. "Due to the highly contagious nature and long incubation period (two to six years) of Johne's disease, it is important to retest dairy cattle each year."

Johne's disease, identified more than century ago, remains a common and sometimes costly disease of dairy cattle. The NAHMS '96 Dairy Study found that infected herds where at least 10 percent of the cull cows showed clinical signs of Johne's disease, the average cost to those producers was $227 for each cow per year.

The NAHMS '96 Dairy Study, a national study of dairy health issues conducted by USDA-APHIS-VS, estimated that about 22 percent of U.S. dairies are infected with Johne's disease. According to the study, larger herds have higher risks of Johne's disease. About 40 percent of herds with at least 300 cows were infected, compared to less than 20 percent of herds with less than 50 cows. The study showed that many dairy producers are unfamiliar with Johne's disease; 45 percent of dairy producers are either unaware of the disease, or recognized the name, but knew little else about it.

For more information about Johne's disease, persons may log on to www.aphis.usda.gov/vs/nahps/johnes/ or www.johnes.org.

Farmers Urged To Keep Contact With Ins. Agents

Maryland farmers are encouraged to keep in contact with their crop insurance agents in light of recent changes in requirements announced by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Risk Management Agency.

"I encourage each farmer who has purchased crop insurance to contact his agent to be sure that rule changes will not affect claims," said Secretary of Agriculture Lewis R. Riley. "Insurance companies make final determinations regarding the requirements, and proceeding as you did last year may result in denial of claims."

•Report crop damage immediately when it occurs, or within 72 hours, to a crop insurance agent. Be especially careful with late losses on or about the end of the insurance period as claims can be denied if notices are not filed by this date.

•Inform your crop insurance agent about crop damage and what the plans are for the crop. Ask your agent about any special requirements that must be followed to justify claims, such as waiting to harvest until an adjuster sees the crop. If in doubt, contact an adjuster for a second opinion.

•If you plan to harvest a damaged crop for another use (such as harvesting a grain crop for hay or silage), you are required to file notice of damage at least 15 days before silage or haying begins to provide the adjuster the opportunity to either appraise the yield potential or designate sample row areas for appraising the yield potential at a later date.

•If damage is discovered after harvesting begins, contact your agent immediately while evidence remains and ask for instructions on how to proceed.

•If you have more than one insurance unit for the crop with low yield or poor quality and production from multiple units will be stored in the same bin or structure, contact your agent before commingling the production.

Farmers are also reminded that if they received a crop disaster payment from the USDA Farm Service Agency for a crop that was insurable, but not insured, they are required to purchase buy-up crop insurance for the next two years. The enrollment deadline for fall-seeded wheat and barley is Sept. 30; the deadline for tree and vine crops is Nov. 20.

Maryland farmers received $21.6 million in crop insurance payments for 2002, or nearly $7 in payments for every $1 paid in premiums. The payout for 2002 alone nearly matches the $22.6 million paid to farmers over the five years from 1997 through 2001, with more payments expected. Last year, Maryland farmers invested a total of $3.1 million in crop insurance premiums.

Make Hay While The Sun Shines

Hot, humid conditions during the day and warm evenings resulted in 6.2 days suitable for field work for the week ending Aug. 24. Weather conditions cooperated for making good quality hay last week. Weed pressure is high for many crops, including hay. Most of the corn crop is through the dough stage and into the dent stage of development. Some corn and sorghum silage is beginning to be chopped, mainly in the western counties. Several soybean fields are setting pods and in fair to good condition.

Dry weather allowed farmers to make good progress with harvesting of melons, potatoes, snap beans, and sweet corn. Peach yield is good so far this year. Local peaches are losing quality after harvest due to brown rot. Apple harvest is beginning with most of the crop in fair to good condition.

GC Task Force

One of the task force's major concerns is the growing heroin problem in areas surrounding the county and the increasing amount of the drug showing up locally. "We're bracing for heroin now," Rodeheaver said. "I see the problem getting worse and worse." The sergeant noted that nearby Baltimore was a known source for heroin, as well as Pittsburgh, Pa., and Washington, D.C.

Between 1997 and 1999, there was no heroin seized in the county. In 2000, however, .6 grams were seized, with 2.6 in 2001 and 10.2 last year. "We haven't seized any yet this year," he added.

Heroin is not only expensive, about $100 per gram, said Rodeheaver, but it is also highly addictive. "It's one of those fixes that you have to have," he said. The sergeant described the drug as "scary." His advice to those who may be tempted to try the illegal opiate: "Don't do it!"

A physical dependence can occur within the first few doses of the illegal opiate. Additionally, heroin users soon build up a tolerance to the drug and need more and more of it to achieve a consistent high. As a result, addicts often resort to stealing to support their habits.

Heroin-related armed robberies have occurred in nearby Allegany County, Rodeheaver noted. Though none have occurred yet in Garrett County, drug-related thefts are taking place, including those by employees.

He also noted that the purity of heroin being sold is testing anywhere from 10 to 85 percent. This large discrepancy can be dangerous. Users may take a less stronger dosage one time and not get as high as a previous dosage. Thinking that a bigger dosage is need, they may use more heroin the next time. The next time, however, the purity of the drug may be 85 percent, and the users could overdose. Teenagers have died from heroin overdoses in Allegany County, Rodeheaver noted.

"Are we going to wake up one morning and hear on the radio that someone has overdosed [in Garrett County]," he said. "I hope not."

The sergeant said the task force takes a "three-prong" approach in combating the local drug problem: education, prevention, and law enforcement.

Garrett County sheriff Dick Sanders noted that a new drug prevention program, called Winners, would be introduced in the local schools this year. The new program will replace DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) and allow officers and school officials to tailor a program toward Garrett County students. "We can set our own parameters," said the sheriff.

"DARE had no flexibility," said Major Gary Berkebile of the Sheriff's Office. He indicated that the DARE program, which was established in New York City, had a fixed set of parameters that officers were required to follow and that were not always applicable to a rural area like Garrett County. Additionally, it only focused on sixth graders.

"We can't stop at the sixth grade," said Sanders about teaching students not to use drugs. "They have to be reminded all through school."

To report illegal drug activity, persons may call the Garrett County Narcotics task force at 301-387-9566. Rodeheaver noted that the Task Force follows up on all tips.

"Time" Ticking

a suicide bomber to advance his twisted cause. Very loosely quoted, the song asks, "So you stashed a bomb in your clothes, now where you go everyone knows, all about your cause and your laws...but do you think killing all those people will set you free? So they did this, you do that...it's a tit for tat... Do you think those in heaven really care?"

A sure signature song for the new quintet is "Caroline," a bouncy island tune with a Caribbean beat. The calypso jam starts off with Hicks's steel drum sound, which is soon joined one at a time by Lansberry's bass, Crozier's mandolin, and Smith's rhythm guitar, and is topped in good measure when Roberts throws in his lead guitar riffs. The song's goodtime vibes of the good life are borne out by a sing-a-long vocal chorus of "Bon, c'est bon, bon, c'est bon, bon, c'est bon..." ("Good, it's good, good, it's good, good, it's good...").

The five talented musicians who compose the new band bring a wide variety of experiences to the venture.

Smith, a native of Silver Spring, worked in sound production for touring bands and wrote songs for the New York City-based music publishing company of Artie Resnick (composer of "Under the Boardwalk" and "Good Lovin'"), before moving to Garrett County in 1975. He has worked in various construction-related professions, including as an entrepreneur with his own business, and is now employed by the county's buildings inspection office. Smith has three children, and lives in the Friendsville area with his wife Cheryl.

Roberts, who was born in the Cleveland area and began performing in rock bands in his early teens, graduated from college in Ithaca, N.Y., before moving to his grandparents' farm in the Cove in 1974. After several years of playing solo engagements in the Deep Creek Lake area, he teamed up with Smith for a six-year duo run that ended in 1983. Since then he and his wife Jill have raised two children, and he has been operating his own business, Appalachian Land Services.

Mandolinist Crozier has been playing music in western Maryland and nearby West Virginia for 25 years. He has played in a trio with Roberts and bassist Mark Ashby from time to time, and is employed as the State Highway Administration's district engineer for western Maryland. A native of southern West Virginia and a West Virginia University graduate, Crozier lives in the Deep Creek Lake area with his wife Linda and their son.

Dickie Lansberry was raised in Grantsville by his bluegrass fan father and big band aficionado mother. He graduated from Northern High School in 1968, then did a short stint in the U.S. Navy. The bass player was a member of Buffalo Run, an early 1980s S&R spin-off band. He resides in Salisbury, where he operates Lansberry Services, a risk assessment and loss control company that serves insurance and financial institutions. Lansberry's wife of nearly 30 years, Betty, was a fellow musician and a noted sound technician who died in 1999 after a battle with cancer.

Joining Lansberry in the S&R rhythm section is fellow Northern High graduate Alex Hicks, class of 1988. The "baby" of the group has played drums for over two dozen bands in the mid-Atlantic region. Hicks is currently involved in several songwriting/recording projects and is preparing to open a drum shop in Cumberland this fall. He and his wife Shanti live in Oldtown, and their small son Gabriel is cutting his teeth in true musical fashion by working on his dancing legs at most performance gigs and practice sessions of his dad's new band.

Persons attending tomorrow night's Smith and Roberts concert at the Mtn. Fresh Pavilion are encouraged to bring lawn chairs or blankets to sit on. Food concessions will be available. Sponsors of this year's Little Yough Summer Music Festival include Sincell Publishing, the Pine Lodge Steakhouse, F&M Bank, First United Bank, Oakland Rotary Club, Mettiki Coal, the town of Oakland, Main Street Oakland, Railey Mountain Lake Vacations, Radio EX, WKHJ, WOZK, Doug McClive, Long and Foster Realtors, the Garrett County Arts Council, and Maryland's Main Street Improvement Program.

Elimination Dinner Sept. 5

The Mt. Lions Club and Union Ambulance Service join again this year to host an elimination dinner at the squad hall located in Aurora. The date is Sept. 5, and the time, 6 p.m. Those who have not obtained a ticket should contact Joann Helton (735-5852) for further information. The $30 tickets provide for a dinner for two plus chances to win the $2,225 to be awarded in cash prizes.

New Facility Dedicated Sunday

At their regular Sunday evening worship services, members of the Stemple Ridge United Methodist Church were privileged to join in a dedication service for their newly constructed pavilion and kitchen. This facility provides a place for summer dinners and meetings, and for a location for their annual festival. Construction was begun about two years ago and has now been completed.

'41-'42 AHS Class Reunion

The Aurora High School classes of 1941 and 1942 met at the Amboy United Methodist Church in the Durst Fellowship Hall for their reunion. The group gathered on Aug. 23 for an afternoon of visiting, reviewing old information, and pictures. A short business meeting was conducted by Mildred Teets, during which the group voted to continue reunions. A place and date for the 2004 reunion will be determined at a later date, and members will be advised at that time.

Gifts made by Mary Jackson were distributed to each present, and shoe buffers, courtesy of the BB&T Bank, were presented to each one. A poem was read in memory of deceased classmates, and a prayer for our country and its leaders preceded the serving of the dinner.

The following were in attendance: Ralph and Barbara Lee, Erwin and Margaret Schrock, Blaine Lipscomb, Doris Adams and her sister, Lois Phillips, James and Jean Arnett, Dorothy Spaid, Fred and Dorotha Forman, Kathy Hardesty, Louise Lantz Shillingburg Dinkle and daughter Carol, Eldred Wotring, his son Bill and wife, Stanley and Arva Wotring Baker, Mary Stemple Jackson, Hancell and Mildred Donham Teets, Mary Virginia Lewis Benson and Walter Salmon, Gay Rembold, and Carol Baker.

Aurora CEOS

The Aug. 19 meeting of the Aurora Community Education Outreach Service (CEOS) was held at the Union Ambulance squad hall, with 10 members present. A memorial service remembered deceased members Maxine Hauser and Alice Penzo and was followed by the reading of the club collect. Ressie Conrad also had a reading, "Life."

"A Healthy Path Through Today's Supermarket" provided tips and helpful hints on distinguishing between the good, the bad, and the worse. The lesson was taught by Mildred Teets, with other tips provided by Wilda Harsh and Janice Tackett.

"Boo-Boo bears" and blankets were completed at the July workday and are ready for distribution to children who are patients at WVU hospitals.

Creative writings of both prose and poetry are to be given to Opal Myers by Sept. 1. Volunteer hours need to be totaled for the year and turned in to Deloris Slawter. The traveling Bible for the district's eldest person will be presented to Willard Feather by Dorothy Spaid and Virginia Martin.

The "Tell a Friend" cancer project of asking a friend to have a mammogram was reportedly a success. Fern Jamison was named Club Member of the Year. Weeding at the Aurora School's butterfly garden continues, and five members of Aurora CEOS assisted with the summer reading program at the school.

Achievement Day is in the planning stages and will be Nov. 20 at 10 a.m. The location is yet to be determined and will be announced.

Buckwheat Festival car tickets are on sale. Members will again be selling them both locally and during the festival at Kingwood. Fall Conference at Jackson's Mill is Oct. 14-16, and some members plan to attend.

A discussion of possible lesson interests and titles for next year was held. Janice Tackett and Virginia Martin were named to the nominating committee. Monies for the salt box project, in support of repairs to Marion Cottage at Jackson's Mill, were turned in.

Kathy Hayes, the Preston County Senior nurse, discussed Alzheimer's Disease statistics. During the meeting, two representatives from Beltone gave free hearing screenings. The next meeting is planned for Sept. 11, and new members are welcome to join the seniors for a covered dish meal at noon.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

I don't remember my first day of school, but I do remember the day when my big brother who was one year older than I walked out of the front door with his metal Lone Ranger lunch box for his first day of school. That was the day my first and most important playmate left me behind.

The next memory of my first school day was not for my spanking for talking to my friend, but the bitter fury I felt when some big high school kids sitting in the back of the bus teased Rodney. The only clear part is the emotion I felt which was outrage and blind rage at the tormentors of my big brother, my hero. I did not realize that even perhaps worse was being teased by the big kids he wanted to impress by his precious drawing of a big fat pig, but that his little sister thought she needed to defend him. That probably was ultimate humiliation. Like the first flag and note of New Hampshire, "Don't tread on me" with a picture of a coiled rattlesnake. If you tread or push around someone I love, you will hear some rattling from me. After that day I never could tolerate any kind of bullying or the cause of pain in the undefended by the more powerful and stronger ones.

Yes, I never knew my place, or how to be seen but not heard, or why I thought my place was to defend my garden from a rampaging bull with just a handy pitchfork when I was about ready to deliver my first baby, and why one of my black students chose to call me when he was threatened by some tough redneck guys in a pickup truck who threatened to bring back the KKK. I absolutely would face off a gang of 20 white-hooded robes to protect Jimmy.

One of my first vivid dreams while in my coma was about fighting off a gang of Nazis who threatened my husband and my family. Why these memories shoved in front of my mind right now, I don't know, because last evening I felt so alone and defenseless that I wished so hard that I had someone who would defend me for once. I couldn't think of anyone to call who would not be offended by my call, as it might be too risky and scary to defend the defenseless one. As Joan of Arc wondered when she was tied to the stake why no one would defend her when France needed her, and now it was allowing her to get destroyed. Oh well, such is life.

News from Emmanuel Lutheran Church

There will be a joint service and parish picnic at 11 a.m. at New Germany State Park at the rec hall. A covered-dish picnic will follow. Hamburgers, hot dogs, sodas, and paper products will be provided. Please bring a covered dish to share with the group. Dress casually for outdoor worship.

Wednesday, September 3, Sarah Soltow, president of the new Community Lutheran Partners, will conduct a short workshop to introduce the mission and goals of CLP. In addition, she will seek to generate information about what social ministries exist in the parish and what ministries we see as needed and possible targets for the CLP to assist in fulfilling. This will be a joint Accident/ Bittinger Parish worship at the Bittinger fire hall starting at 7 p.m. and lasting about an hour and a half.

Attending were Jay and Charlene Moon and children Jacob, Amy, Annie, David, and Steven, JoEllen Graham, Dave and Joanne Buckel, and Brad and Beulah Moon. Jesseca will leave this week to attend Gettysburg College in Pennsylvania.

Jim, Donna, and Tim Glotfelty were Saturday evening dinner guests of Tom Glotfelty at his home at Alpine Lake. Jim and Donna and Ida Reckner were Sunday evening dinner guests. Tom is showing improvement after being quite ill, and hopes to return to his flying occupation with Spirit Airlines very soon.

Topical Products Help Ease Sunburn Pain

Almost everyone knows that using sunscreens is the best way to prevent burn when the skin is exposed to the harsh summertime sun. Each year, over one million people in the US are diagnosed with skin cancer. Almost 90% of these cases are linked to excessive exposure to the sun.

A number of over-the-counter products are useful for treating injury from minor sunburn. Skin protectants such as cocoa butter or Vaseline can rehydrate the skin and reduce friction when there is contact with the burned skin. Analgesics such as aspirin and ibuprofen can soothe the pain and inflammation associated with sunburn. For temporary relief a topical cream containing benzocaine or lidocaine can be very helpful. If the skin is not broken, a low-dose hydrocortisone cream can be used if the area affected is small. Although products containing camphor and menthol may be useful for some topical burns, they are not recommended for treating sunburn. Topical aloe gel may help speed the healing of a sunburn, but its activity is thought to be lost with long term storage, even with commercially available products.

Real Estate Facts by...

Goldie Shugars

HOW LOW CAN YOU GO?

If you decide to try to sell your home "by owner," how will you determine your asking price? A lot of anxiety is associated with putting a price on your most valuable possession. That is especially true if you don't know its "fair market value" (the cost a buyer is willing to pay and the seller is willing to accept).

You can be led to overprice your home by not having up-to-the-minute home values for other similar houses nearby, or by simply believing your home measures up to a higher standard than the others. You may get some initial interest, but as soon as buyers compare your home with similar offerings, they'll discover that yours is priced above "fair market value." Even worse, they'll make an offer to purchase, and when the appraisal comes back below the asking price, the buyers will withdraw their offer, having wasted your valuable time.

Time goes by, and eventually you drop the price of your home in hopes of generating an offer, but then you run the danger of under-pricing and losing the valuable equity that you've built up.

Real estate agents are trained professionals with accurate pricing information and exceptional marketing techniques. Protect your investment by asking an agent to list your home, price it fairly, and market it aggressively. You'll be rewarded with a quicker sale at a higher price.

FIRE DAMAGES OAKLAND HOUSE – Volunteers from four area fire departments were summoned at 9:54 this morning when smoke was seen coming from a house at 206 Liberty Street. Quick action by firefighters resulted in saving the house from major flames, although there was considerable smoke damage reported. Neighbors feared that the occupants of the house, a Mr. and Mrs. Bowersox, were in the house at the time, but it was soon discovered that they are presently out of town. Units responding to the blaze were from the Oakland, Terra Alta, Gorman, and Deep Creek fire departments. Also responding were the Southern Rescue Squad, Oakland and county law enforcement officials, and utility personnel. Units remained on the scene for over an hour. There were no injuries reported. Further details were not available at press time. Photo by John McEwen.

Oakland Set To Begin Strategic Planning Process

As part of Garrett County Community Action's Community Legacy Program, the town of Oakland is getting ready to embark on a new strategic planning process. The first meeting will be held Tuesday, Sept. 9, from 7 to 9 p.m., at the Mighty Oaks South, Oakland Golf Club. All residents of Oakland and other interested individuals are invited to attend and participate in the planning process.

At the first meeting, participants will develop a vision statement for how they want Oakland to develop over the next 20 years. Subsequent meetings will focus on establishing goal areas and priorities for the plan.

Oakland will follow the communities of Friendsville, Grantsville, and Loch Lynn, which have recently completed their plans.

"The revitalization plans developed by the initial round of communities under the Community Legacy Program are beginning to create the vision needed to build vibrant and healthy communities. Given the progress and fun experienced with the first three towns, I can hardly wait to get started in Oakland," said Duane Yoder, president of GCCAC Inc.

"We have been successful over the past few years in revitalizing our downtown area," said Mayor Asa McCain. "We are constantly promoting our historic resources and the great mix of businesses. Oakland is not only an important center of commerce for the county, but it also provides the many tourists in our county with an opportunity to experience a charming small town environment. Through the strategic planning process, we hope to build on our pervious success to promote even more growth in the community."

The Community Action Committee has contracted Terrell Ellis & Associates, a consulting firm from Charleston, W.Va., to facilitate the strategic planning process. The firm specializes in community and economic development planning and has extensive ex-

BARTLETT TOURS LOCAL COMPANY – Congressman Roscoe Bartlett visited Garrett County this week, stopping for a while at TDEC (the Data Entry Company) in Oakland to talk with the staff and tour the facility. He is pictured above with Karen Knox, director of revenue resources at TDEC, who led the tour. She described how the system has changed over the years, and how TDEC, a 35-year-old Oakland business, has adjusted along with the evolution of technology. She also explained how the employees convert old weather data from paper to computer images, and send the new data to the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA). The company employs about 100 people. Bartlett and Senator Barbara Mikulski (who also recently visited the firm) are credited with protecting the local company when an attempt was made last year to limit the NOAA work to West Virginia and Kentucky data entry firms. The elected officials made sure the Maryland office retained its portion of the work. In appreciation of his help, the TDEC staff gave Bartlett a framed drawing of the Casselman River Bridge, sketched by TDEC employee Karen Meyers. Photo by John McEwen.

Plans Finalized For First March Of Dimes Walk

The plans are finalized for the first March of Dimes walk in Garrett County, which is scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 13, at Deep Creek Lake State Park, starting at 9 a.m.

Check-in starts at 8 a.m. Walkers can take a one- or three-mile track, which will begin at the Oak Pavilion and go to the Discovery Center and back. Walkers may also go through the campgrounds.

Teams can still sign up and money can be turned in at the event, although team captains are urged to turn in

An Ohio couple were injured in a single-vehicle crash on Interstate 68 Sunday, according to the Maryland State Police. The 11:37 a.m. mishap trapped the passenger, who had to be extricated from the wreckage by personnel from the Friendsville Volunteer Fire Department and subsequently flown to Ruby Memorial Hospital in Morgantown for treatment of serious injuries.

Local Woman In Search Of Kidney Donor

A plea has been issued on behalf of a local woman in search of a person willing to donate a kidney. Marla Mayles, Swanton, has lost the function of both kidneys and currently must undergo dialysis on a daily basis.

While she is on the National Transplant List at University of Maryland, the wait is expected to be three to five years for a transplant donor.

A wife and mother, Mayles is also a full-time employee of Gonder Insurance Agency. She and her husband Bob have two sons, Matthew, 7, and Michael, 2. A letter describing her current situation can be seen in today's Letters to the Editor section, which begins on page A-4.

Testing must take place in order to determine if a donor's kidney would function for Mayles, or would be a "match." Persons with blood type "O" are the most viable candidates for a match, although those with other blood types can be considered as well, according to a family spokesperson.

"For many, the chance to live a full life won't come unless many more of us consider organ donation." said Patti Boehl, a family friend who wished to be the donor but was determined to be "unmatched" for Mayles. "Organ donors are heroes," she said. "People

Ground-Breaking For New SGCRS Facility Slated

A ground-breaking ceremony for the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad's new facility in Mountain Lake Park will be held on Saturday, Sept. 6, at 2 p.m. The building site is located along Maryland Highway (Rt. 135) close to the intersection of Maryland Highway and B Street.

The rescue squad membership has been working on plans for a new building for several years, according to Rayma Weeks, building fund chairperson.

"Trying to find a suitable piece of land was one of the biggest obstacles we faced," Weeks said. "In the year 2000, Don Browning donated a parcel measuring 2.85 acres in Mtn. Lake Park for this purpose. We have since been developing a building plan that will serve the squad now and in the future."

The plan includes a three-bay engine room with the capability of housing six rescue units. The building will also contain office space, living quarters, and an all-purpose room with a state-of-the-art kitchen. This room will seat at least 200 people, Weeks reported.

Pending the approval of various permits, Weeks said construction is slated to begin this fall.

Reservations For Salem Benefit Still Being Taken

Tickets are still available for the fifth annual Outspokin' for Kids dinner and silent auction, slated for Saturday, Sept. 20, at Frostburg State University and benefiting the Maryland Salem Children's Trust. The keynote speaker for that event, to be held in FSU's Lane Center, will be Doug MacMillan, CEO of the Todd M. Beamer Foundation, pictured above.

Todd Beamer, who lost his life in the September 11, 2001, terrorist attacks, was one of MacMillan's best friends. He died on Flight 93 when he and other passengers fought to regain control of the aircraft that had been hijacked by the terrorists. The plane ultimately crashed just north of Garrett County in Shanksville, Pa., killing all aboard. "Let's roll!" were among Beamer's last words, which then became a bumper-sticker rallying cry in the nation's battle against terrorism.

The Todd M. Beamer Foundation, which was founded by Beamer's wife Lisa about two weeks after the 9/11 attacks, funds a program called "Heroic Choices," which helps meet the long-term needs of traumatized children. The goal is to help these children learn how to navigate life's obstacles, overcome adversity, and grow to be healthy,

Phil St. Moritz, new owner of Bill's Marine Service and Bill's Outdoor Center, is shown above presenting a check for $1,300 to Coach Brenda Brosnihan. "This money will be used exclusively to offset expenses the team will incur as we travel to Buenos Aires, Argentina, to compete in the Extreme Aerobic Open at the end of the month," Brosnihan said. "On behalf of our entire team, their parents, and the coaches, I want to thank Mr. St. Moritz for his incredible generosity." The team continues to pursue a number of fund-raising activities as they work toward the competition in Argentina. THE SUNNY FACE OF MD.'S STATE FLOWER can be seen throughout Garrett County, bobbing in the September breeze. A hardy species, the black-eyed Susan can withstand fairly cool weather, and often continues to bloom into autumn. The colorful season of fall is just around the corner, as can be seen with a glance at the foliage here in the mountains. It has started to change, even this soon, and will in short order be taking on the hues of red, orange, and gold. Photo by John McEwen.

Memories we treasure and hold very dear,
Long days we've endured since we lost you last year.
We knew you were tired and wanted to "go home,"
It's been hard to let go... we still feel so alone.

Our comfort comes in knowing your sickness and pain
Left your body that day when the Lord called your name.
You're now walking those streets that are made of pure gold,
And living in a land where you'll never grow old.

Each one of us longs to see you again,
When our time on this earth comes to an end.
Watch over us as we carry on,
We miss you Earl...Daddy...Pap...
Our wonderful memories of you help us hold on.

Oakland Update

by Asa McCain

Oakland is getting ready to upgrade its Strategic Development Plan. All interested parties are welcome to take part in the process. This plan will project the continued development and revitalization of our community. The first meeting will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. on Tuesday, Sept. 9, at the Mighty Oaks South, located at the Oakland Golf Club along Bradley Lane. This process is being made possible for all eight incorporated towns through the Community Legacy Program. For further details, please refer to the news article in this issue of the paper.

Oakland employees have just installed new playground equipment at the Glades Town Park. The equipment is designed for children ages 5 to 12. This equipment was made possible through a grant by former Governor Glendening.

The Little Yough Music Festival has ended another successful season. I would like to thank each of those who participated for their support. A special thanks goes to to Ken Perrin and those unsung volunteers who helped behind the scenes. Look for recognition of the gracious sponsors in an upcoming issue of The Republican. It was appropriate that a local group, Smith & Roberts, was featured for the final concert of the season.

The Third Street Bridge Project is moving along. Core sampling and final surveying is currently under way. The final design will proceed when adjoining property owners' concerns can be addressed. Hopefully, construction will be able to start with the 2004 spring building season, and will be completed in October 2004.

Single-Vehicle Crash Injures Ohio Family

A Steubenville, Ohio, man was seriously injured along with two of his three passengers in a single-vehicle accident on Interstate 68 Monday afternoon, according to the Maryland State Police.

At approximately 3:30 p.m., Franklin Little John Jr., 38, was approaching Grantsville from the west as a heavy downpour began. When he applied his brakes a short distance west of New German Road, Little John's 1997 Toyota 4-Runner began to hydroplane and spun out of control. The SUV went off the roadway to the right, struck the guardrail, and overturned before coming to rest back in the slow lane of the westbound interstate.

The Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad transported the driver and Arabia Little John, 12, and Quinten Little John, 10, both also of Steubenville, to Cumberland Memorial Hospital. The conditions of the victims were not available from the hospital's public relations office. A third passenger, Amanda Roberts, 22, St. Albans, W.Va., was treated at the scene.

No charges were filed by MSP investigators.

Multiple Charges Filed Against Oakland Man

An Oakland man was arrested by Maryland State Police troopers on various charges in a Glendale Road business parking lot early Thursday morning, Aug. 28. Alcohol reportedly played a major factor in the incident.

Jeremy Edward Sweitzer, 21, was located by a police officer inside the Harbor Bar at approximately 3 a.m. Witnesses had alleged a short time earlier that Sweitzer had backed a pickup truck into a tree in the parking lot.

While the trooper was speaking to Sweitzer outside the business, the suspect reportedly urinated and failed to comply with repeated requests to comply with sobriety testing. As Sweitzer was being arrested and handcuffed, he allegedly resisted arrest, according to an MSP supervisor on the scene.

Sweitzer was described as being "extremely verbally abusive, loud, and uncooperative" during the entire period of police transport, incarceration and processing, and refused to sign the paperwork stemming from his arrest, police said.

Sweitzer faces charges of resisting arrest, disorderly conduct, indecent exposure, failure to obey a lawful order, driving under the influence of alcohol, and unsafe backing. Following his arrest, he was released from the Garrett County Jail on his own recognizance.

DUI ARREST

State troopers arrested Stephen Paul Schmoker, 22, Rising Sun, for DUI at approximately 2 a.m. Sunday morning on Deep Creek Drive near the Point View Inn.

Area Agency On Aging To Host Benefit Pig Roast

The Area Agency on Aging, operating under the direction of the Garrett County Community Action Committee, will host a pig roast on Saturday, Sept. 27, at Broadford Park, Pavilion 1, from noon until 5 p.m.

Because of significant reductions in state funding, the pig roast event will help the agency raise funds to maintain services for the aging, including home-delivered meals, a spokesperson said.

The ticket cost is $35, which entities the holder and a guest to all food and beverages ($7 per person covers the food and drink; the remainder is a donation). Entertainment will also be provided. Each ticket holder also has the opportunity to win $25 to $200 or other prizes during drawings to be held throughout the day.

Guests will also have the opportunity to try their luck at dunking a "local notable" as an additional fund-raising activity.

The day's menu will include roast pig, corn on the cob, kraut, parsley potatoes, grilled Italian sausage, rolls, homemade pies, beer, and soda.

Tickets may be purchased at Proudfoot's or Gregg's pharmacies in Oakland; Beachy's Pharmacy in Grantsville; Deep Creek Pharmacy in McHenry; Kathy's Furniture at Deep Creek Lake; the AAA office at 104 E. Center St., Oakland; or at the Grantsville and Mary Browning (Oakland) senior centers.

DC Mountain Resort Donates To GCMH Event

The Deep Creek Mountain Resort Development Partners recently presented a $15,000 donation to the Garrett County Memorial Hospital Foundation as the largest major corporate sponsor for the upcoming Autumn Splendor Dinner Dance scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 20, at the Wisp Resort.

The partnership that owns the Deep Creek Mountain Resort also pledged $300,000 to the hospital's recent capital campaign.

Known for their support of community projects, the partnership members are unanimous in their belief that Garrett County Memorial Hospital has been "a vital part of the community for over 50 years and has served its residents and visitors with compassion and quality care."

"We are pleased to be part of the team that is enabling GCMH to provide the services and medical care we all expect in times of emergency during the coming years," said Karen Myers, partner, DCD, LLC.

The Autumn Splendor Dinner Dance is a black tie optional event organized in celebration of the Hospital Foundation's Capital Campaign, which has raised more than $2.6 million toward the hospital's current renovation/construction project. All proceeds from the event will be used to fund equipment vital to patient care.

Additional information or tickets can be obtained by calling 301-533-4041 or 301-334-4178.

They would like to stay together in a new home so they can continue their daily wrestling matches. Both are altered and ready to go. To adopt any of these fine pets, persons may contact the Garrett County Animal Shelter at 301-334-3553.

Collision Injures Motorcyclist On Friendsville Rd.

A Pennsylvania woman was injured in a Monday morning collision between her motorcycle and a truck on Friendsville Road, according to Maryland State Police troopers assigned to the McHenry barrack.

Rosemary Varesko, 42, Rices Landing, was traveling north between Garrett Highway and Hoyes Run Road when for unknown reasons she lost control of her 2003 Yamaha V-Star motorcycle and drifted into the oncoming lane. The cycle collided with a southbound 2003 Chevrolet Silverado pickup truck operated by George H. Keller, 48, of Grafton, W.Va.

Varesko, who was ejected from her motorcycle, was transported by the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where she was treated for minor injuries, police said. The Deep Creek Volunteer Fire Company also responded to the accident scene.

A Pet Peeve...

With a severe case of writer's block being experienced here, literally minutes before the absolute deadline for this rag today, we turn to the "pet peeve" department and come up with one that has been particularly noticed this summer in Garrett County.

One reads much about why it is important to wear seatbelts while operating or riding in an automobile, to make sure children are securely fastened in car seats, to never drink and drive, and to drive within the posted speed limits. Lately we have even read about under what conditions it is legal, or illegal, to pass a vehicle on the right.

This is all important safety information, but it is high time that more local drivers begin obeying a law that went into effect a few years ago in Maryland — when one's windshield wipers must be on because of rain, the headlights are also to be turned on. It's that simple, but an estimated 20% of drivers choose to ignore this particular law.

And why is that? Are they afraid that their headlights are going to experience an early burnout from overuse? Is it because they can see just fine, and couldn't care less about whether or not an oncoming driver can see them? Is it just outright defiance? Is it pure ignorance?

The same illogic seems to apply when it is getting dark outside. Some drivers evidently like to see just how dark it can get before they decide that they need their headlights.

Wet weather conditions in recent weeks have often included extreme darkness even during the middle of the day, sometimes dark enough to cause streetlights to come on. Just a few days ago in such conditions this writer nearly pulled out into the path of an oncoming car to pass a slow-moving vehicle in front. The oncoming car could barely be seen.

Perhaps it's time for our various law enforcement officers to remind drivers of the wiper/headlight law.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Needed: Extraordinary person. Why: To donate a kidney. Reward: Provide the gift of life.

While most of us live a rather usual life, there are those who struggle daily just to experience "normality." My friend Marla Mayles is one of those people searching for normal. Marla is in desperate need of a kidney, as she has lost not one, but the function of both of her kidneys. Without dialysis, she faces the worst fear: death. She, like thousands stricken with kidney disease, has been placed on the National Transplant list at University of Maryland. The expected wait is three to five years for a transplant donor.

Marla is a 37-year-old mother, wife, and resident of Garrett County, residing in Swanton with her husband Bob and their two sons, 7-year-old Matt and 2-year-old Michael.

Like many amazing women, Marla juggles the all too familiar roles of being a wife and mother while working full-time. Some of you may know Marla. She works in the commercial insurance division at Gonder Insurance Agency in Oakland. The difference between Marla and an average working mother, however, is that she now has the added responsibility to herself and her family to perform daily kidney dialysis to simply stay alive.

Imagine knowing that each day could be your last. Imagine the stress one must feel knowing that without being hooked up to a machine to flush out the deadly poisons, your life could end. This is the morning wake-up call Marla receives before she begins each and every day. Now imagine giving the most precious gift available: Life.

For many, the chance to live a full life won't come unless many more of us consider organ donation. Organ donors are heroes. People who choose to donate their organs have the power to save lives – in this case, Marla's. You can make a huge difference not only to Marla but to her family, friends, and loved ones.

If you or someone you know has blood type 'O' (other blood types are acceptable), would like to provide the precious gift of life, and become that hero, we ask that you contact Marla directly. She can be reached at 301-616-2649.

Marla's friend
(and unfortunately unmatched donor),

Editor's note: The writer of the following letter to the Garrett County commissioners requested that it appear in this column.

To the Editor:

After reading about the subject tax and hearing an explanation of it at the recent property owners' meeting, I feel compelled to voice my objection about existing customers having to pay this tax.

As I stated at the POA meeting, I paid my $800 up front for the cost of the original system. Many customers elected to pay a fixed amount annually for the 40-year bonds that were needed to pay for the initial system.

I would like a reply from you gentlemen and to explain to me how you figure I should have to pay anything for this district expansion when the payment burden should be on the shoulders of the developers who are asking for this expansion to include "their projects," not the customers who have already paid for the basic systems. If you insist that I must pay this tax, then the developers now should have to pay a pro-rated share now of the original bonds for the basic system, and return my share to me.

Why should the taxpayers of many years ago (40 years for myself) have to pay for something that we never wanted in the first place and will get no benefit from the expansion now or in the future?

Isn't it time for you to stop subsidizing commercial developers for all the money-making expansions they want all paid for by the taxpayers of Garrett County?

Ordinary retired people cannot afford to live here with the very high taxes you have put on us. Please do not put this proposed ad valorem tax on the people who already have paid their share.

Thank you for your consideration of this problem.

To the Editor:

A year ago I wrote a dramatic production titled The Goodbye Kids, which comprised seven monologues about high-school dropouts. It was presented at a variety of venues and on the whole was considered to be a pertinent commentary on the problems of teens within their society, at home, and at school. This year I have written the flip side to The Goodbye Kids. This sequel, Hello Miss Stepanovich: Letters to Teachers Who Made a Difference, will be presented on October 3 at 7 p.m. at Our Town Theatre. Admission is free, although donations to the theatre are always appreciated.

Hello Miss Stepanovich is a positive look at seven teachers and the impact they have made in adult lives. In the vein of The Goodbye Kids, it is a work of fiction based on interviews and observations – in this case bringing to light the strengths of teachers through seven letters from former students.

With this production I am hoping to introduce a participatory angle. After the letters are presented, I would like to open up the program to the public who may share their own personal letters or feelings about former teachers who made a positive difference in their lives. Hopefully, these participants will send their letters to the deserving instructors who made a difference, but, perhaps before mailing them, they will share them with us on October 3.

Teaching is a profession that is maligned as much as it is admired; a little positive P.R. won't hurt it one bit. As a retired teacher, I know how much the letters and comments of former students can mean, and I am hoping that all who attend the program will communicate affection and gratitude to the instructors who have had positive effects in their lives. This program would be an excellent experience for anyone who is thinking about teaching as a career. I am hoping that it will boost the morale of our local teachers, and create awareness within the non-teaching public of the profession of teaching.

I hope to see you at OTT at 7 p.m. on the 3rd. Direct any questions about this project to me at OTT at 301-334-5640, option #3.

Sincerely yours,
Jane B. Avery

To the Editor:

When we think of highway safety topics we often think of summer time, when we are on the road more because of summer vacations and family trips. However, I would like to remind everyone that highway safety is a year-round issue.

With the start of the school year, I am reminded that, although school buses are statistically the safest mode of transportation, problems arise when drivers continually pass the buses' flashing warning lights. Those who pass may fall into three categories: They are in too much of a hurry and ignore the lights (aggressive driver), they are not paying enough attention and don't see the lights (inattentive or distracted driver), or they are unsure of the law (which requires vehicles in all lanes to stop for buses).

In an attempt to try to help the police crack down on this constant problem, several of the school buses in the county are equipped with cameras. A conviction could bring up to a $275 fine.

Even in Garrett County, aggressive driving and inattentive driving cause many other problems. About 46% of vehicle crashes in the county are attributed to inattentive driving. That's more than any other cause.

In Maryland, aggressive driving is defined as committing three or more of the following offenses at the same time, or during a continuous driving period: traffic signal violation, improper passing, failure to drive in a single or proper lane, following too closely, failure to stop/yield right-of way, or exceeding the speed limit.

All of these behaviors can be attributed to one thing – being in too much of a hurry. Life is too short to take that kind of chance! All of us need to slow down and pay attention to what we are doing, if not for ourselves, for the stake of the children.

Although we are concerned about the safety of everyone on the roads, we are especially concerned about the youngest passengers, who cannot make their own choices concerning safety issues.

Whether it's the young biker who happens out into the road, or the child who's getting off the bus, we owe it to them to be cautious and obey the laws. And if we are the adult in charge, we need to make sure they are properly restrained in a child safety seat, booster seat, or safety belt, depending on their age. Beginning October 1, Maryland lawmakers are trying to help us do just that by requiring children to be in a child restraint until they are at least 6 years old.

So, next time you get behind the wheel, remember that driving is a privilege and a responsibility. Laws are made to protect us as well as others, so buckle up, slow down, pay attention, stop for buses, be patient and courteous, and watch out for the little ones – both inside and out of the vehicle.

Sincerely,
Diane Lee
Highway Safety Coordinator

To the Editor:

Congressional lawmakers will soon vote on legislation that would allow Americans to purchase prescription drugs from pharmacies in Canada where drug prices are much lower. This "re-importation" seems like a good idea, especially for older Americans who are anxious to lower their prescription drug bills. But the legislation raises two important questions that lawmakers should address: How can the safety of re-imported drugs be assured, and how can the U.S. bring lower drug prices to its own pharmacies?

The prescription drugs purchased from U.S. pharmacies are safe, effective, and of very high quality. Drugs from Canada, Mexico, and Europe may be cheaper, but are they as safe and are their origins as well known? According to the federal Department of Health and Human Services, "a growing number of Americans are obtaining their prescription medications from foreign sources and when they do so, consumers are exposing themselves to a number of safety risks that must not be ignored. In the Food and Drug Administration's experience, many drugs obtained from foreign sources that either purport to be or appear to be the same as U.S.-approved prescription drugs are, in fact, of unknown quality."

That concern is shared by the American Medical Association. At a recent meeting, the AMA delegates voted against a resolution supporting re-importation, because of concern that "the FDA could not ensure the integrity and safety of products imported from Canada or other foreign countries." According to the delegates, "the break in the chain in regulatory control makes patient harm a real possibility."

Not only is there reason to worry that drug re-importation could expose U.S. consumers to unsafe prescription drugs, it also could severely slow the development of new miracle cures. Pharmaceuticals are cheaper in Canada and other countries because they are purchased and distributed by a government controlled socialized health care system. Hence, the Canadian government can dictate prices, and it does so at a level far below what drug firms need to recover their immense research costs. However, because the companies would rather receive a little money than none at all, they sell their drugs to Canada at the discounted rate and then they raise their prices to U.S. consumers in order to recover the research costs.

Instead of addressing the unfairness of Canada and other wealthy nations pushing the world's drug research costs onto the shoulders of U.S. consumers, congressional lawmakers want Americans to latch on to Canada's socialized medicine system. The lawmakers need to keep in mind a basic economic truth that both theory and experience have proved: Price controls do not work because they increase demand, stifle supply and ultimately lead to rationing. In fact, they invariably worsen any problem they attempt to solve.

History is littered with examples of price-control failures. The gas lines of the 1970s appeared when President Nixon subscribed to a failed price-control policy. More recently, the blackouts in California of 2000-2001 resulted when Gov. Gray Davis refused to alter that state's rigid consumer price controls. By leaving those controls in place, Davis allowed demand to grow unchecked and enabled government-owned utilities and energy corporations to game the California electricity market.

The U.S. pharmaceutical industry is the most innovative and productive in the world, and it provides consumers with the best and safest medicines available. That is why American drug companies are so far ahead of their foreign counterparts in making medical breakthroughs and formulating miracle drugs. But drug research is a very costly, complex, and time-consuming process. Each new drug represents some $800 million in research and 12 to 15 years of study.

Drug maker Eli Lilly alone spent $2.2 billion in 2001 on the quest to discover and develop innovative medicines. In addition, the firm's "Lilly Cares" program that provides drugs to low-income and uninsured patients assisted approximately 200,000 people in 2001, fulfilling more than 375,000 requests for products valued collectively at over $200 million. That is just one of the programs that Lilly and other pharmaceutical companies have that provides discounted medicines to low-income U.S. seniors and people with disabilities.

In Maryland, Senator Barbara Mikulski has stepped up and become a leader on the Senate side in the effort to maintain the safety of America's prescription drug supply. Conversely, during the House debate last month, Representative Roscoe Bartlett's strong support for a broad drug reimportation provision was especially disappointing. Getting conservative House members like Bartlett to place greater emphasis on the safety of prescription drugs may be the key to the outcome of this provision in the conference committee.

The conclusion is painfully clear: Legislation to import unsafe prescription drugs through another country's socialized medicine system will not provide a true cure to the high cost of drugs in the U.S. Rather, such legislation would be a sugar pill, a placebo, a deceiver. And as such, it would be dangerous or even deadly to consumers.

Sincerely,
Christopher B. Summers
President, Maryland Public Policy Institute

To the Editor:

I read with interest the recently adopted regulations regarding "mini hotels." Unfortunately, these regulations seem rife with ambiguities. Nevertheless, the ad hoc committee and county commissioners are to be commended for the first serious effort to control runaway rental activity around the lake. The very fact that "transient vacation rental units" are now defined as a separate use and occupancy category subject to explicit restrictions and limits represents a major step forward.

For years these units represented a kind of hybrid in an in-between zone. On the one hand, they were certainly more than simply "single-family residences" as represented to the zoning office during construction, and yet they obviously were not actual hotels or motels, which are not permitted in lake residential areas. However, as the number and size of these large rental units increased and became more elaborate with fancier amenities and higher rents, it became obvious that these units were not simply "single-family residences" as represented since they were not being used as such. They were, in fact, investment properties operated continuously for profit with all the attendant tax benefits under the federal tax laws.

Nevertheless, the zoning office continued to accept the "single-family residence" fiction and did nothing to deal with the anomaly apart from issuing more permits for ever larger and more elaborate structures until eventually such structures reached "mini hotel" proportions, and someone (not sure who) with insight as to what was happening, an eye to the future, and with enough clout to warrant the attention of those in charge decided to do something about it. I applaud that effort and all those who assisted in the adoption of these new regulations.

Now that the regulations are in place, however, it would seem that the next order of business is to clarify at least the major ambiguities, namely, the effective date of the new regulations, which I would assume is the date adopted, i.e., August 5, 2003; the fact that the regulations apply to all existing rental structures as well as to new construction going forward (this is a critical point); and that the two persons per bedroom plus four occupancy rule applies to all three categories of rentals established under the regulations, i.e., rentals with up to five bedrooms, those with six to eight bedrooms, and those with over eight bedrooms.

As I read the regulations, the rental of homes with nine or more bedrooms is not permitted at all (presumably the owners of existing homes with nine or more bedrooms can treat them as eight-bedroom homes for rental purposes), and homes with six to eight bedrooms in a lake residential zone will require a special exception. I would imagine that the owners of these properties and their lawyers, as well as the Board of Zoning Appeals, are going to be busy for quite some time preparing, processing, and deciding applications for special exceptions. My concern going forward is that the zoning office do its job to monitor and enforce the new occupancy limits and that the Board of Zoning Appeals not subvert the new regulatory scheme by routinely granting special exceptions.

While on the subject, let me point out another kind of "mini" that can similarly adversely affect lake-front property owners in the peaceful enjoyment of their homes. I refer specifically to the development of the private "mini-park" on buffer strip land. It is probably not generally known that the DNR will issue to a corporate owner of a lake front lot with a minimum of 100 foot of frontage, e.g., a homeowners' association, a buffer strip use permit that will enable that corporate owner (in the case of a homeowners' association, essentially its membership and their guests) to use the buffer strip for recreational purposes and to install a four-slip community dock. The additional authorization of amenities, such as in-ground grills, picnic tables, gazebo, etc., completes the private park. Moreover, an accommodative zoning office permits a lake-front lot to be used for parking as an accessory use to recreation on the buffer strip. The result is a private "mini park" with parking for members and guests of the homeowners' association.

While it would probably make no economic sense to turn a valuable lake-front lot into a "mini park" for a relatively small number of users, the economics begin to make sense when the number of potential users totals around 350 families or more. Certainly the opportunity exists to leverage the value of a lake front lot with adjoining private "mini park" by offering indirect ownership and access to potential purchasers of lots in large off-lake developments, which need not even be in Garrett County. I would imagine that many buyers of lots in developments in the suburbs of Baltimore or Washington would be willing to pay additionally for the opportunity to recreate on weekends with their fellow association members or guests on the shore of Deep Creek Lake.

In any event, I point this out to fellow lake-front property owners to alert them to the possibility that a private "mini park," with attendant noise, trash, and sanitary problems, may be coming to their neighborhood, courtesy of the DNR and the local zoning office, and all this without any opportunity for public comment or input or any environmental or safety review or assessment of the impact on the buffer strip or lake.

Sincerely,
William G. Hrindac

Oakland Police Set Bike Helmet Distribution Event

The Oakland Police Department has expanded its bicycle safety program and, with assistance from the local Taco Bell restaurant, will be giving away 25 bicycle helmets valued at a total of $300 to area youngsters at an upcoming event. The chief said the 25 youngsters and their parents are being invited as the restaurant's guests to a dinner set for 6 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 11, at which time the helmets will be presented.

"These bicycle helmets will protect area youngsters when riding, and assure their compliance with the law," commented Oakland Police chief John Sines. "This is a major step forward in our program to make certain our youngsters avoid injury while bicycling on our roadways. We are grateful to Taco Bell's Good Neighbor Program for responding to our effort to make bicycling safe for our kids."

As part of an arrangement with Oakland's Taco Bell, Sines secured funding for 25 helmets. He will present them to the selected youngsters who might otherwise be unable to afford to purchase them. As an added incentive for every biker to wear a helmet, Sines said his police officers have been distributing hundreds of coupons, worth one free taco apiece, to every biker they see wearing a helmet, regardless of age. "The coupon reward will continue indefinitely in hopes that all bikers will observe bicycle safety," stated Sines.

COMMISSIONERS WELCOME NEW MSP REGIONAL COMMANDER – The Garrett County commissioners were introduced this week to Major Michael Ziegler, newly appointed Maryland State Police regional commander for western Maryland. Several law enforcement leaders were present for the informal visit Tuesday morning, including Chief John Sines of the Oakland City Police, Sheriff Dick Sanders, and other officers. They also discussed the importance of cooperation between all law agencies, and pledged to continue to work together through programs such as the Garrett Bureau of Investigation (GBI). ## Loch Lynn Church To Host Women's Program, Speaker

Insect Stings Can Be Serious

For most people, getting stung by a bee or a wasp only causes swelling, pain, and redness at the sting site. However, to those who are allergic to insect venom a single sting can lead to severe reactions like extended swelling or shock. Severe allergic reactions are estimated to occur in 60% of allergic adults after they are stung. With shock, serious or life-threatening events can occur. These include painful hives, internal swelling that blocks off airways, and collapse of the circulatory system.

Initially, oral steroids like methylprednisolone are effective when given one to two hours after an allergic person is stung. However, if the person rapidly develops a severe allergic reaction, a shot of epinephrine usually is administered. People who have had severe reactions can undergo venom immunotherapy. Small amounts of the venom are given as shots over several weeks until the body learns a better way of responding.

Library News

New Genealogy Resources Available At Ruth Enlow Library

Through its membership in the Maryland Public Library System, the Ruth Enlow Library now can offer its patrons HeritageQuest Online, a new and powerful resource for people interested in finding and studying their ancestors.

This resource is free of charge and is available online to genealogical researchers who are library card holders. The data base includes U.S. federal census data from 1790 to 1930 and the texts of approximately 25,000 historical and genealogical books, one of the largest collections of genealogical material in the country, according to a spokesperson. Indexes and page images of census data are in place for most of the years between 1790 and 1930, and will be available for the rest by the end of this year, the spokesperson said.

The federal census data is more accessible and more easily usable in this on-line format as compared to what was formerly offered at the library, the spokesperson continued. In addition, the search engine connected to this data base can research both the census data and the material in the book collection by name, by place of birth, ethnicity, age, and a variety of other variables.

"A genealogical researcher can, for instance, look for all people named Jones, born in Wales in the 1880s, and living in Somerset County, Pa.," the spokesperson said.

HeritageQuest Online will continue to add resources to this data base. Scheduled for the next round of additions are newspaper obituaries from 150 newspapers across the country, Revolutionary War pension reports, bounty and land warrant application files, and freedmen's bank records. In the future, the data base will include ships' passenger lists, military histories, city directories, vital records, and other categories of genealogical information.

HeritageQuest Online can be accessed from the Ruth Enlow Library's web page. Patrons will be asked for their library card numbers and then will be able access the material through the link titled "On-Line Data Bases."

The vast resources this system offers should make researching one's family history more interesting and more accessible, the spokesperson said. Most library personnel are familiar with the system and can offer suggestions.

Keela Pfaff at the Oakland library reported that the patrons who have tried the system at the library have found it very helpful. Keela has had special training on the data base and is willing to assist patrons in understanding how HeritageQuest Online works.

Grantsville Business Builds New Warehouse

Total Biz Fulfillment held a ground-breaking ceremony in support of another warehouse expansion recently. This is its fourth such expansion since arriving in Garrett County in 1993.

Just four months after the groundbreaking, Rev. Sam Wachter of Deep Creek United Methodist Church consecrated the building in front of Total Biz Fulfillment staff.

Total Biz has opened the dock doors of its new 43,750 square foot warehouse and is welcoming incoming truck deliveries. In less than one year, Total Biz Fulfillment owners Gary and Luanne Ruddell have watched their business grow from 45 associates to 62.

Additionally, the business has been chosen as a Garrett County worksite to acknowledge how the Maryland Department of Business and Economic Development has partnered with growing businesses to "grow" the Maryland economy.

Junkins-Griffith Reunion Held

The reunion was planned by a committee consisting of Ed and Linda Margraff, Melissa Margraff, Susie Colaw, and Bobby and Jo Ann Tichnell, with the help of many family members. The day's festivities began with the salute to the flag, a moment of remembrance for loved ones, a scripture reading by Carole Sue Sarfino, and original poetry by James Lear.

Activities for the children, organized by Ann and Donna Junkins, included painting T-shirts and carry-all bags. Vera Tichnell and Todd Bosley assembled a prize bag for each child. Carrie Pratt did face painting, and Miko Smith taught origami (paper folding).

Marguerite (Junkins) Petitt, Sebring, Fla., was the oldest family member present. Kenneth G. Lease, a family friend, was the oldest man. Additional prizes were awarded to David and Marty Tichnell, longest distance, Albuquerque, N.M.; Bob and Keni Ann Watkins, most newly married; Fred and Vera Tichnell, largest family present; and Mackenzie, daughter of Scott and Tracy Junkins, youngest child. Many door prizes were also awarded.

Campbell's Clays Slated For Display At Garrett Art Gallery

The Art Gallery of Garrett College will host an exhibition of ceramic works by artist Joseph P. Campbell from this Saturday, Sept. 6, through Thursday, Oct. 9. An opening reception is set for this Saturday evening from 7 to 10 p.m. The event is open to the public.

"It seems natural that Joe Campbell would become an expert in clay, being born and raised in Claysburg, Pa.," commented GC art professor Ron Skidmore. "His talent in pottery and knowledge of ceramic processes has made him a mentor to many other potters, and he is regarded locally as an authority on wood-fired ceramics."

The exhibition includes wood-fired pottery along with salt-fired and soda-fired stoneware. His recent work in glaze painting has also led him into the craft of making brushes, which are constructed with bamboo handles and various bristles or hair for aqueous glazes, slip trailing, and other painting techniques.

Campbell who teaches brushmaking, will offer a workshop on the craft on Friday, Sept. 12, at Garrett College. Interested persons should contact Skidmore at the college's Art Department at 301-387-3024.

Campbell has an extensive background in art with previous exhibitions in Japan, New Mexico, and many local galleries in Frostburg and Frederick, and has mounted a pair of previous exhibitions at Garrett College. He currently resides near Harper's Ferry, W.Va., and is an associate professor of art at Frederick Community College. He holds a bachelor's degree in art from Frostburg State University and a master's of fine arts from Ohio University.

This exhibition is made possible in part by a grant from the Garrett County Arts Council and the Maryland State Arts Council. Gallery hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays, and on evenings and weekends during special events. For more information, persons may contact the GC Art Department at the number listed above.

GC GALLERY HOSTING CERAMICS DISPLAY, RECEPTION – An exhibition of ceramic works by Frederick Community College art professor Joseph Campbell will open Saturday, Sept. 6, and continue through Thursday, Oct. 9, at the Garrett College Art Gallery. The features wood-fired pottery, and salt- and soda-fired stoneware. An opening reception, slated for this Saturday from 7 to 10 p.m., will give the public the opportunity to meet the artist and discuss his artistic vision. For further information, persons may call the GC Art Department at 301-387-3024.

Professor Hurd To Read From Her New Book

Dr. Barbara Hurd, Frostburg State University English professor and acclaimed author, will offer a reading from her critically acclaimed new book, Entering the Stone: On Caves and Feeling Through the Dark, on Tuesday, Sept. 7, at 7:30 p.m. in the Atkinson Room in FSU's Lane Center.

Hurd's reading will be the third in her series of University System of Maryland Wilson H. Elkins lectures, a requirement of the professorship she has been awarded for two consecutive years. There will be an opportunity to ask questions, and Hurd will sign books following the reading.

"Entering the Stone is not a scientific text, although it contains plenty of well-researched science," said an FSU spokesperson, "Nor is it a how-to book on caving, even though Hurd passes on much of the knowledge she gained from the experienced cavers who were her guides."

Like her previous book of essays, Stirring the Mud: On Swamps, Bogs, and Human Imagination, Hurd uses her experiences and knowledge of real caves as the starting point for her literary explorations.

"Call it an 'imaginative adventure' about both the cave and my responses to the cave," Hurd said.

The New York Times writes: "She brings a fresh eye and gentle persistence to . . . tricky realms of existence . . . . Reading Entering the Stone is not unlike exploring a cave system. The layout may be unclear. Some quarters may be confined. But then, unexpectedly, a seemingly unconnected chamber will converge with other passages and you find yourself in an expansive space and feel you've encountered something enlightening."

"Hurd writes the kind of lushly mysterious prose that we feel in our bones," writes the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette. A reviewer for the Baltimore Sun wrote: "Entering the Stone is the first book in years that, finished, left me of a mind to start all over again."

Among Hurd's many honors are a National Endowment for the Arts Literature Fellowship, the Bright Hill Press Poetry Prize, and the Towson University Prize for Literature. Stirring the Mud was chosen one of the Best Books of 2001 by the Los Angeles Times.

FSU Cultural Events Shows Set For September

The Frostburg State University Cultural Events Series is offering three consecutive weeks of performances for September.

The CES season will open with Dream Scapes on Saturday, Sept. 13, at 3 and 8 p.m., in the Performing Arts Center Drama Theatre. Created by Steve Reid of the Rippingtons and Supertramp fame, this multimedia production features a cast of dancers, Cirque du Soleil aerialists, and an ensemble of musicians with the vocals of '80s pop artist Maxine Nightingale.

Reid, a world-renowned percussionist and producer, has played on over 700 recordings, produced several gold records globally, and holds a Grammy for his work with the legendary Miles Davis. Featured on saxophones and a variety of unusual flutes is former Rippingtons and Native Language recording artist Jeff Kashiwa. Dig Lewis, on bass, heralds from such performers as Stevie Wonder and Boz Skaggs, while Blake Arron performs on electric and acoustical guitars. Providing keyboard harmonies is Hans Zirmuhlen, while Rogerio Jardim rounds out the group on drums and percussion.

Joining a cast of dancers directed by choreographer Louise Reichlin are five aerialists from Cirque du Soleil, who perform aerial ballets.

The Bonnie Rideout Scottish Trio will present "Scottish Fire!" on Saturday, Sept. 20, at 8 p.m. in the Pealer Recital Hall. "With a distinctive blend of lyricism and intensity, Bonnie Rideout brings an exuberance and animation to traditional Scottish tunes, Highland bagpipe music, and ancient Gaelic melodies. An American fiddler with a passion for the music of the Scottish Highlands, Rideout is one of the top performers to wield a bow. With Steve Holloway's driving Celtic percussion rhythms and Bryan Aspey's dynamic guitar, the Bonnie Rideout Scottish Trio brings a timeless legacy to pulsating, foot-stomping life onstage," stated a program spokesperson.

A three-time U.S. Scottish fiddle champion, Rideout has performed her repertoire on stages from Scotland's renowned Edinburgh International Festival to Washington, D.C.'s, John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, and is the only American to hold the honor of representing Scottish fiddle music in Edinburgh. Appearing frequently on the BBC, CBS News Sunday Morning, the Thistle and the Shamrock, and NPR's Performance Today, Rideout has released 10 solo albums, made numerous guest appearances on other CDs, and published nine music instruction books for Mel Bay Publishing Company.

This event is sponsored by Best Western Braddock and presented in partnership with FSU Center for International Education.

CES will open its new Family Series with the Box of Light Theatre presentation of the children's classic Peter Pan on Thursday, Sept. 25, at 7:30 p.m. in the Pealer Recital Hall.

This presentation combines elements of traditional theatre with computer animation, Bunraku-style puppetry, and audience participation in this 21st century adaptation of the J.M. Barrie classic. Under the direction of artist Rand Whipple, Box of Light Theatre has performed for audiences in 11 countries on four continents, including performances at the Smithsonian Institution and on public television.

Peter Pan is co-presented with the FSU's Children's Literature Centre and is partially supported by a grant from Pennsylvania Performing Arts on Tour, a program developed and funded by the Vira I. Heinz Endowment; the William Penn Foundation; the Pennsylvania Council on the Arts, a state agency; and the Pew Charitable Trusts; and it is administered by Mid-Atlantic Arts Foundation.

Season tickets and subscriptions, including the new Family Series subscription, are available. To purchase tickets or to obtain more information, persons may call the FSU Cultural Events Box Office at 301-687-3137 or toll free at 1-866-TIXX-CES, or visit online at ces.frostburg.edu.

Additional packages include the Arts Getaway Packages, providing accommodations for two (at the Best Western Braddock in LaVale, Cumberland Holiday Inn, or Rocky Gap Resort), selected meal options, transportation between the hotel and the FSU campus, a special welcome gift at check in, and two tickets for preferred seating for the Cultural Events Series performance. One can also add a Dinner Show Package to a ticket purchase. The Dinner Show Package provides complimentary transportation to and from the FSU campus to any one of five participating restaurants, including BJ's at the Gladstone, Gehauf's, Giuseppe's Italian Restaurant, Harrigan's, and the Tombstone Café.

Swanton Musician's Songs To Be Included in Major Box Compilation

Four songs, one an original composition, recorded in the mid 1970s by Swanton area resident Lynn Beckman will be among the selections featured in a new CD box set being compiled by Bear Family Records, a German company noted as a top marketer of music collections and historic compilations of various genres.

The forthcoming release will be the sixth and final volume of a series of recordings by the D Record Company, founded in 1958 by H.W. "Pappy" Daily Sr. Daily's label played a major role in the development of country music, especially in the southwestern U.S., by giving a start to the careers of a number of top artists, including George Jones, George Strait, and Willie Nelson.

"The four songs of mine to be included are 'House On A Mountain,' 'One Light On In The Neighborhood,' 'I Just Wondered,' and the only one of the four I wrote called 'Wasting Time,'" Beckman commented.

The news came to Beckman in the form of a phone call from Scotland, when a Scottish producer, historian, and researcher, Kevin Coffey, told Beckman that he was seeking information for a book that would be accompanying the box set.

"...toward the end of its life as a singles label "D" issued the first sides by future superstar George Strait, then the lead singer for the Texas dance hall group called 'The Hole In The Wall Band,'" Coffey wrote for the finished book. "There was also a series of Nashville sessions, and among the last of these that were produced by Eddie Noack, and one of the best, was by the Maryland-based singer Lynn Beckman."

"Coffey said he even had copies of my recordings in front of him as we talked," recalled Beckman. "It was awesome to think that copies of my recordings had traveled that far, existed that long, and were still of interest to someone. I had long thought they were bygone relics, forgotten and never to surface again.

"A lot of artists got started on "D" Records down through the years including such all-time greats as Strait, George Jones, and Willie Nelson. I'm happy to see the label finally getting some recognition for its contributions to the industry."

The D Records compilation venture is similar to a well-received Bear Family box set of Sun Records recordings the German company issued several years ago. That compilation featured the entire catalog of Sun Records, reissued in chronological order, and featuring the earliest recording sessions of artists including Johnny Cash, Carl Perkins, Jerry Lee Lewis, and Elvis Presley.

"What Pappy Daily was doing with D Records in the southwest was in many ways parallel to what Sam Phillips was doing in Memphis at Sun Records," remarked Beckman.

Further information on the upcoming Bear Family Records release that will include Beckman's songs can be obtained from Beckman at 301-387-9275.

PAINTED HORSES

Painted horses carry me through my space in time.
Tragedies of days gone by and dreams of days to come.
Beckon me on these fiery steeds and the race of life's begun.
In my journey through life I will always succeed,
But the race is never won.

My past is a ride through the deepest canyons of my mind,
On a horse that's wild and dark.
A broken heart, a shattered dream, sorrow and remorse.
This is the mood I'm in, when I ride the dark horse.

My future is a ride through my wildest dreams,
On a red horse with a wild mane.
I must cherish the dreams I hold so dear,
And rid myself of worry and fear.
I just can't seem to tame,
The red horse with the wild mane.

My present is a ride through billowing clouds,
On a horse that's gentle and white.
She's busy at work and busy at play,
And she makes friends and lovers along the way.
I'm going to ride with all my might,
The beautiful horse that's gentle and white.

So paint your horses as you will,
And ride like the wind.
Painted horses are elusive, you must find them deep within.
They'll take you through deep valleys and climb the highest hills,
And before the ride is through you'll find

Brushmaking Class Set By GC Art Dept.

The Art Department of Garrett College is sponsoring a brush-making workshop by visiting artist Joe Campbell, on Friday, Sept. 12. Professional potter and associate professor of art at Frederick Community College, Campbell is also a brush-maker, and has produced specialty brushes for over five years.

He is currently exhibiting his ceramic artwork in the College art gallery until Oct. 9, and will be offering a one-day session in brushmaking that will run from 10 a.m. to noon, and 1 p.m. to approximately 3:30 p.m.

The brushes included in the workshop are intended for ceramic decoration, such as slip painting, glaze washes, or underglaze applications, but are also excellent for use with watercolors or drawing inks. They will vary in size, shape, and construction with bamboo handles and different kinds of bristles or hairs, each with its own unique type of stroke or marking. The appearance of the finely crafted brushes is aesthetically pleasing, according to a spokesperson, and their practical use is enhanced by their fine sense of balance. Some brushes and examples of the brushwork are displayed in Campbell's exhibit at the college.

Reservation and prepayment are required for the workshop, and the enrollment is limited to 10 participants. For more information or to enroll, persons may contact Ron Skidmore of the GC Art Department at 301-387-3024.

BRUSHMAKING CLASS SLATED AT GARRETT – A one-day brushmaking workshop will be offered by the Art Department of Garrett College on Friday, Sept. 12, from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., with a one-hour break for lunch. The facilitator will be brushmaker Joseph Campbell, a professional potter and associate professor of art at Frederick Community College. The brushes included in the workshop are intended for ceramic decoration applications, but can also be used with watercolors or drawing inks. ## Pianist Richmond To Give Concert To Benefit OTT Building Project

Franko Richmond, a world-renowned pianist and composer, will be the guest artist for a special concert at Our Town Theatre (OTT) on Saturday, Sept. 13, at 8 p.m.

Sponsored by David and Irene Eyer, the concert is a benefit for the "Backstage" building project of OTT. The Backstage is the proposed scenery and costume shop facility, to be built on the corner lot at the intersection of First and Center streets.

Richmond is the protegé of classical concert pianist Earl Wild and jazz legend Ahmad Jamal. He began his career as a child prodigy and teenage international competition pianist performing in Carnegie Hall. He was on scholarship at Chautauqua Institute and studied privately at the Curtis Institute in Philadelphia.

Richmond graduated magna cum laude from Lycoming College in Pennsylvania, became Earl Wild's teaching assistant at Penn State University earning an M.F.A., and was awarded the Mellon Pre-Doctoral Fellowship at the University of Pittsburgh, where he worked on a doctoral degree.

At age 23, the pianist appeared at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C., as the guest soloist with the National Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Anatol Dorati.

Richmond is a recording artist, has co-authored two Broadway shows, and has written a movie score. His environmental theme song, "The Time Has Come," received international attention at the 1992 United Nations Earth Summit in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, where it was sung by street children to world leaders.

In Manaus, Brazil, in the Amazon, "TTHC" was sung by 150 international students in three languages, and was televised and broadcast to 50 countries. "TTHC" was chosen as the theme for the 25th anniversary of Earth Day in 1995 in the U.S. and abroad.

Richmond is published by Hal Leonard and is a Steinway Artist. The Florida Keys Council of the Arts chose him as the recipient of the "2002 Renaissance Award," which provided the opportunity to orchestrate his popular "Concerto Latino."

CDs by the musician are Concerto Latino (with quartet), Doorway to Love (solo piano), Franko Richmond Classical Concert, The Many Faces of Franko Richmond (a sampler), and Franko Richmond Favorites.

Richmond and his wife, Gail Lima, have resided in Key West for three years. He is presently performing at the Casa Marina, Banana Cafe, Virgilio's, for private parties, and teaches students of all ages and levels.

Concert guests at Our Town Theatre will be invited to a wine and hors d'oeuvre reception with the artist. Tickets are $15 per person. Reservations may be made by calling the theatre at 301-334-5640 and leaving a message (Option #1).

Patchwork Set To Perform At Frostburg State

Patchwork will appear in concert in Pealer Recital Hall on Friday, Sept. 26, at 8 p.m. and Sunday, Sept. 28, at 3 p.m. The program will feature classical selections for piano, Broadway love songs, and traditional folk music selections by musicians Joan DeVee Dixon, Greg Latta, Suzi Mills, and Jeff Ward, and guitarists Chris Alexander and Jeff Klinetob.

Selections by Dixon will include "Rhapsody on the Theme by Paganini" by Rachmaninoff, "Rhapsody in Blue" by Gershwin, and "Satin Doll" by Duke Ellington. Selections by Dr. Mills will include "I Will Always Love You" and an original composition, "Hopeless." The ensemble musicians will perform several pieces, including "Some Enchanted Evening" by Rodgers and Hammerstein, "How Sweet It Is" by James Taylor, "Can You Feel the Love Tonight?" by Elton John, and "Love Changes Everything" by A.L. Webber.

Tickets are priced at $15 each, and proceeds will benefit the FSU Piano Festival. A wine and cheese reception is slated to begin at 7:15 p.m. before Friday's concert, and afternoon coffee/tea and dessert will be served at 2:15 p.m. before Sunday's concert.

There will also be a display of quilts during the show from the Stitch 'n Time quilting program at the Minimum Security Federal Prison Camp in Cumberland. The School House Quilters Guild community service project brings guild members into the facility to teach inmates the craft of quilting using donated materials. An inmate's first quilt is donated to a children's hospital or family crisis center. Over 100 quilts have been distributed throughout the area since the program began four years ago.

For further concert information, or to reserve tickets, persons may call 301-687-4115. Reservations may also be made by mail by making a check payable to FSU Foundation—Piano Festival and sending it to Dr. Joan DeVee Dixon, Division of Performing Arts, FSU, Frostburg, MD 21532. All tickets will be held at the door.

A TRUE MUSICAL TAPESTRY will be on the program when Patchwork performs at Frostburg State University on Friday and Sunday, Sept. 26 and 28. The Allegany County based group, which will be accompanied by a pair of guitarists, is skilled in a wide variety of musical genres. Pictured from the left are Suzi Mills, Joan DeVee Dixon, and Greg Latta. See story.

Library's Book Club Schedules Sept. Discussion

The Ruth Enlow Library Book Club will meet at 6:30 p.m. on Monday, Sept. 22, to discuss the best selling novel The No. 1 Ladies' Detective Agency by Alexander McCall Smith. All adults may attend.

"The Number 1 Ladies' Detective Agency, located in Gaborone, Botswana, consists of one woman, the engaging Precious Ramotswe," says the publisher's description. "A cross between Kinsey Millhone and Miss Marple, this unlikely heroine specializes in missing husbands, wayward daughters, con men and imposters. When she sets out on the trail of a missing child she is tumbled headlong into some strange situations and not a little danger.

"Deftly interweaving tragedy and humor to create a memorable tale of human desires and foibles, the book is also an evocative portrait of a distant world."

Persons may visit or call the Oakland library at 301-334-3996 to reserve a copy of The No. 1 Ladies' Detective Agency. The library also offers book clubs for students age 6 and up, and further information on book club discussions and other activities is available on the library's Web site at www.relib.net.

All book clubs are funded in part by the Friends of the Ruth Enlow Library.

Huskies Have Excellent Speed, But Must Outrun Injuries To Win

The Northern High School Huskies will field a speedy team on area gridirons this year, but will only go so far if they happen to suffer injuries that could deplete an already small roster, according to NHS varsity head coach Phil Carr. NHS will have to have all its weapons ready to bear in its 2003 season opener, set for 5 p.m. this Saturday when the Huskies match up with the host Smithsburg Leopards.

NHS, which stormed to a 28-4 mark from 1998 through 2000, one of the best showings in the area over those three years, suffered through some lean times over the past two seasons as the Huskies have struggled to a 5-15 record. Northern was 2-8 last season.

"The big years we had, we were almost injury-free," Carr said. "The last two years it's been a nightmare." This year's Huskies would suffer every bit as much, if not more, should a key player or two be lost from the current 20-man roster.

After a grueling slate of pre-season practices, the Huskies' skipper thinks the Northern program may be on an upswing. "We really like what we've seen of our guys' speed and quickness so far, and the team is showing a lot more intensity, desire, and togetherness than we've had recently," said the Huskies' skipper. "Although our numbers aren't large, the quality of our players has shown an improvement.

LOOKING FOR A RETURN TO ROYALTY, the 2003 Northern High School Huskies will have to steer clear of injuries to sail through the upcoming football season with success, according to Northern head coach Phil Carr. After a three-year run as one of the top 1A squads in the state, NHS has been in a slump of late over the past couple of campaigns. "Speed, intensity, and above all teamwork are the keys to our hopes this year," commented Carr. Both the varsity and junior varsity squads are shown above, from the left in the first row: Andrew Frantz, Corey Fike, Jeff Yommer, Chad Carr, Rocco Andres, Steve Snyder, and Dustin Wiland. Second row: Dave Smearman, Trevor Butler, Ben Wagner, Jared Beachy, Eric Johnson, Michael Wolf, Robert Stark, and Keenan Kabell. Third row: Mitch Fost, Nick Payne, Anthony Lewis, Eric Diehl, Tyler Warn, Corey Yoder, Casey Kamp, Adam Rounds, and Jeff Wiland. Fourth row: Corey Diehl, Neil Kamp, Trevor Warnick, Matt Artice, Dom DiRienzo, Jason Doerr, Justin Lowdermilk, John Doerr, and Brock Glotfelty. Fifth row: Jerry Reckner, John Thorp, John Andres, Bryce Manges, Nick Farrell, and Corey Carr. Northern kicks off its campaign this Saturday with a 5 p.m. opener at Smithsburg.

We're especially strong at the skill positions, where we have many returning players who bring valuable experience to their assignments.

"What's just as valuable in its own way is the rough time these guys had last year — that has made them very hungry for success, and so far they've shown that they're willing to put in the hard work that it takes to be successful. You can't teach the willingness to work."

After losing several key players to graduation last spring, Northern has some big holes to fill — none more so than the 300-pound shortfall left by the departure Tom Menges, a mainstay of the Husky line for the past three years. Other familiar faces missing from the NHS roster are Aaron Mitchell, Lee Yoder, and Jordan Brenneman.

Among the top returning players are senior quarterback Andrew Frantz (6-3, 165), who has a full season of running the Huskies' challenging wishbone option offense under his belt. The experienced QB will be joined in the backfield by two smallish but gritty senior halfbacks, Corey Fike (5-9, 170), who went down with a season-ending injury in last year's 28-14 opening loss to Smithsburg, and Dustin Wiland (5-6, 165), whose determination is evidenced by his assignment to the defensive end position on the other side of the ball.

Junior Michael Wolf (5-10, 160), who led the huskies in rushing last year by racking up 843 yards for a 5.6 yard-per-carry average, will likely see limited action in the early weeks of the season as he continues recovering from knee surgery.

Rounding out the backfield is senior fullback Steve Snyder (6-1, 200), who will be working to punch holes in opposing defensive lines.

The Huskies' offensive line, key to the wishbone offense, has undergone a major overhaul since last season. Former starting center Dan Ellis (6-5, 200), has been moved to the tight end position, where the senior's proven blocking ability and speed should come in handy as he works to clear a path for ball carriers to turn the corner. That switch sent senior Chad Carr (6, 205), last year's tight end, inside to a guard position. The Huskies' line also includes senior center Jeff Yommer (5-10, 230), whom Coach Carr rated as one of his top lineman, junior tackles Ben Wagner (5-10, 235) and Trevor Butler (5-10, 270), and sophomore guard Corey Yoder (6-2, 150).

The outside receiving duties will be shared by sure-handed senior Rocco Andres (5-8, 145) and junior Robert Stark (5-8, 145).

Northern's defense, which has been in a major slump over the past two seasons, gave up an average of 30 points per game last year. "We've always had good defenses, but the last two years our typical hard hitting hasn't been there," stated Carr. "We've really been concentrating on our defense so far this summer, and I feel we will improve greatly."

Lining up on the front for the NHS defense will be noseguard Carr, tackles Jarod Beachy (5-10, 220) and Ellis, and ends Snyder and Wiland. The linebacker corps will be the tandem of sophomore Tyler Warn (5-11, 175) and Fike, while roaming the secondary will be either Wolf or sophomore Nick Payne (5-10, 165) at strong safety, free safety Andres, and corners Stark and junior Eric Johnson (5-11, 180).

NHS will start its hunt for a playoff berth with Saturday's opener at Smithsburg, and the contest should prove to be a tough test for the Huskies. The Leopards field over twice as many players on their varsity roster as Northern, and pack a lot of muscle into their jerseys. Despite losing to Smithsburg twice over the past two seasons, however, Carr said the Huskies had played a more physical game than the opposition, only to be outdone by their own mistakes.

"The Leopards are bigger than they've been in the past, with a line that stacks up at an average of 250 pounds per player on either side of the ball," observed Carr. "That size, together with their quickness, is going to make them hard to beat. If we can minimize our mistakes I feel we have a good shot to open up with a win."

Northern's blocking assignments will have to be on the money for NHS's option offense to pay off against Smithsburg's 5-3 defense. The Leopards occasionally use their quickness to send a linebacker on blitzes in passing situations.

The Huskies' defense will be matched up with Smithsburg's Pro-I offense, which fields wide and tight slots that can make for a potent passing scenario. The Leopard running backs have a good deal of speed, Carr observed.

In addition to Saturday's battle, Carr said that some of the toughest contests of the year will be meetings with Keyser, Beall, Berkeley Springs, and Southern — "always Southern," underscored the 1984 NHS grad.

Maddawgs Take Down Eagles To Claim First Place

The unbeaten Northern Maddawgs took sole possession of first place in the Pee Wee Football League this weekend by shooting down the previously undefeated Cresaptown Eagles 19-0 at Northern High School.

The Maddawgs' dominating B team defense, which has yet to give up a single point this season, took the field first and shut down the Eagles' powerful offense. Northern's B offense mounted a pair of long drives during the first quarter, but penalties halted both marches inside the Cresaptown 10-yard line.

Northern's "Killer B" defense bent but didn't break near the end of the first quarter. With the ball at their own six yard line, the Eagles uncorked a passing play that resulted in a wide open field for the Cresaptown receiver, who scampered 86 yards before Northern safety Robert Hill made a saving tackle at the eight yard line. The stanza ended with the squads locked in a scoreless struggle.

Not to be outdone, Northern's A team defense started off the second quarter with a strong goal line stand that held the visitors short of the end zone. The two squads battled through an even stanza until the Maddawgs', Dylan Day scored with time running out in the half on a 14-yard touchdown run. Josh Duckworth carried in the extra point to give Northern a 7-0 lead at the intermission.

The respective B teams returned to the field for the third quarter. Northern's defense stymied the Eagles time and time again, while the Maddawgs' offensive line freed up Cody Rodeheaver for a 40 yard touchdown run.

Northern's A team mounted a fourth quarter scoring drive capped when Duckworth plunged into the end zone from one yard out.

In the evening's C team action, Northern crushed the Eagles 31-13. Tyler Ireland scored four touchdowns for the Maddawgs, while teammate Collin Belcher recorded one touchdown and Colton Grove contributed an extra point.

The Maddawgs hope to continue their unbeaten streak in Frankfort this Saturday when they take on the defending Pee Wee Superbowl champion Colts. Kick-off is slated for 9:30 a.m.

Battle Of Steelers Ends With 15-6 Win For Northern

A "battle of the Steelers" resulted in a 15-6 win for the Northern Steelers as the Garrett County hosts downed the Keyser Steelers in Sunday's game for both Cumberland Area Youth Football League Division I squads.

Northern grabbed a 6-0 lead in the first half when Randy Wiley scored on a touchdown carry, and added another two points later when its "steel curtain" brand of defense forced a safety in the second quarter.

Keyser's only score came from a Scott Weasenforth pass to Brandon Harr in the second stanza.

The hosts upped their lead to 15-0 in the fourth quarter when Nick Graham uncorked a 31-yard touchdown pass to Eric Espada.

Northern's coaches recognized the defensive effort turned in by the Steelers' Matt Weiland, Nathan Payne, and Jared Rodeheaver. Keyser's defense was led by Kevin Vauls and Lester Clifford.

Northern plays at Ridgeley Saturday.

Improvement Virtually Inevitable For More Experienced Ram Squad

Barring a winless season, there is absolutely nothing else that the Southern High School varsity football team can do this season but improve, as the Rams suffered through a 1-9 campaign last year, one of the worst in the school's history.

The Rams will open their 2003 season on the road this Saturday night against a new foe, North Hagerstown, a class 2A school. Four of their first five games will be played away, followed by four straight games at home and their final regular-season contest at Northern.

Jay Tressler, Garrett O'Brien, and Zach Savage are among the top players from last season who were lost to graduation. O'Brien and Savage were named All-Area honorable mention offensive linemen, and Tressler was an honorable mention linebacker.

Experienced returnees include senior lineman/linebacker Chris Bennett (6-0, 205); junior quarterback/defensive back Cory Bosley (6-1, 152); sophomore tailback/linebacker Andrew VanBogelen (6-0, 172); senior split end/defensive back Karl Hillen (5-8, 163); senior full-back/defensive end Zack Uphold (5-11, 170); senior linemen Tyler Ashby (5-10, 197) and Shane Riley (5-7, 148); and junior tailback/defensive back Chad Everd (5-11, 151).

As a freshman, VanBogelen rushed for 462 yards on 86 carries for an average of 5.4 yards per attempt, and scored a team-high five touchdowns.

Other players who will probably start this Saturday include: juniors Scott Wildesen (6-0, 155) and Brad Reese (6-0, 143) in the secondary; sophomore Bret DeWitt (6-1, 163) at defensive end; senior Dan Goulart (6-4, 273) and sophomore Brandon Manko (5-8, 190) at defensive tackle; and junior Chris Miller (5-11, 150) at nose.

"Simplification" has been the approach of the Ram coaching staff this season, according to seventh-year head coach Fred Gregg.

"We decided to simplify things this year by going back and working hard on the fundamentals of the game, without a lot of complicated plans," Gregg said. "It's really the basic blocking and tackling that usually wins ball games, so that's what we are emphasizing.

"The kids have been working very hard. They get along well with each other and are playing as a team."

Gregg believes that a team strength will be the offensive backfield, as Bosley and VanBogelen have a long, tough year of experience behind them.

"Cory is a lot more confident this year," he said. "He's bigger, stronger, and understands every facet of the game better."

As usual, depth is Gregg's biggest concern. "We have some depth in our offensive backfield, but up front we are really thin," he said. "It will be crucial for us to stay healthy there because we have very few #2 guys to go to."

So far the only player who has sustained a significant injury is Gregg's son, sophomore linebacker/fullback Nick Gregg (5-11, 172), who suffered a dislocated shoulder in a scrimmage and will probably miss at least three games. Gregg missed the entire 2002 season with a broken leg.

"We are a little banged up generally, but Nick is the only one who is sidelined right now," Gregg said.

The Rams played two scrimmage games, with Tucker County and Petersburg. "We were pleased with the results of both scrimmages," Gregg said.

The Ram schedule is once again one of the most challenging in the area, as most of the opponents are 2A programs. The most formidable will likely be Keyser, Allegany, Moorefield, Beall, Hampshire, Fort Hill, and a returning Frankfort team.

However, this week's opener with newcomer North Hagerstown, to be played on South Hagerstown's field, will also pose a major challenge for the Rams.

The run-oriented Hubs feature a Division I prospect in senior tailback Derrick Keith and an outstanding lineman in Mitch Wolters (6-3, 290).

"For once we have the advantage of opening against a team that hasn't already played a game or two, like most of the West Virginia teams," Gregg said. "The problem is, we don't know a whole lot about North Hagerstown.

"We do know that their skill position people are probably as good as any we will face all year," he said. "Keith and Wolters play at a level of athleticism that we just aren't accustomed to.

"But we are anxious to play them and see where we stack up," he continued. "As always, win or lose, we want to learn something and improve with every game, and be willing to compete every second of every game."

Assisting Gregg this year are Tom Bosley, Steve Savage, Mike Wilburn, Jim Bosley, Greg Tressler, and Rick Wakefield.

Saturday's kickoff is set for 7 p.m. The game will be aired on WWHC Radio ("The Train").

RAMS READY TO RUMBLE — The 2003 season will begin for the Southern High School varsity football team this Saturday at South Hagerstown High School, where the Rams will take on the North Hagerstown Hubs in a 7 p.m. clash. Coach Fred Gregg and his team are confident that they can certainly improve upon last season's dismal 1-9 record. Four of the first five games on Southern's 10-game slate are on the road, with the home opener slated for September 19 against Westmar. Pictured above are the members of both the varsity and junior varsity squads. There is no freshman team at Southern this year. See story for details.

Veteran Northern Girls' Soccer Team Anticipates Good Year

As Lynn Lais begins his third season at the helm of the Northern High School girls' soccer program, he hopes that his team can continue the momentum from the second half of last season, in which the Huskies won eight of their final nine matches after an 0-6 start.

Ten starters from that squad, which finished 8-7 and shared the Western Maryand Interscholastic League title with Southern and Beall 4-3, are back this year.

The only defeat in that nine-match run to wrap up last season's schedule was a 1-0 overtime loss to powerful Beall.

The Huskies will open their 2003 campaign this Saturday when they host Frankfort in a 7 p.m. match.

"Besides our 10 returning starters, we also have back some good players who provided valuable minutes off the bench," Lais said. "We also have some quality freshmen joining the team, so we should have pretty good depth."

The 10 starters back are senior strikers Lyndsi Butler and Karie Kamp; senior defenders Kayla Kamp and Carissa Kamp; junior defender Laura Costa; junior midfielders Tiffany Yoder, Megan Shaffer, Britta Lais, and Brittany Milbourne (also a striker), and junior keeper Sarah Masters.

"Sarah was a first-year player last year, but she gained a lot of experience last year, which should make a difference for us defensively," Lais said.

After Saturday's opener against Frankfort, the Huskies will host Southern next Thursday in an area tournament match, which will also kick off at 7 p.m.

"Playing our game, keeping our focus, and making adjustments on the field quickly will be the main challenges for this team," Lais said. "With returning experience at nearly every position, a strong bench, and great team chemistry, we anticipate a lot of success this season."

In looking at the 14-match regular season schedule, Lais expects the toughest opposition to come from Beall, Bishop Walsh, and county rival Southern.

Assisting Lais with coaching duties is former Husky April Slagle.

The Northern program will not have a junior varsity team again this season.

Experience Expected To Lead SHS Girls To Another Winning Season

With six veteran seniors back on the field this season, Coach Ron Petrella and the members of the Southern High School girls' soccer team are anticipating another outstanding season, which will open this Friday at home against Allegany.

The Rams, who finished with an overall record of 10-4 last year and just missed a spot in the Region I championship match, lost three seniors from that team: Brittney Naylor, Kristen Oxford, and Chelsea Remley. However, back for their senior seasons are Sabrina Scheffel, Robbin Gregg, Casey Taylor, Laura Bonser, Sarah Mullenax, and Alasha Rush, most of whom have been starters for at least two years.

"The key for us will be to avoid injuries," the sixth-year coach said. "We had more injuries last year than we had had the previous three or four years combined. If we can stay healthy, we should be very competitive."

Among the juniors back this season, most of whom have also seen considerable action, are Jasmine Scheffel, Shar Hollingsworth, Erin Rhodes, Sarah Anderson, Jadyn Swerbinsky, Kailee Craig, and Ashley Stuck.

"We have a strong nucleus of returning players and a lot of new freshmen coming into the program whose soccer skills look promising," Petrella said. "We hope to continue with strong defense and to improve our goal-scoring opportunities."

After Friday's 7 p.m. home opener against Allegany, the Rams will travel to St. Maria Goretti on Saturday for a 2 p.m. clash. They will go to Northern next Thursday night for an area tournament match, also set to begin at 7 p.m.

The regular season schedule will feature 14 matches, which will be followed by playoffs. The Rams, who have never had a losing season, were stopped last year in a Region IA semifinal, 2-1, by Beall in double overtime. Southern shared the 2002 Western Maryland Interscholastic League title with Beall and Northern.

"The girls are very anxious to get started this year," Petrella said. "We looked good in our two pre-season matches against Preston and Fort Hill, but we will always be looking for ways to improve our game."

Petrella also noted his appreciation of all who support the SHS soccer program. "I appreciate the support of Southern High School," he said, "especially athletic director Matt Redinger, principal Tom Woods, and the parents of the players. We are very lucky to be associated with such a fine school and a community that is so dedicated to sports and academia here at Southern Garrett."

Hunter Safety Class Slated In Accident Area

A three-session hunter safety class has been slated by the local chapter of Whitetails Unlimited for next month in the Accident area. The free class will meet from 6 to 9 p.m. Monday, Oct. 6, and Wednesday, Oct. 8, and from 9 a.m. to approximately 2 p.m. on Sunday, Oct. 12. The first two sessions will take place at the Accident fire hall, and the third class will begin at the fire hall but conclude at the Wings of Challenge facility located north of Bear Creek Road at 1590 Everly Road.

Participants must attend all three classes to graduate, and successful completion will help lead to the awarding of a Maryland Hunter Safety Certificate.

Topics to be covered include firearms safety and handling, firearms parts, shooting fundamentals, marksmanship, safe storage of firearms in the home, wildlife identification, game care, safety on the water, and survival first aid.

The class is required for any hunter born on or after July 1, 1977. Students 12 and under must be accompanied by a parent or an adult guardian at all times during the class sessions. The class is limited to 40 students, and registration may be made by calling John Williams at 301-334-0690.

Several additional hunter safety classes will be offered in coming weeks. Details will be published as they are announced.

Oakland Rams Skin 'Cats In CAYFL Debut

The Division I Oakland Rams kicked off their Cumberland Area Youth Football League campaign by downing the D&D Wildcats 12-6 at Westernport Sunday.

Oakland ran out to a 6-0 halftime lead when Matt White scored on a 50-yard run. Corey Lipscomb tacked on a touchdown run in the third quarter to put the Rams up by a dozen.

The Wildcats finally broke into the scoring column in the final quarter when Marcus McGinnis scored from five yards out.

Tom Reams turned in an outstanding effort for Oakland's defense, according to the Rams' coaching staff, while the 'Cats coaches singled out Jeremy Shingler for D&D's defensive work.

Oakland's Division II squad romped to a 25-0 victory over its Westernport counterpart.

Sailboat Racing
On Deep Creek Lake

COMMODORE'S REGATTA, JULY/AUGUST SERIES RESULTS, RAIN, RAIN, RAIN

by Dan Muss

The race commanders for this Labor Day weekend event are the commodores of the two Deep Creek yacht clubs, Keith Spinnenweber from Deer Haven and Karl Rath from Turkey Neck. It consists of a total of five races, two each on Saturday and Sunday and one on Monday, Labor Day.

The forecast for Saturday was for cool temperatures, rain, and strong wind from the west. It really looked bleak, but we went out anyway. By the second beat we were solidly in last place and wet to the skin.

A racing sailboat has a distinct "shelf" along the foot of the mainsail to provide the aerodynamic thrust on the sail. In a heavy rain this shelf fills with water and, as you come about to windward, this water cascades out as the sail empties and comes across the boat. Some of this water ends up going down the sailor's neck. (Our vice commodore was overheard saying that, in considering whether or not to wear foul-weather gear, "It's damp if you do and damp if you don't!")

When we got off the water I was wet, cold, and hungry, in that order. So my wife and I headed for home and a warm shower, dry clothes, and lunch. By the second race the rain had stopped and the rest of the fleets racing had really nice conditions.

Sunday was still cool and cloudy, but the wind was a nice 5 to 10 knots E. It turned out to be a perfect sailing day since the weather kept many of the motorboats away. In our fleet we still didn't do that well, but almost caught Elster on the last leg.

In that first race on Sunday there was an interesting encounter in the Laser Fleet. As the five-boat fleet was approaching the last leeward mark, four of the Lasers were lined up trying to get around the mark calling for room. The fifth Laser was sailed by Becca Raub, who is a relatively new sailor, uninitiated into the mysteries of racing rules and tactics. She heard all the communication about "room at the mark," so she also asked for room. Her fiancé, Chris Drury, was the outside boat in the line going around the mark, and he explained to Becca that she was on the outside and did not get "room." But as the four-boat line wheeled around the mark, Becca hardened up, slipped inside, caught a big lift, and left the other four boats behind.

As she took off she shouted to Chris: "What do I do now?" Chris replied, "Go for the finish line, and I'm not teaching you anything any more!" Becca finished first in that race against some very good competition. She did not do well enough in the other races to place in the regatta, but she seems to have a knack for this sport.

The forecast for Monday was again cool with light rain and wind 6 to 10 knots starting out WSW, but shifting to N by race time. The forecast was good except for the shift; the wind remained WSW and again, the cloudy, cool, rainy weather kept the motorboats at bay.

We got a good start, but slipped back by the first mark. We did beat Elster this time and almost caught Frank Meehan, with his wife Geri crewing, at the finish.

The Commodore's Cup is the end of the intense racing program for this season, but it's not the end of racing. The Magellan Race is scheduled for 11 a.m. from the Turkey Neck Yacht Club on Saturday, Sept. 13. The skippers' meeting is at 10:15 a.m.. All sailboats are welcome; the race will be handicapped using Portsmouth ratings.

The local chapter of the Flat-Earth Society, which believes that south of the Glendale Bridge is the only known part of the world, instituted this race; everywhere else is terra incognito. So this is a race around the world, the known world, that is. It's a marathon around all the marks, and then we eat lunch!

This weekend, September 6-7, Deep Creek Yacht Racing Association (DCYRA) has been selected by US SAILING to host the Area C Championships for the Adams Cup. The Adams Cup is the Women's National Sailing Championship. It has been one of the most prestigious championships in the country for over 75 years. The event is raced in different boats each year, and this year the Adams Cup is being held in Flying Scots. Harry Carpenter and Flying Scot Inc. are providing 10 brand new boats to Lake Norman YC for the Adams Finals in October.

The Adams Cup is a "ladder" event, where women's teams represent a region in an area championship and then the winner goes onto the National Championship. DCYRA is one of the five mid-Atlantic regions that comprise Area C. The other four regions are Chesapeake Bay YRA, Barnegat Bay YRA, New Jersey YRA, and Mid-Atlantic YRA. Each region can send up to two teams, each to compete for the honor to go on to the finals on October 20-25.

Every year at this time a special award is made to the person who has done the most to help other sailors and to promote our sport of sailboat racing. This year the award went to 17-year-old Meredith Dodd for her role as Flying Scot Fleet 6 captain in which she successfully brought our fleet to national attention at the North American Flying Scot Championship Regatta. She and her sister Ashley are key instructors at the Deep Creek Sailing School, and I heard Meredith say, as they finished putting the Sailing School boats away, "It's sad to see it end." I replied, "You'll be back next summer."

SOUTHERN GOLFERS ROLL TO 6-1 START — The 2003 Southern High School golf team has wasted no time in establishing its dominance on the greens this year. With a trio of 2002 All-WMIL Team honorees returning — senior Travis Friend, and juniors Matt Skidmore and Josh Lear – SHS coach Jeff Friend said that the Rams will be relying on those three duffers along with and the senior Evan Thayer and sophomore Ivan Stutzman to repeat as WMIL champions. "I think we have a good shot at the Region title, and know we can qualify a couple of individuals for states, and hopefully as a team as well," stated Friend. "I think the reason we have stayed so competitive in the past two years is that we have had four or five players that play in a very talented Top Flite Junior Tour summer program," The SHS squad, pictured from the left in the front row, is composed of Seth Fike, Friend, Stutzman, Joe Albert, Brent Carnell, Nick Hillen, and Ryan Martin. In the back row are Coach Friend, Skidmore, Josh Lear, Thayer, Paul Lapp, Tim Reams, Jed Crawford, and Coach Alan Skidmore.

Jeepers Creepers 2

Rated R - Running time: 1:43 - Released 8/29/03

Review by Adam Sincell

Once again, another horror flick has debuted in our theatres, proving that the "thrills and chills" department of the film industry is still booming. However, it goes without saying that many horror movies of late have been nothing but sheer disappointment. Jeepers Creepers 2, another addition to the garbage pile, did very little to impress me. The acting is atrocious and the plot was beyond ridiculous.

I must say that I did not expect much from this film in the first place, seeing as its 2001 predecessor, Jeepers Creepers, was a total flop in my mind. Yes, the sequel is better than the first one, but that doesn't say much at all. There are a handful of startling moments, but that does not even begin to make up for the other elements of the movie. All in all, this film is sure to please some people out there, but I have to say that I laughed more than anything as I sat through it.

For those who have already seen the first movie (which is recommended if you wish to see this one), Jeepers Creepers 2 picks up right where the first one left off. The movie opens on a farm, and the audience is introduced to a family of three. The youngest is outside hanging scarecrows when he realizes that there is something wrong with one of them. Lo and behold, it turns out to be a bird-like human-eating creature from Hell. The creature then wastes no time, causing a high school bus full of football players and cheerleaders to break down on a huge stretch of interstate through the Midwest. That's all one needs to know about this flick. Throughout the rest of the movie, the creature devours the stranded students one by one, in midst of terrible dialogue and bad choices.

This is simply a movie that did not deserve to be made. I was extremely annoyed by the stupidity of the main characters, as well as some poorly executed decisions on the director's part. There are some extremely evident flubs throughout, and this movie is positively loaded with the typical circumstances of a wannabe suspense.

The good parts? Well, the lighting and the cinematography were above average. There were some unique and, at times, very disturbing images. The previews before the movie were excellent. Oh yeah, and the dog was a pretty good actor. Other than that, little can be said about this picture. I seriously felt as though the storyline was being thought up as the movie progressed. The ending was downright pathetic, leaving just enough anticipation for another sequel, I have no doubt.

If you're a diehard fan of horror, no matter how poorly it is thrown together, then I hope you enjoy this film. Like I said, it is better than the first movie, and I will admit that I reacted appropriately to some of its better parts. But, beware - this is a terrible excuse for today's world of entertainment.

Driver Of Lawn Mower Charged With Drunk Driving

A man operating a riding lawn mower along Crellin Underwood Road was charged with drunk driving after the mower was involved in an accident Friday around 6 p.m., according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Ervin Estel Sliger was arrested and transported to the Garrett County Detention Center, where he was charged with driving while impaired (DWI), driving under the influence (DUI), and stopping a vehicle on a roadway with less than 200 feet visibility, police said.

In a separate incident, Wallace V. Marchand, 62, Harper's Ferry, W.Va., was arrested after he failed field sobriety tests Friday evening.

He was charged with DUI, DUI per se, DWI, negligent driving, and failure to drive right of center.

Marchand was released from the jail after posting $500 bond, police said.

In other police news, Eric Stephen Sines, Mtn. Lake Park, was arrested and charged with DUI, DWI, and DUI per se after his vehicle was stopped at Oak and Sixth streets in Oakland Saturday night.

Earlier that morning, Russell J. Rounds, 43, Oakland, was arrested and charged with DUI, DWI, DUI per se, and negligent driving.

According to jail staff, his vehicle struck the curb while parking at the jail to visit an inmate. Deputies added that they had responded to his residence earlier that morning for another incident and believed he was intoxicated at that time.

On Sunday, Kenneth W. Burns, 36, Thomas, W.Va., was arrested after his vehicle was observed speeding and crossing the center line on three different occasions, police said.

He was charged with DUI, DUI per se, DWI, and failure to drive right of center.

In other police news, Matthew Carter, Laurel, was operating a 2003 Toyota 4 Runner northbound on Boiling Springs Road approaching the railroad crossing and collided with a 1999 Jeep, operated by Kimberly Mellinger, Oakland. Mellinger's vehicle was attempting to turn south onto Main Street.

Carter was charged with failing to reduce speed at a railroad crossing and failing to reduce speed to avoid a collision, police said.

All parties were transported by Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where they were treated and released.

Teenagers outdrive veterans in Busch race

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Darlington, S.C.

Somebody forgot to tell two teenage Busch Series drivers that old Darlington Raceway is supposed to be "Too Tough To Tame."

Hendrick Motorsports teammates Brian Vickers, 19, and Kyle Busch, 18, outran veterans Michael Waltrip, Bobby Hamilton Jr. and Kevin Harvick to take the top two spots in Saturday's Winn-Dixie 200 Busch Series race.

VICKERS

Vickers scored his second Busch victory of the season and became the youngest winner in Darlington's 53-year history.

Busch, who only became eligible age-wise for NASCAR racing in May, equaled his best finish in three career starts in NASCAR's No. 2 circuit.

Vickers, racing at Darlington for the fourth time in his career, took advantage of quick work by his pit crew on the final caution period of the race. He trailed Waltrip entering pit road but left with the lead. He sped to a 20-car-length advantage while Waltrip and Busch battled for the runner-up spot.

With 11 laps to go, Busch, the younger brother of Winston Cup driver Kurt Busch, drove by Waltrip into second place but was unable to close on Vickers.

Waltrip took third over Hamilton, Harvick and Kasey Kahne.

"If you add their ages together it doesn't equal what I am, so so much for experience," Waltrip said of the first two finishers. "They don't know any better, so they just get out there and get on it. And that race car doesn't know how old the driver is."

The young drivers sounded like veterans in their post-race interviews.

Said the fresh-faced Busch: "If you give lots of respect to your competitors and the racetrack, you'll go far."

And Vickers said of his late-race battles with Waltrip: "I knew I had to race the track instead of him."

Vickers led twice for 38 laps, and Harvick, who dominated early, was in front two times for 76 laps.

Vicker's victory also boosted his chances of a Busch Series championship. He entered the race in fifth place and trailing leader Scott Riggs by 135 points. He's now third, 67 points behind Riggs, who finished 17th.

David Green, who finished 14th, is third, 67 behind Riggs.

SAFER barriers at Richmond

When NASCAR returns to Richmond International Raceway this week, drivers will find 2,394 feet of Steel and Foam Energy Reduction, or SAFER, barrier in the turns of the three-quarter-mile oval.

That makes Richmond the first short track to use the barrier and the third overall. Indianapolis Motor Speedway was the first to install SAFER barriers; New Hampshire International Speedway also has them.

Tamed by a Texan

Veteran Terry Labonte masters Darlington again

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Darlington, S.C.

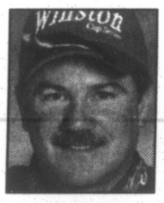
For the final Southern 500 to be run on Labor Day weekend, old Darlington Raceway, "The Lady in Black," rewarded one of her favorite sons with one of the most popular victories in NASCAR history.



LABONTE

Terry Labonte, who ran his first Winston Cup race in the Southern 500 in 1978 and got his first win in the same race two years later, took the lead on the final pit stop of the race and led the final 33 laps to win NASCAR's oldest race.

As the laps wound down, the sell-out crowd of more 70,000 rose to their feet and watched him speed around the tricky track toward the checkered flag.

On the final lap, the crowd roared almost as loud as the race engines, giving the 46-year-old Texan the kind of salute usually reserved for drivers named Earnhardt.

As Labonte coasted down the frontstretch after the race, flagman Jimmy Howell pitched the checkered flag to a crewman who handed it to Labonte. Rather than do a modern-day burnout— which Labonte describes as "goofy looking" — he celebrated in the style of Herb Thomas, Fireball Roberts, Fonty Flock and other Darlington greats from years ago.

He slowly circled the track, waving the checkered flag with his left hand in an old-fashioned salute to the fans.

Kevin Harvick, who took the event's runner-up spot over Jimmie Johnson, Jamie McMurray and Bill Elliott, especially appreciated the moment.

"Terry Labonte is one of the most respected guys in the garage," said Harvick, who finished second for the third-straight week. "I'm extremely happy to see him win.

"He's a true legend, and he helped make the sport what it is today. I think anyone who isn't happy doesn't have true respect for our sport."

It appeared at times as if "The Lady in Black" might smile on one of NASCAR's young guns. But one-by-one, they fell by the wayside.

Polesitter Ryan Newman led five times for 120 laps, but accidentally killed the ignition on his No. 12 Dodge during a pit stop and finished 23rd, eight laps behind.

Dale Earnhardt Jr.'s No. 8 Chevrolet was fast enough to win, but the rear gearing broke under caution.

The normally conservative Matt Kenseth got frisky racing for the lead and hit the wall, damaging his car. Greg Biffle seemed to have the race in hand when his flywheel broke.

"Man, my stomach dropped," Biffle said. "Everything was shaking so bad inside the car that it wouldn't handle any more."

Labonte's win, it seems, was just meant to be.

Known for his longevity and his low-key approach, Labonte agreed with those who said Sunday's victory was the most significant of his 22 Winston Cup wins.

"I think this is the biggest one right here," he said, explaining that winning the last Southern 500 run at Darlington on Labor Day weekend is something he'll always cherish.

"I was running there with Bill Elliott, and I thought to myself, 'Man I hope one of us wins it, because we appreciate this place maybe more than some of the young guys do,' " he said.

The victory also was special for Labonte because he hadn't claimed one in his previous 156 starts— since March 28, 1999, at Texas Motor Speedway.

He said he's proud he hung tough through trying times.

"The easy way out is to give up," he said. "But I never gave up. I believed in this team."

Labonte's crew chief Jim Long also has had to endure a difficult dry spell. He hadn't tasted victory since 1997 when Ricky Rudd drove one of his cars to a win in the Brickyard 400 at Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

With the race on the line as the field entered pit road on Lap 334 of 367, Long's crew changed four tires and added fuel in a brief 13.11 seconds, moving Labonte from third to first. When the race restarted, he motored away to a significant lead and was never challenged.

"These guys are awesome on pit road," Labonte said. "They earned this one."

Bad luck for Rusty

RICK McKAY / Cox News Service

Rusty Wallace practices at Darlington Raceway before Sunday's Southern 500. Sunday's race marked four straight weeks that mechanical problems or wrecks have left Wallace with finishes of 36th or worse. "I've never in my career had a year like this," he said.

POST-RACE NOTES

Kenseth makes mistake but still adds to his lead

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Darlington, S.C.

It seems that even when Matt Kenseth has a mediocre run, he still continues his march to the Winston Cup title.

Despite a 14th-place finish in the Southern 500, Kenseth boosted his points lead over Dale Earnhardt Jr. from 351 to 389. Kenseth had one of the fastest cars, but hit the wall while racing his teammate Jeff Burton for the top spot just after Lap 100 and broke a suspension part. He blamed himself for driving too aggressively on Darlington's unforgiving, egg-shaped oval.

KENSETH

"I just made a mistake that I usually don't make," he said. "That was really stupid."

Kenseth said that despite the garage talk that he's being conservative on the track, he does try to run hard — sometimes too hard.

"I should have let Burton go and race the race track like you're supposed to do here and wait until the end," he said. "But I just drove it too hard and I got in the wall."

Earnhardt Jr. also was a hard charger, but his car quit pulling during a caution period. After his crew repaired the rear-end gearing, he returned to the track and finished 25th, nine laps off the pace.

"I was just as fast after that as I was before," he said. "I even like Darlington a little bit now."

Kevin Harvick, the runner-up in the Southern 500, remains in third place in the standings, but he shaved his points deficit from 464 to 415. Jimmie Johnson is fourth in points, 485 out of first, while Jeff Gordon is fifth, 591 back.

Kill switch KOs Newman

The kill switch on the steering wheel, mandated by NASCAR two years ago after several drivers wrecked because of stuck throttles, killed any chance Ryan Newman had of winning the Southern 500.

After starting on the pole and leading 120 of the first 229 laps, Newman accidentally hit the switch during a pit stop. Eight laps elapsed before he discovered the problem.

"It's a shame because I thought we had the car to beat," Newman said.

He finished 23rd, eight laps down and like Earnhardt Jr., was criticized by his competitors for running among the leaders who were battling for position.

"I got involved in the eight-laps-down race for the win," said Harvick, who had to pass Earnhardt and Newman before he could try to challenge Terry Labonte.

Unlucky turn

"Trouble in Turn Three" sums up the fortunes of several pre-race favorites.

A melee on Lap 6, triggered when Christian Fittipaldi and Jason Leffler collided, knocked Dale Jarrett, Rusty Wallace, Michael Waltrip and Tony Raines out of contention.

Then on Lap 166, in the same corner, Gordon wrecked with Casey Mears. They collected Kenny Wallace, Johnny Benson, Dave Blaney and Ken Schrader.

Remorseful Spencer returns

SPENCER

Jimmy Spencer has long maintained that he never forgets when someone does him wrong on the track. But on his first day back at work after a week's suspension from NASCAR, he seemed ready to put behind him the altercation with Kurt Busch that led to his one-week suspension.

"I don't think you ever forget certain things that happen in your life, and that was a pretty important thing, so I won't ever forget that," he said. "But it's over.

"What bothered me as I sat there last Friday was that somebody out there that has to explain to a son or daughter why I had to miss Bristol," he said.

Spencer finished 22nd in Sunday's race.

Stewart OKs deal

Tony Stewart has reached an agreement to continue driving for car owner Joe Gibbs through the 2009 season.

Some had presumed that Chip Ganassi's ownership of Indy cars would influence Stewart to sign with him.

But Stewart said he's still free to pursue his dream of winning the Indianapolis 500 if an opportunity presents itself.

"Joe [Gibbs] has told me if I want to go run Indy he's behind me 100 percent," Stewart said.

Glad actress signs for 'Happy' sitcom

By Taylor Michaels
© Zap2it

Melanie Paxson

Q: Is the actress who played Joyce DeWitt in "Behind the Camera: The Unauthorized Story of Three's Company" the same lady who does the Glad commercials? –A.L., El Paso, Texas.

A: Yes, that's Melanie Paxson, who also plays the daughter of John Larroquette and Christine Baranski in this fall's new NBC sitcom "Happy Family." Paxson made her series debut in the shortlived 1998 Jeremy Piven romantic comedy "Cupid" and also has appeared on "The Drew Carey Show" and "Early Edition."

Q: Before Down Under heartthrobs Russell Crowe, Guy Pearce and Hugh Jackman, there was Tom Burlinson ("The Man From Snowy River"). What happened to him? –Jean Kerling, E. Aurora, N.Y.

A: Burlinson, who was born in Canada but moved to Australia when he was nearly 10, put his film and TV acting career on hold in the late '90s in favor of a musical cabaret act that exploits his uncanny singing resemblance to Frank Sinatra (Burlinson had provided the singing voice of the young Sinatra in the 1992 "Sinatra" TV movie with Philip Casnoff).

When he isn't touring Australian cities in "Frank – A Life in Song," Burlinson, now 47, makes his home on a ranch with his wife, Mandy, whom he met while performing in a 1993 production of "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying." They have two children.

Burlinson also is rumored to be in line to star in an Australian production of the Broadway smash "The Producers" starting April, 2004. Fans can find additional information about the star online at an official fan site, http://www.tomburlinson.homestead.com/.

Q: I read somewhere that Stacy Keach had died last February. Is this the same actor who played Ken Titus on the hilarious but canceled "Titus"? –Adam L., Littleton, Colo.

A: No, that was Stacy Keach Sr., the father of the "Titus" star and a character actor in his own right, who died of congestive heart failure in February. The senior Keach was 88. Among his last credits were recurring appearances as Judge Webster on "Doctor Quinn, Medicine Woman," with his daughter-in-law, Jane Seymour, wife of actor-director James Keach.

Q: Is Victor Sen Yung, who played Hop Sing on "Bonanza," still alive? –Melvin Oxley, Cambria, Calif.

A: No, the San Francisco native, who spent some of his last years in poverty, died in 1980 of what was ruled to be accidental asphyxiation traced to a leak in the stove at his North Hollywood tenement apartment. He was 65. "Bonanza" castmate Pernell Roberts delivered his eulogy.

Dennett Road School's Arboretum Receives DNR Grant And Award

The environmental committee at Dennett Road Elementary School recently received a grant from the Maryland Department of Natural Resources, according to principal Gary Galloway. "The money will be used to enhance the appearance of the school's arboretum, to plant additional trees, and also to provide for tags to be placed on all the trees for easier identification," said Galloway.

The arboretum, which was initiated in 1988, has grown to include more than 20 different species of trees as well as numerous shrubs and perennials. The two mountain ash trees which will be planted using the DNR grant funds were recommended by County Extension agent Jim Simms based on their hardiness and ability to attract birds. The arboretum also includes birdfeeders, birdhouses, and a butterfly garden.

The school also received a PLANT (People Loving and Nurturing Trees) award last spring from the Maryland DNR for the second year in a row. There are several levels of achievement for this award, and the arboretum project at Dennett Road Elementary School earned the highest of these levels. The award took into account the degree of organization and planning, and as well as the level of sustained and focused effort toward expanding and enhancing the arboretum. The PLANT award plaque and sign will be displayed at the school.

Another addition to the arboretum project is a large plaque located in the school's lobby which contains the names of its donors. The plaque, which is approximately 3x5 inches was designed and created by Barry Domenick, and the attached engraved donor name plaques were made by Don Stemple. Funds for the plaque were raised by the committee during a fundraiser last winter.

"The environmental committee would like to thank all the students, parents, staff, and other members of the community who have supported this phase of the arboretum project," said Galloway. "Special thanks go to teaching assistant Linda Teagarden, whose diligence and perseverance were very important to the success of these projects. Without everyone's support, we would not have been able to accomplish all the additions and improvements that have been made to the arboretum this year."

The arboretum is located in front of the elementary school along Dennett Road.

BROADFORD LAKE

Location: This lake is situated on the north edge of Mountain Lake Park, approximately one mile east of Oakland.

Description: A 600-foot-long earthen dam creates a lake approximately 1 mile long, north and south, by ¼ mile wide, east to west. Broad Ford Run feeds the lake from the north. A well-developed park borders the lake on the southwest side. Tree-lined residences line the lake on the west side above the park. Forests and open grasslands, privately owned, border the lake on the east side. The water is clear, serene, and deep near the dam. A marshy pool of two or more acres lies at the north end of the lake, just off the west side of Broadford Road.

The lake and the park are owned by the town of Oakland. The Maryland Department of Natural Resources controls the lake surface.

Type of Project: Water supply (about one-half of Oakland's water supply comes from the lake); and recreation.

How to get there: The lake can be reached from Oakland via Rt. 135 east, Oakland Drive, Deer Park Avenue, Pittsburgh Avenue, and Recreation Drive. The north end can be reached via Memorial Drive and the Oakland-Deer Park Road. Another northern approach is from King's Run Road off U.S. Rt. 219 to Broadford Road.

Facilities: The park has a large number of picnic tables under shade trees close to the lake, a commissary with facilities, a sandy bathing beach, a dock with boats to rent by the day, pavilions that may be rented, a gently sloping boat ramp, paved walkways, and parking for cars and boat trailers. The park is also the home of the Oakland Little League and Mountaintop Softball League fields.

What to do: Swimming, sunbathing on the beach, boating (battery-powered outboards, rowboats, kayaks, canoes, paddle boats, and sailboats only), walking, basketball, volleyball, picnicking, and good fishing (trout, bass, pike, catfish, bluegill, and perch).

Fees: Entrance fees are $3 per car ($4 on weekends), and $1.50 for walk-ins. There is no charge to use the boat ramp. Paddle boat rentals are $6 per hour, and for canoes and kayaks, $5 per hour. Daily rates are three times the hourly rates (10 a.m. to 6 p.m.). Pavilion rental fees are $60 and $85, depending upon size.

In general: This lovely, quiet lake is easy to access from any part of Garrett County. The fishing is generally good. The temperature of the clear water is generally from 70 to 80 degrees during the summer.

Persons may call 301-334-9222 for more information.

As I now have your attention, let me share with you this secret and you will never have to work again. It's simpler than you think.

An anonymous quotation tells us... "If you find out how to make money at something you love doing then you'll never have to work another day in your life."

Bet you thought there was a gimmick - yet it's just that simple. Now hopefully, you already have a job you love. If not, you can try to learn to love what you do or you may choose to investigate a new career. With most of us living longer lives, we will probably have several occupations, so when the opportunities present themselves, take them.

For a better chance at success, you will want to include daily prayer in your plan for fulfillment. King David knew this as he prayed in Psalm 118:24-25... "This is the day which the Lord has made; let us rejoice and be glad in it... O Lord, we beseech Thee, give us success!" God is the most important influence upon your well-being. Your relationship with Him determines your attitude, your confidence, and your peace of mind.

If you visit God's House this Labor Day weekend, Monday will be a better day. Won't you worship this week?

The Spirit of Joy

God wants His people to be "people of joy," filled with the spirit of happiness and pleased to be called His children. The dictionary defines joy as gladness, delight, a state of happiness; it also describes being filled with joy as "joyful." Although this is what our Heavenly Father wants for His family, we know that in this world there are many unpleasant things that can distract us from always being joyful. Everyone encounters difficulties in life, and no one is exempt from the problems of the world. Therefore, our closeness with God is vital to living a joyful life, and like any good relationship, it needs love and nurturing. Building our relationship with God on a daily basis will make our joy more complete and help us to face the problems in our lives.

In the Bible, St. Paul tells us that he was satisfied and content with whatever state he was in and that he had the strength to face all conditions by the power that Christ gave him (Philippians 4:11-13). Regularly attending services at our place of worship, praying and reading the scriptures, will help make us better children of God and will draw us closer to His abundant love and joy.

Effect of Supplements on Breast Cancer

The B family of vitamins includes the supplement folate which is also called folic acid. New data from a recent clinical trial indicates that folate may reduce the risk of developing breast cancer by almost 90% in women who consume at least one alcoholic drink per day (15 grams of alcohol). Earlier studies linked regular alcohol consumption to an increased risk of breast cancer. In women who drank less than 15 grams of alcohol per day, breast cancer risk decreased to 27% when compared to women who had low folate levels.

Another study using mice evaluated the use of herbals in the prevention or treatment of breast cancer. The herb evaluated was black cohosh, which is commonly used for controlling menopausal symptoms. Researchers reported that this herb may not be safe for women with tumors of the breast.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• A recent item in this column about the origin of the Marine Corps drew response from a number of readers who pointed out that, according to Marine Corps tradition, the Corps was formed in 1775, not 1740. The official birthday is, in fact, Nov. 10, 1775; however, the origins of the Marines go back further than that. The American Colonial Marines were formed in 1740 and served in the British Royal Navy and Army. Eventually they came to be called the American Marines, and George Washington's half-brother, Lawrence, served as an officer.

• It was William Shakespeare who observed, "Love is merely a madness."

• It's been said that for every mile you jog, you add one minute to your life. Ten minutes of sweating in the prime of your life to gain one minute while old and possibly infirm doesn't seem like a fair trade to me.

• Dave Duncan, pitching coach for the Cleveland Indians, estimates that about half of all major-league baseball pitchers do something illegal to the balls they pitch. One way to cheat is to heat (by microwaving) or cool (by freezing) the ball. Cold balls don't bounce well, so it's best to have your opponents' ball frozen; hot balls bounce very well, so you'd want your own balls to be heated.

• Those who measure such things have determined that it takes the same amount of heat to melt 1 ounce of snow as it does to boil 1 ounce of soup at room temperature.

• The music industry just isn't what it used to be. Here's a sampling of actual song titles that you'd never see these days: "My Head Hurts, My Feet Stink, and I Don't Love Jesus"; "You're the Reason Our Kids Are So Ugly"; "Plant a Watermelon on My Grave and Let the Juice Soak Through"; and "When It's Toothpickin' Time in False Teeth Valley."

Moments in time

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Sept. 8, 1941, during World War II, German forces begin their siege of Leningrad, the Soviet Union's second-largest city. The siege lasted a grueling 872 days and resulted in the deaths of some 1 million of the city's civilians and Red Army defenders.

• On Sept. 9, 1971, prisoners riot and seize control of the maximum-security Attica Correctional Facility near Buffalo, N.Y. Four days later, state police and prison officers would launch a disastrous raid in which 10 hostages and 29 inmates were killed in an indiscriminate hail of gunfire.

• On Sept. 12, 1977, Steven Biko, leader of South Africa's "Black Consciousness Movement," dies of severe head trauma on the stone floor of a prison cell in Pretoria.

• On Sept. 10, 1981, Spanish artist Pablo Picasso's monumental anti-war mural Guernica is received by Spain after four decades of refugee existence.

• On Sept. 14, 1982, Princess Grace of Monaco — American actress Grace Kelly — dies tragically when her car plunges off a mountain road by the Cote D'Azur. She was 52 years old.

• On Sept. 13, 1990, Andrei Chikatilo, the Soviet Union's most prolific serial killer, is charged with the murder of 53 people. The Soviet government, refusing to admit that the communist system could produce serial killers, had denied the crimes in an attempt to portray serial killing as a uniquely Western cultural phenomenon.

• On Sept. 11, 2001, the "Attack on America" begins on a clear Tuesday morning at 8:45 a.m. when an American Airlines Boeing 767 loaded with 20,000 gallons of jet fuel crashes into the north tower of the World Trade Center in New York City. More than 3,000 people would die in the attacks on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon in Washington, D.C.

Collecting

Books

Q. I recently purchased several dozen books at a yard sale that appear to be first editions. Three of the more interesting titles are "Pearl" by Janis Joplin, "Up Until Now" by Eugene McCarthy, and "Love Lucky," the autobiography of Lucille Ball. All of the books are in their original dust jackets and appear to be in near new condition. — *William, Shreveport, La.

A. Books are the king of collectibles. In fact, people have collected books — in one form or another — for at least 4,000 years. Although dozens of reference books have been published about books and their values, one of my favorites is the Antique Trader Book Collector's Price Guide by Richard Russell (Krause Publications, $24.99). It is a user-friendly guide with more than 5,000 prices for first editions.

What makes a book valuable, and how can you spot a first edition? Russell, who has been a bookseller for at least three decades, reveals all. His excellent guide includes both a directory of antiquarian booksellers and common sense information so that it is fairly easy to establish the values of books.

The three titles you mentioned in your letter are all included in this reference. That's the good news. The bad news is they are valued at $15 or less. This reference book is perfect for the novice or casual collector, and it may be ordered directly from the publisher through either its toll-free telephone number (1-888-457-2873) or Web site (www.krause.com).

Q. My husband was in Germany following WWII, and he managed to purchase about two dozen older Hummel figurines. Who can I contact to determine the value of this collection? — *Jennie, Lake Wylie, S.C.

A. John Copeland buys, sells and appraises Hummels. His toll-free telephone number is 1-800-882-9946.

Approaching Strange Dogs

Q. I'm a little worried these days. Some of my neighbors let their dogs run loose (we're in the country and our road is unpaved, without much traffic). My problem is that kids walk up and down this road too. What if a dog isn't so friendly? How can I prevent these kids from being bitten? — *Joe L. in Tennessee

A. Your best bet is educating the neighborhood kids and their parents on both the dangers of letting pets run loose (even on low-traffic roads) and the risks of petting an unknown dog.

Even an apparently friendly dog can deliver a painful bite if it feels threatened — and you can't always know what constitutes a threat to a dog you don't know. I'm reminded of an incident during a hiking trip I took to Ireland a few years ago. When walking by a small farm shed, a sheepdog trotted up to me with an open, friendly grin — but as I stepped forward he delivered a painful nip to my calf and sat down right in front of me. Obviously, I was being herded — and he wasn't about to let me go anywhere. Turned out that his owner was working in the shed, and her dogs had created a "security perimeter" around the entrance. A shouted request brought her out to call the dogs off, but I was reminded, the hard way, to approach any strange dog with caution.

"Have you been waiting long, dear?"

"Don't watch them! They're trying to put me to sleep so they can run away!"

"What's your mom making for supper that you're gonna be sent to bed without?"

Motorcycle Group Sets Salem Trust Fund-Raiser Ride

The Watchmen, a member of the Christian Motorcyclists Association, will hold a benefit bike show and ride for the Maryland Salem Children's Trust this Saturday, Sept. 6. Registration for the event begins at noon, and from noon to 1 p.m. there will be a bike show with the Salem students serving as the judges. The group ride will begin at 1 p.m., and will cover approximately 100 miles through Garrett and Somerest counties, ending with a picnic lunch at New Germany State Park.

The fund-raiser's entry fee is set at a $10 donation. For information or to register, persons may call Terry Russell at 301-729-0173.

Enrollment Drive Targets Uninsured School Children

As the school year begins, Western Maryland Area Health Education Center (WMAHEC), a partner of Covering Kids and Families, is launching its annual Back-to-School campaign to encourage parents with uninsured children to enroll them in Maryland Children's Health Program (MCHP), putting this at the top of their back-to-school checklist.

This effort is part of a nationwide initiative to connect uninsured children with health care coverage across the United States. MCHP has been assisting low-income families by providing free or low-cost health care insurance for doctor visits, medicine, dental visits, and mental health services.

"The comprehensive coverage offered through MCHP helps keep Maryland's kids healthy," said JoAnn Fletcher, program/resource specialist for WMAHEC. "We encourage parents to find out if their kids are eligible and, if they are currently enrolled, to renew their application annually."

WMAHEC also wants to make sure parents of enrollees are aware of the recent changes to state law affecting the MCHP and MCHP Premium programs by the 2003 Maryland General Assembly. For those enrolled in MCHP Premium prior to July 1, 2003, premiums must be paid monthly. The failure to pay the monthly payments or failure to complete an annual renewal application will mean coverage is lost since new enrollment to MCHP Premium has been frozen. Application renewals must be completed annually for both MCHP and MCHP Premium.

Another change affects families in the upper income limit of the MCHP program. Beginning Sept. 1, they will be required to pay a monthly premium of $37 per family for coverage. If a premium payment is not made in time, a child will lose his/her health coverage and his/her enrollment will lapse. If an applicant cannot afford a premium payment, assistance may be available. For more information about payment assistance, persons may call 866-269-5576 after Sept. 1.

It has been projected that 181 children in Allegany County, 177 children in Garrett County, and 322 children in Washington County will lose health care coverage as a result of these budget cuts. Across the state of Maryland, 11,532 children are expected to lose health care coverage, according to a report by the Baltimore Sun, Aug. 4.

To find out if a child is eligible for MCHP or for answers to any questions about enrollment, parents should contact the health department at 301-895-3111 or 301-334-7770.

Western Maryland Area Health Education Center has played a major role in promoting outreach, awareness, and coordination of the Maryland Children's Health Program, and is funded by the University of Maryland.

GC Sets Medical Transcription Open House Program

An open house for persons interested in the medical transcription field has been slated for 7 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 18, in Room 305 of the Continuing Education Building at Garrett College. The event will be hosted by Medical Transcription program coordinator Tom Kierstead.

The college offers a medical transcription curriculum consisting of 300 hours of instruction, with the next course start date tentatively set for Oct. 1. The curriculum has recently been updated, and classes will meet Monday and Wednesday evenings, and for an average of three Saturdays each month, through next May. Course topics include anatomy and physiology, computer skills, medical science and terminology, and digital medical transcription lab.

"The course is designed for students to move forward at their own pace, and those with medical backgrounds, as well as highly motivated individuals, may be able to complete and exit early," said Kierstead. "There is a competitive application process to enter the curriculum. Candidates' English and typing skills will be assessed upon receipt of the application materials.

"All prospective students should check with their tax advisors to see about the possible tax advantage of using the Lifetime Learning Credit."

Persons who are not able to attend the open house may call the GC Continuing Education office at 301-387-3069.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

I had better get up and go now and do this news even though I am so tired. I am too tired to get my first cup of coffee. But I did it! At least I am not as grouchy as my two teenage daughters. We are missing Caitlin who is away at a sleepover birthday party for Sammi Frazee way over in the White Rock area. Claire is worn out from a Labor Day party hosted by Tim and Lisa Souwein at their lake house in Pennsylvania. So when her father dropped her off at my house late Sunday afternoon she had to rush to see the old out-of-town friends who were busy dining at Cousin Courtney's house.

The Labor Day crowd was fairly lucky as, although it poured rain early Saturday, at least the rest of the day and evening was only a little gloomy and cloudy. Even if it did rain it would not have put a damper on the enthusiasm of the crowd at the performance of our boy band, "White Noise." They performed some selections for the older (over-the-hill) crowd and also performed several early Led Zeppelin songs, plus Jackson Brown's "Brown Eyed Girl." They jammed and sounded like the early Beatle-day music.

White Noise features Darryl and Elliot Glotfelty on the electric guitars, big brother Robbie on bass guitar, the twins' look-a-like cousin Scott Bass, vocal, and Brooks DuBose, who also contributed to vocals and the keyboard. Chris Miller was on the drums. They were a big hit with the old party gang, as were their Northern Middle School concerts.

The band even was a big hit with the parents' and grandparents' age group. Thoroughly enjoying the playing were Aunt Helen Englar, cousin Rhea Hetrick from Salisbury, Pa., and, of course, my mother and proud grandmother, Ruth DiPaolo. Even Aunt Dot Quaintance appeared driving a U-Haul hauling a Chevrolet truck behind it coming from New Mexico. She broke down on the way up in Kentucky and had to get the U-Haul and pull the truck behind it. It was quite a site pulling into the grounds at Courtney's house. She stayed the night at mother's and then headed home to New York state Sunday morning.

I heard some of the band tuning up at the Glotfelty house when Rodney was hosting a birthday party for our mother Ruth last Thursday evening. Besides her kids and their families, also attending were a couple early holiday weekend guests, Janet Beyea of Layton and Mary Frances Quinn of Philadelphia.

At the same time the social scene goes nuts with things to do and places to go, and things that need to get done ASAP, I had the pressure of doing art or writing projects with a heavy demand to do a masterpiece. The other one pressing business was the matter of buying a "new used" car. My ex-car looked crummy and sounded exactly like what it was (a 30-year-old heap). I hated to go anywhere in it. I believe it is designated to be a Demolition Derby car. Old age was taking a toll on it, and it was a slow painful death. Demolition Derbies see those old cars go out in a dazzling glorious end. Although it was not as long and clumsy as the four-horse van or pulling a horse trailer, it was too long for me these days. A smaller car is better for the small narrow hilly roads around here.

I did prefer to drive the big truck on major highways or interstate highways in the middle of the night. In those days a four horse van was a "piece of cake." Even a trip to Oakland now seems almost just too much. Thank goodness I had Bill Roszell of Garrett Automotive to help me find the right car to meet my needs and fit into my slim budget. Where else but in Garrett County would one find a used car dealer debating with a customer about when he should make his hay! There is no bigger subject with so much interest that question can create. I urged him to cut as much as possible on the next day, which was Sunday. But like many farmers, they are reluctant to make hay on Sunday. I believe that it comes into the category of the Ox in the Well. Since Jesus and God loved all creatures great and small, that had to include my horse, so Bill and I discussed in depth the high standard for hay for horses. Of course, there should be no dust or mold. Timothy grass is much better than orchard grass.

This year was just lousy for haymaking, but not as bad as for the corn growers. I found that out from the two young Kaufman girls selling sweet corn above Buckel's Store. Their corn field looks the best I have seen so far around here.

A long time ago I wanted to paint a special painting for the Roszell family. I had the pleasure of teaching two of Bill's sons, Bill Jr. and the youngest son, Jeffrey (who sadly died in a tragic freak accident while he was still a teenager). I tried to finish the final touches on that today and at the same time I am writing this. I am also in the process of creating the centerpiece painting for my winter show at the Gallery in Oakland.

My nephews' band is not the only kind of "white noise" we have around here at the end of the summer. As most people know, white light consists of all colors. The meaning of white noise is a blending of many sounds, low-pitch, and high-pitch, into a smooth, seamless background.

A different view of our endless rain was contributed by my dear Meredith this afternoon as she ran into the house and yelled she just saw something so beautiful. It really was beautiful. A heavy rainshow swept down across the field between Pappy Dale's house towards our house. It was the kind of drenching rain I used to love to gallop through on Joey. Also, her Uncle Scott just loved to run through it too, but without the present rumbling of thunder, which ended a short special "photo snake mission" by Snake Jim Fey and Emma Bass. They spotted an unusual, silverfish, small, aggressive little snake that even Jim was unable to identify.

Boy, after that one big flash of lightning and loud and scary boom of thunder, I am covered with goose bumps. I hope and am pretty sure that Rock Lodge Spring will be running again after a month or so period of not running. It worried me very much and I almost hated to pass it because things are just not right if it is dry.

The worst storm of the summer was one day last week just when the school bus was due and I dropped off my girls. I hesitated for a few minutes to rush out to my car. I waited too long, had to slow down, and when I was about halfway to the car, the hail started and it poured. Boo insisted rushing outside with me and jumped in my car even before I could get inside. Nothing like a wet, dirty, stinking dog to blemish a new car aura.

Just heard some bad news that Bittinger again lost one of its finest and first citizen. Bittinger will not be the same without Ralph Buckel. Ralph and Ethel were always an inspiration to me. Ralph died about 4 o'clock this afternoon. Maybe that lightning was a "Stairway to Heaven" for Ralph. It is true my eyes are filled with tears, not for Ralph, but for his life-soulmate Ethel. I know how painful it is to lose a husband, but to lose a faithful man who shared with you life for more than half a century is so sad. I hope Ethel is not alone during this fierce thunderstorm right now, especially now that night has fallen. It will be a lonely night for her I am afraid.

A few minutes ago it looked like it would be a dark night, too. A couple flickering lights lots of time means you will lose all power soon. It was a tiny reminder of the past winter. Allegheny Power did a whole bunch of preventive maintenance work between Dung Hill Road and Bittinger, which is the stretch that caused most of our problems, according to Bill Buckel, an engineer with Allegheny.

Anthony and Amanda Carey announce the birth of a daughter, Laci Morgan, born at Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, on Friday, Aug. 29, weighing 7 lbs. 11 ozs. Jim and Donna Glotfelty visited their new great-granddaughter and family at the hospital Saturday evening. Paternal grandparents are Julius and Karmen Carey of near Frostburg.

WHAT'S YOUR PLAN?

If you're planning to relocate soon, what's your plan for finding a home, schools, and a reputable moving company? Begin your planning by contacting your local real estate agent where you now live. How can a real estate agent here help you relocate there?

Consider the nationwide network of agents: offices here can easily locate and communicate with offices in the area to which you're moving. Come in, sit down, and take your time describing where you're moving and why. Explain what features you want in your new home, and your needs for schools, shopping, etc.

Taking the time to do this now will save you the endless stress of fact-finding later. Once your agent knows your needs, he or she will contact a respected agent in your new city to get the ball rolling and have everything ready for you when you arrive. You may even preview homes on the Internet once your agent has put together a promising collection based on your needs and wishes.

The best part of all these services offered by your agent is that you don't pay a cent for the expertise used in gathering all the information you need to move. Make it easy on yourself and contact your local real estate agent today to start planning. You'll be amazed at how smoothly it runs in the hands of a professional!

White Church To Celebrate 130 Years

White United Methodist Church will celebrate 130 years on Sunday, Sept. 14, based on the original dedication date and 143 years based on the original deed date.

There will be special guest speakers during the worship service at 11 a.m., and at 12:30 p.m. there will be a covered dish dinner and special singers for the afternoon program that will begin at 2 p.m. with former pastors attending.

The church holds church school at 10 a.m. and worship service at 11 a.m. each Sunday. The current pastor is Pastor Joe Robinette.

The church was originally dedicated on Oct. 16, 1873, and records show the deed was made Dec. 29, 1860, in Hampshire County, Va., and recorded in Allegany County in 1868.

The first trustees for the church were James J. White, Middleton Biggs, Elisha Harvey, Nathaniel B. Harvey, and John G. Riley.

Wesley Lee reportedly preached the first sermon at White Church.

The Davises and Galaways were the first colored families to attend the church and were freed from slavery by the Issac McCarty family. Isreal Thompson's family contributed to the carpenters to build the church. The building was done by Phoenise Miller and sons, according to the church historian, Janet E. Tichnell.

WHITE UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

The Methodist-Episcopal denomination met in the church for 79 years and became known as a Methodist congregation through action of the church conference in 1939. In 1968, the conference again changed the terminology, this time to United Methodist Church.

The church building changed little over the years until 1973, when the members erected a steeple and hung the bell in time to recognize the 100th anniversary. Other changes to the facility included a new altar, pews, carpet, organ, basement for classrooms, new exit door, ramp, stained glass windows, new lights, and ceiling fans. Since the 1998 homecoming, a speaker system was installed, and the church received a new roof and window screen boxes.

The winner of the pillows that were chanced off was Teresa Friend, winner of the door-prize pillows was Bradley Friend, and winner of the Friends Cookbook was Linda Reuschlein of LaVale.

Many out-of-state and local people visited the genealogy library and were pleased with the amount of material collected over the years. The museum will be open until November 1.

Habitat Board Member Returns From Op. Iraqi Freedom Service

Garrett County Habitat for Humanity board member Scott Winters, who also serves on the organization's building committee, returned to the United States recently after completing a five-month military deployment to the Middle Eastern country of Oman in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom.

Major Winters is with the West Virginia Air National Guard unit based in Martinsburg, W.Va., where he serves as a C-130 navigator with the 167th Airlift Squadron. A C-130 is a cargo plane that provides support, primarily for the U.S. Army, by airlifting troops and transporting supplies.

While stationed in Oman from March 7 through Aug. 1, Winters flew over 100 sorties, logging over 300 combat and combat support hours. His crew airlifted hundreds of troops and several hundred tons of cargo in support of the ongoing effort, in addition to flying to multiple fields in Iraq and numerous other countries in Southwest Asia.

Winters said one of the most memorable moments during his deployment was being on the ground in Iraq when a group of just-released American prisoners of war arrived at the field. He was also able to observe the POWs boarding helicopters to board a Marine C-130 in order to be transported out of the country.

The assignment marked Winters' third military stint in the Middle East. Last year he was activated and deployed to Qatar for 35 days from late August into October in support of Operating Enduring Freedom. While stationed in Qatar, Winters flew troops and cargo to Afghanistan, Pakistan, and several other countries. Winters also served in the first gulf war, Operation Desert Storm, in 1991.

Winters is currently still on active duty status, and is working at the 167th Airlift Squadron in Martinsburg. He is the owner of his own company, Winters Construction.

Flowery Vale Health & Fitness Center

The Flowery Vale Health & Fitness Center, Accident, operated by Community Action's Area Agency on Aging, will mark its second anniversary of serving Garrett County in October. This unique project, open to Garrett County residents age 55 and over, has become a prototype of senior health programs and is now being emulated in other counties across the state. A series of four articles will outline the origin, development, and health benefits of this project.

by Peggy Santamaria

Word is spreading across the state about the Flowery Vale Senior Health Fitness Center in Garrett County, and requests are coming to director Elaine Kackley for help on setting up similar programs in other counties. What makes the program successful is that it works. Clients benefit. Cholesterol numbers drop. Blood pressure is reduced. Pounds are lost. Flexibility and range of motion improve. These are clinical facts borne out in medical testing.

Maryland's senior health program directors learned about the center when Kackley spoke at a Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene conference. "I told them if they wanted me to talk about my program, they would have to tell me when to stop. Once I start telling anyone about it, I get so excited, I just keep talking," she said. It seems that what she had to say got their attention. And the calls have been coming in since then.

Adina Brode, director of the Area Agency on Aging, said that opening a senior fitness center had long been an agency goal. In 2000, there was an opportunity to work with a group of student health professionals at the Western Maryland Area Health Education Center. The team of nursing, occupational therapy, and physical therapy students in the Interdisciplinary Prevention in Rural Communities course developed a health and fitness center manual for the Agency on Aging.

Working with Brode, Ronnie Padmos, coordinator of the Older Americans' Act Program, spearheaded the health and fitness project. Equipment was donated, begged for, and, as a last resort, purchased. It was assembled on the stage of the Flowery Vale Fitness Center. A professional fitness trainer was hired, and a longtime dream became a reality.

As director of the new center in Accident, Kackley based her program on the AHEC student manual and, over time, modified it as she worked with the seniors. "I adjusted the program to meet individual needs. Working with each client, I could get a better idea of fitness level and need," she said.

Individual health monitoring is the hallmark of the center. A medical release is required for everyone who uses the facility, and Elaine has expanded the intake process for each member to include more fitness screening. "I wanted to see just what shape our people were in so I could put together the best program for each one," she said.

Based on the physician's statement of degree of participation permitted and the results of the individual fitness screening, Elaine designs a program with the client. "I ask them about their short-term and long-term health goals as well as their level of commitment to the program. If a client has special needs, we can work on those also," she said.

Kackley said she likes to re-evaluate a client after the first six weeks and about every three months thereafter unless the client asks for a change or is having difficulty with something. Clients fill out worksheets for each visit listing the sets/weight and time spent on aerobic equipment.

A baseline blood pressure reading is part of the intake process. Kackley offers monthly readings to monitor progress. "We are also doing before-and-after BP reading on our aerobic class participants to see how fast they recover from their workout," she said.

Examples of the positive impact this program has had on the lives of Garrett County residents will be portrayed in future stories in this series. Stay tuned.

Crellin Water System
Notice of Violation
Surface Water Treatment Technique
May 2003

The Garrett County Dept. of Public Utilities is providing the following notice regarding the Crellin Water System. The springs for the water system have been evaluated for protection against surface water influence as required by the Surface Water Treatment Rule (SWTR), as adopted in the Code of Maryland; COMAR 26.04.01, Quality of Drinking Water in Maryland. The spring was determined to be under the direct influence of surface water by the Maryland Dept. of the Environment. As a result, this source requires additional treatment, such as filtration, or replacement, or replacement with a protected water source. Federal and state regulations require that the Crellin Water System install filtration.

What is the Department of Public Utilities doing?
The Crellin Water System disinfects the drinking water that is produced from the spring. The drinking water is tested monthly for coliform bacteria and results have met state and federal standards.
The Department of Public Utilities is in the process of testing the design for a new water treatment facility. After the pilot test is completed, design for the project will proceed. Construction is expected to begin March 2004.

What should I do?
People with severely compromised immune systems, infants and some elderly may be at risk. These individuals should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. General guidelines on ways to lesson the risk of infection by microbes are available from EPA Safe Drinking Water Act Hotline (800-426-4791). If you have specific health concerns, consult your physician.

What does this mean?
This is not an emergency. This notification is provided to advise Crellin Water customers of the treatment requirements for their water system. Any questions or concerns should be directed to Allen Festerman at 301-387-9141. Please share this information with others that may find it useful.

Date of Notice: August 28, 2003

Nature Connection

by Liz McDowell & Ron Boyer

You know where to look for them – that patch of common milkweed along the road. A week ago you saw the bright orange and black adult flutter by this same spot. Still, you have to search carefully in the dense vegetation. Finally, your patience is rewarded when you spy a caterpillar with yellow, black, and white bands. Right before your eyes, munching steadily on a milkweed leaf is the larva of a monarch butterfly, Danaus plexippus.

Thanks to the cardiac glycosides found in milkweeds (Asclepias sp.), their exclusive larval host plant, monarchs are distasteful to most vertebrates such as frogs, snakes, birds, and mammals that might like to prey on them. Naive predators quickly associate the bad taste of the monarch with their bright warning coloration, avoiding them and other similarly colored prey in the future. More important, monarch predators are invertebrates, such as spiders and insects, that are apparently less affected by their chemical defenses.

Of all the butterflies of North America, the monarch is probably the best known and most loved. In classrooms around the country, schoolchildren marvel at their charming forms as they undergo complete metamorphosis. Typically, the teacher brings one or more monarch caterpillars into school to be placed in an observation cage. As the monarch caterpillar consumes more and more milkweed leaves, it soon outgrows its exoskeleton and sheds its covering in a process called molting. The period between molts is called an instar. According to researchers, monarchs go through five instars before molting into the pupa or chrysalis.

The incredible physiological changes that take place within the chrysalis are what transform the "esthetically not so pleasing" caterpillar into the gorgeous winged adult appreciated by all. Having the chance to see this metamorphosis up close is a thrill for children and adults alike. But before considering rearing monarchs in your classroom, be aware that you might unwittingly spread harmful parasites throughout a population. For proper rearing techniques visit www.MonarchWatch.org/biology/control.htm. Another great Web site with answers to the most frequently asked questions about monarchs is hosted by the Annenberg Foundation at www.learner.org/jnorth/search/Monarch.html.

Just as you might watch for migrating hawks along nearby ridges such as Savage and Backbone mountains in September and early October, you can look for migrating monarchs. The final brood of monarchs, "programmed" to migrate south in the fall, travels along these flyways to forests in central Mexico. Pay special attention during this time and you may be fortunate enough to witness monarch butterflies in clusters the size of basketballs or bigger, using a tree for an overnight stop. They need rest stops, since they travel quite some distance each day. One researcher in Pennsylvania tagged a monarch that was recovered a day later, 265 miles farther south on its long journey to Mexico.

Reports from the Field

Caroline Blizzard, Swallow Falls State Park, constructed a rearing cage for monarch butterflies so park visitors can get a close-up view of the caterpillar, chrysalis, and adult. Check out this excellent interpretive display at the nature center!

Randy McLeod, McHenry, made his first observations last week of bats using a bat box that he constructed earlier this year on his property.

Lisa Baker, Deep Creek, reports that her family observed a strange clump of black and white moving through a field in July. On closer inspection it turned out to be six baby skunks walking so close to each other that they looked like one animal.

If you'd like to share your Garrett County nature sightings or if you have questions about the plants & animals that you've observed, e-mail Liz & Ron at info@elkridgenatureworks.com.

Rehabilitation service assists in expediting and sustaining recovery.

What is the Adult LifeSkills program? Adult Lifeskills offers both group activities and individual one-to-one sessions. Care managers assist participants in developing their rehabilitation plan, which is designed to address the participant's needs and desires. ## Farming On The Mountaintop.

A MUCH NEEDED ADDITION TO THE FAIRGROUNDS – New showers and restrooms were recently installed in the dairy barn at the fairgrounds to benefit those involved in 4-H and FFA. The members spend the entire week of the fair on the grounds, showing and taking care of their animals. According to James McCrobie, the facility, which is divided into men's and women's sections, has been needed for some time. He said most of the credit for getting the project completed goes to John Schmidt, who did the studding and installation for the ICF (internal concrete form) building. McCrobie supplied the concrete. Many other local people also helped with the project, including Mike Yoder and Schmidt's family. Schmidt and his family are pictured in front of the new facility.

Thunderstorms Cut Into Hay Making

High humidity coupled with scattered evening thunderstorms resulted in 4.6 days suitable for field work for the week ending Sunday, Aug. 31. Air temperatures ranged from the 70s for lows to the 80s for highs. Most of Maryland was an inch above normal in precipitation for the month of August. Evening thunderstorms made it difficult to make good quality hay. A few farmers are starting their fourth cutting of alfalfa and other hay. Rain this summer has adversely affected watermelon and sweet corn yields.

Almost 70 percent of the corn crop is in the dough stage and over 30 percent is in the dent stage. A few fields are mature and will be harvested in a few weeks. Some farmers are chopping corn for silage. Over 70 percent of soybeans have bloomed and over 50 percent are setting pods.

Weight Loss Puzzles Doctors

ATLANTA, GA -- Doctors were surprised when two separate studies found that a natural dietary supplement could help cause significant weight loss.

Although not conclusive, both studies found that patients receiving the formula called Bio-Rex 3000®, lost more than twice as much weight as those in a control group on the same fat reduced diet. Neither group was instructed to decrease the amount of food they ate or to increase their exercise levels. An article published in the American Journal of Clinical Nutrition says that you don't have to decrease the amount of food you eat to lose weight, provided that you limit the fat.

According to a spokesperson for Phillips Gulf Corporation, the exclusive North American distributor of Bio-Rex 3000, the company is considering additional studies in order to get federal approval to make pharmaceutical claims. Currently, weight loss claims for the Bio-Rex 3000 supplement are limited. However, with the requisite approval, the company could say that Bio-Rex 3000 decreases sugar cravings, increases metabolism and interferes with the body's ability to produce excess fat.

Bio-Rex 3000 is currently available as a dietary supplement and plan in pharmacies and nutrition stores or by calling 1-800-729-8446. Suggested retail price for a four week supply is just $19.99.

Garrett Coll. Nets More Than $90K In Grant Funding

Two grants totaling over $90,000 of federal and state monies have been awarded to Garrett College recently for the purpose of improving and enhancing educational services. Notices of the grand awards were received by GC director of technology Jim Allen.

A sum of $42,649 from the U.S. Department of Education under the Carl D. Perkins Act has been targeted for improvement of career programs at the college, according to Allen.

A grant of $50,000 has been awarded to Garrett to continue the College Preparation Intervention Program (CPIP) and the Gear Up from High School to College program, both of which are designed to encourage and prepare more middle school and high school students to attend college.

The CPIP is in its third year of operation, and is funded by the Maryland Higher Education Commission and coordinated with the Garrett County Board of Education. The program focuses on a particular cohort of students, and provides a variety of activities including tutoring of high school students by college students; remediation; enrichment activities such as field trips and hands-on classes designed to stimulate students' interest in learning; and five summer camps for at-risk students that offer science, language arts, technology, and rafting trips.

REMEMBERING THE FALLEN – Across the United States and throughout the world, thousands upon thousands of gestures are being made today to remember the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001. The towns of Garrett County are no exception, where ceremonies will be held and flags will be waved. The Oakland Volunteer Fire Department staged a simple yet powerful display along Third street, where the company's ladder truck is flying an enormous American flag, pictured above. Surely no one was spared an emotional upheaval two years ago as the terrible day unfolded, and each will, in his or her own way, recall the events and honor those lost. Recollections of the devastation should remind us how precious and how fleeting life is, which should compel us all to cherish each day we are able to live, breathe, sing, love, and laugh. ## GC United Way Sets Campaign Goal For 2004

The United Way of Garrett County board has established a 2004 campaign goal of $100,000, based on the needs of the affiliate organizations. Fund-raising begins this fall.

Volunteers of the United Way of Garrett County Community Response Committee recently met with its affiliate organizations to review the progress of the 2003 programs funded with United Way grants. The agencies also presented their grant proposals for 2004 funding.

Joan Johnson of Big Brothers Big Sisters has recruited 25 volunteers to work with children identified as at-risk because of behavior. "As a result, it has been demonstrated in Garrett County that 65 percent of these children will improve their self-confidence, and 59 percent will achieve better academic performance," said a United Way spokesperson.

Heather Hanline of the Dove Center reported a record number of unduplicated shelter visits in 2003. "United Way funds go to helping those Garrett County residents who can't afford other safe accommodations," said the spokesperson.

Mountain Glade Day Services provided 53 elderly people with day care in 2002, according to director Joanne Harsh. United Way funds enable elderly persons with limited incomes to attend the day care sessions. "This program is an alternative to institutionalization, which is very disruptive to the lives of the elderly and their families," said the spokesperson.

Louise Richards, the executive director of the Maryland Salem Children's

Governor Appoints Duane Yoder To Housing Policy Commission

Governor Robert Ehrlich Jr. recently announced his appointments for the Commission on Housing Policy for the state of Maryland. Duane Yoder, president of the Garrett County Community Action Committee, was one of 21 persons from across the state to be appointed to the newly formed commission.

The members will recommend to the governor "specific and measurable actions to increase and preserve quality affordable housing in all Maryland communities," according to the governor's press release.

"Affordable housing is a top priority of the Ehrlich-Steele administration," the governor said. "This commission is charged with shaping our state's housing and community development policies to meet the needs of families, senior citizens, and underserved populations that have not been adequately addressed by the private market."

The commission will be chaired by Secretary Victor L. Hoskins, Department of Housing and Community Development (DHCD).

"I'm honored to lead the Governor's Commission on Housing Policy for the coming year," said Hoskins. "This commission [comprises] an outstanding group of professionals within the housing industry, and the findings and recommendations will reflect the great diversity of philosophy and experiences represented."

Hoskins has selected Allison F. Ladd to staff the Commission on Housing Policy for the next 16 months, the term of the commission. According to the governor's office, Ladd comes to DHCD from the Prince George's County Department of Housing and Community Development, where she served as a member of the senior management team.

In addition to Yoder, committee members include Brian Cox, executive director of the Maryland Developmental Disabilities Council; Don E. Bibb, executive director of the Easton Housing Authority; and Dana Jones, executive director of the Southern Maryland Tri-County Community Action Committee.

The commission will hold its organizational meeting Wednesday, Sept. 17, at the Department of Housing and Community Development in Crownsville. It will also join Ehrlich at his Governor's Conference on Housing on Oct. 30 at the University of Maryland College Park campus.

The commission will submit an interim report to the governor in Sept. 2004, and a final report with recommendations in Dec. 2004.

Child Safety Seat Law To Change Soon

Maryland's child safety seat law is changing on Oct. 15, requiring children to use seats until they are at least 6 years old.

"The new law is closing the gap that left children from 4 to 6 years old inadequately protected," said Diane Lee, highway safety coordinator for the Garrett County Health Department. "They normally just don't fit in an adult belt correctly. Since they don't fit correctly, they don't use the belt correctly, and they are at risk for injury and even death."

Even at 6 years old, a smaller child may not fit correctly into the adult belt.

"If you are not sure if your child is big enough to fit into an adult belt correctly, then come to a child safety seat check and we will help you decide," Lee said.

Classrooms Come Up Short As Teacher Shortage Continues

Prince George's County, the state's second-largest school district, still needed 60 teachers as of Thursday, its personnel chief said. Many other systems are hiring not-yet-certified teachers to fill their teaching positions.

"The real problem in Maryland is we don't have enough people going into the profession to begin with," said Bill Reinhard, a spokesman for the Maryland State Department of Education.

"We've had sort of a flattening of kids going into teaching in Maryland, and we've never had enough to [illegible] teachers in career and technology education, computer science, English for speakers of other languages, math, chemistry, physics, and special education.

Test Scores "On Target" In Garrett County Schools

Four grades of Garrett County school students took the Maryland School Assessment (MSA) last spring, and the school system is "generally satisfied" with the results, according to Dr. Pat Mullinix, coordinator of research, evaluation, and information.

This test was given to third, fifth, eighth, and tenth graders last spring, and replaced the MSPAP, which essentially tracked overall school performance, while the MSA focuses on individual student progress. This new testing will eventually phase in other grade levels, and meets the federal requirements of the No Child Left Behind Act.

Under this new act, the schools and the state must show that students are making Adequate Yearly Progress (AYP) in reading, mathematics, and one additional measure. In elementary and middle schools, that measure is attendance. In high schools it is graduation rate.

In addition to the student achievement in the aggregate of all students, AYP must be made among those students who receive Free and Reduced-Price Meals or are in the special education curriculum.

Each child's performance is graded as basic, proficient, or advanced. Mullinix added that parents should be receiving their child's test scores soon from the schools.

The Annual Measurable Objective (AMO) is defined by the state for each category and increases every year. By 2014, the attendance rate is to be at 94%, the graduation rate at 90%, and the percent of students performing at the proficient level at 100% for all students in the aggregate and for each applicable subgroup of students.

This year the attendance rate was to be 92.2%, and Garrett County students were above average at 94%, said Mullinix.

Local students were also above the 80.99% graduation rate at 82.73%.

The only subgroup in which the students did not reach the AYP was in special education; however, the reading and math scores were above the state average by the aggregate.

Mullinix pointed out to the board members at the recent monthly meeting that as far as she knew no county met all the stan-

Second Public Hearing Held On DC Sanitary District Expansion

The Garrett County commissioners held a second public hearing Tuesday on a resolution to expand the Deep Creek Sanitary District. More than 70 persons attended the two-hour meeting at the Garrett County Health Department, with many asking questions about or voicing their objections to the expansion.

Though the district may expand in phases during the next several years, this hearing only involved properties owned by Deep Creek Development LLC, Marsh Mountain LLC, and Hugh Umbel, who wants to develop an area east of the north-bound lane of Rt. 219 in McHenry.

Director Mark Tonkovich, Garrett County Department of Public Utilities, explained that the developers, who plan to build several hundred housing units, had requested that the county expand the Deep Creek Sanitary District to include their projects.

In anticipation of providing service to many new Deep Creek Sanitary District customers and improving service to current customers, the county plans to upgrade the district's aging sewage treatment plant along Mayhew Inn Road. The system deteriorated faster during the past 20 years than expected, Tonkovich said.

The upgrade is needed not only for growth, but also for the reliability and rehabilitation of the existing system and "the long-term quality of life and economic well-being of the county," the director said.

The total cost of the upgrade to the plant would be $15.6 million, according to Barry Sweitzer of Public Utilities. Funding for the project would come from the U.S. Department of Agriculture in the form of a 20-year loan at 4.75 percent interest. To pay for the loan, current Deep Creek Sanitary District customers would foot 45 percent of the bill, while new customers would pay 55 percent. The 45/55 cost share would mean that current customers would pay $169.29 a year, while new customers would pay $342.77 a year.

Tonkovich noted that a 20 percent increase to the treatment plant would allow it to treat twice as much waste. "We can get twice the treatment at the plant without twice the cost," said Sweitzer.

Laboratory director Dale Baker of Public Utilities said the plant currently has a permit to handle .6 million gallons per day, but plant improvements are needed to keep up with increasingly stricter Maryland Department of the Environment requirements.

At the first public hearing on the expansion of the district, county officials had proposed that both new and old Deep Creek Sanitary District customers pay an ad valorem tax of five cents per $100 of the assessed value of their properties.

Commissioner Fred Holliday said Tuesday that he felt the tax was unfair because old customers were treated the same as new customers. "It put everyone on the same page," he said.

"[The new proposal] distributes the burden where the burden needs to be," Sweitzer said. The new customers would pay $8.524 million for expansion, while current ones pay $7.076 million for "reliability and replacement."

Several current Deep Creek Sanitary District customers, however, said that having them pay for a new system was unfair.

Autumn Glory Annual Kick-Off Reception Slated

The kick-off reception for the 2003 Autumn Glory schedule will be held on Oct. 8 at the Lodge at Wisp, McHenry. The festivities will get under way at 6 p.m. with a cocktail hour, and at 7 p.m. a "sit-down" dinner will be served and dessert bar available. The coronation of the Autumn Glory royal court will be followed by dancing to the music of the Bobby Nicholas Band featuring Bobby Nicholas, vocalist.

The reception ticket includes an open bar, hors d'oeuvres, dinner, and entertainment, as well as the issuance of a golden ambassador pass. The ambassador pass entitles the holder to admission and priority seating at the Banjo Contest and Ronnie Reno and the Reno Tradition Concert on Friday night plus the Fiddle and Mandolin Contest on Saturday night. In addition, passes provide priority seating at Saturday's Grand Feature Parade, on the bleachers, near the viewing stand.

For reservations and tickets, persons may call the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce at 301-387-4386 or stop by the Visitors Center in McHenry.

Admission is $125/single and $195/couple.

PERHAPS TOO YOUNG TO UNDERSTAND, the second graders of Dennett Road Elementary School nonetheless lent their voices to today's remembrances of Sept. 11, 2001. After singing a heartfelt rendition of "My Country 'Tis of Thee," broadcast throughout Dennett Road as part of the daily morning news show, the youngsters joined the rest of the school's students and faculty in reciting the Pledge of Allegiance as the American flag was displayed on their televisions. Most of these kids were just 5 years old or thereabouts when hijacked planes slammed into the World Trade Center, the Pentagon, and into the ground – not more than 10 flight-time minutes away – in Shanksville, Pa. While the depth of the tragedy is yet too hard for them to comprehend, as adults they will remember how their parents and teachers were stunned by the events, and they will begin to fathom the terrible things that befell their nation that day. But they will also press on with their lives, each one possessing the potential of being a helpful, productive, positive member of this society, which remains free and strong despite the tragedies remembered today. # Paul Sarbanes To Speak At Jefferson-Jackson Day Dinner

SEN. PAUL SARBANES

Senator Paul Spyros Sarbanes, the longest serving U.S. senator in Maryland history, will be the keynote speaker for the annual Garrett County Jefferson-Jackson Day Dinner, slated for 7 p.m. Friday, Sept. 26, at the Pleasant Valley Community Center. The event is sponsored by the Garrett County Democratic Club. The cost of the dinner event is $25 per person, and reservations may be made by calling Michael Bello at 301-533-3242.

Sarbanes made Maryland history in November 2000 by winning re-election to an unprecedented fifth term to the U.S. Senate.

Sarbanes has been working for the people of Maryland for over three decades, first as a member of the Maryland House of Delegates and then serving as a congressman from the Third Congressional District for three terms. Since 1977, he has served with distinction in the U.S. Senate, where he is the ranking member of the Senate Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs Committee, and is a senior member of the Foreign Relations, Budget and Joint Economic committees.

The son of Greek immigrants from Laconia, Greece, Sarbanes was born in Salisbury on Feb. 3, 1933. "The principles I learned growing up in Salisbury that have guided my public life are opportunity and fairness," Sarbanes said, "principles that I strongly believes are fundamental to a decent and just society."

After graduating from Salisbury's Wicomico High School, Sarbanes earned an academic and athletic scholarship to Princeton University, where he was awarded an A.B. degree in 1954. He received a Rhodes Scholarship to attend the University of Oxford in England, where he was awarded a First Class B.A. degree in 1957. Sarbanes then returned to the U.S. to attend Harvard Law School.

Sarbanes earned his first elective office in 1966, when he won a seat in the Maryland House of Delegates as the representative of Baltimore City. During his four years as a state legislator in Annapolis he served on the Judiciary and the Ways and Means committees.

In 1970 Sarbanes was elected to the first of three terms in the U.S. House of Representatives. While in the House, from 1971 to 1976, Sarbanes served on the House Judiciary Committee, the Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee, and the Select Committee on House Reorganization.

During his tenure as a congressman, Sarbanes was selected by his Democratic colleagues on the House Watergate Committee to introduce the first Article of Impeachment against Richard Nixon, charging the president with obstruction of justice. Sarbanes was elected to the U.S. Senate in November 1976.

"Throughout his public service, Sarbanes has worked hard to provide the citizens of Maryland with dedicated, independent representation; representation based upon intelligence and integrity; representation which gives people the confidence that elected officials are there to serve the public interest," stated a spokesperson for the GC Democratic Club.

In response to the failure of Enron Corporation in 2001, which, at the time, was the seventh largest corporation in the United States, Sarbanes, in his capacity as chairman of the Senate Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs Committee, presided over a series of comprehensive hearings on the matter. Those hearings led to the passage of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act, a bipartisan bill designed to reform the accounting industry and restore the investor confidence that had eroded following the Enron collapse.

As a result of his work in shepherding this historic legislation through the Congress and into law, Sarbanes was honored in June with the prestigious Paul H. Douglas Ethics in Government Award from the University of Illinois. The award, established in 1992 to honor Senator Douglas, a man often labeled "the conscience of the U.S. Senate," was designed to honor individuals who have made a substantial contribution to promoting ethics.

In June 1960, Sarbanes married Christine Dunbar of Brighton, England. A graduate of St. Hugh's College at the University of Oxford, Mrs. Sarbanes has held the positions of lecturer in classics at Goucher College from 1960 to 1973, and teacher of Latin and classical Greek at the Giulman School in Baltimore from 1978 to 2000.

The couple have three children and five grandchildren. Sarbanes is a member of the Greek Orthodox Cathedral of the Annunciation in Baltimore.

SPORTAEROBIC DAY PROCLAIMED – The Garrett County commissioners have proclaimed Sunday, Sept. 14, as Sportaerobic Day in honor of the county's world champion sportaerobic team, which is now planning a trip to Argentina for an international competition. To celebrate Sportaerobic Day, the team will host "Fitness Follies" on the lawn at Uno's Restaurant on that day from 1 until 6 p.m. "Fitness Follies is going to be an action-packed fun and fitness extravaganza for children and adults of all ages. There will be games and races, fitness stations to test your strength and flexibility, and water events such as kayak races, water balloon battles, and wave runner rides," a team spokesperson said. Prizes including movie passes, medals, T-shirts, free ice cream from the Lakeside Creamery, and other items will be given out all afternoon. Uno's food will be served during Fitness Follies at the Honi Honi throughout the day, with a portion of the proceeds to be donated to the team. Fitness Follies is being held to raise money to help defray traveling expenses for the team. Seated from left are Commissioners Dave Beard, Fred Holliday, and Ernie Gregg. Standing in the same order are Kellie Shotwell, Anna Keefer, Coach Brenda Brosnihan, Jessica Warnick, Jennifer Feaster, Alayna Gaither, Abby Wildesen, Paige Carr, Samantha Taylor, Alissa Garland, Morgan Brosnihan, and Rachel Margroff. ## Thursday Fire Ruled Accidental

The cause of a fire that caused an estimated $50,000 in damages to a house and contents in Oakland last Thursday morning has been ruled accidental by the investigators for the Maryland state fire marshal.

A passerby saw smoke coming from the single-family dwelling located at 206 W. Liberty Street and called 911 at 9:56 a.m. Oakland, Gorman, Terra Alta, and Deep Creek firefighters responded to the scene and discovered that the fire had nearly burned itself out, but that there was significant smoke and heat damage inside.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Bowersox, owners of the house, were out of town at the time of the fire.

According to Deputy State Fire Marshal Jamie Rodeheaver, the fire originated in the living room on the first floor and was caused by the electrical failure of a lamp cord. He estimated a loss of $40,000 to the structure and $10,000 in contents.

The approximately two dozen volunteers contained the fire in about 10 minutes. There were no injuries reported.

Accident Receives $47,220 For New Playground Equipment

The town of Accident recently used its grant of $47,220 as part of the state's latest round of Community Parks and Playgrounds Program grants, according to the office of Governor Robert Ehrlich.

Sixty-eight projects across the state received a total of $5.2 million to expand existing parks or to purchase new playground equipment in established neighborhoods. The funds are committed to the counties through Program Open Space (POS), administered by the Maryland Department of Natural Resources.

According to town officials, the monies were used to install a quarter-mile walking trail, an overhead tree climber, and two new play sets. The Mountain Peak pl[redacted] mended [redacted] and c[redacted] er a[redacted] Tin[redacted] ommended [redacted] olds, and consists of a wave climber, clover leaf climber, and two slides.

All of the new equipment was installed in the Town Park East, located along S. South Street.

Town officials thank everyone who helped with the inst[redacted] continue to move aggressively to ensure that all Marylanders have the opportunity to exercise, play, and spend time with family and friends in quality parks near their homes," said Ehrlich. "One of the most desirable aspects of a home is its proximity to parks and open spaces that serve as gathering places for families and communities. Our Parks and Playground Program not only builds recreational facilities – it also contributes to a stronger community spirit."

The Community Parks and Playground Program provides a dedicated fund source to allow the state to focus on restoring existing, and creating new, park and green space systems in Maryland's cities and towns. The program offers flexible grants to local governments to respond to the unmet need for assistance to rehabilitate, expand, or improve existing parks or create new parks, or purchase and install playground equipment [redacted]der neighborhoods and [redacted]ly developed areas [redacted]out the state. Eligi[redacted] projects must be located within an existing community or neighborhood and in a Priority Funding Area. A multi-agency grant review committee selects the final projects.

In 2001, the program generated more than $46 million in requests for funding, and more than 300 grant applications were received from local governments and municipalities from each Maryland county and Baltimore City. Of these, the Board of Public Works approved the first grant request for $5.4 million to fund 41 projects. Funded projects ranged from replacing antiquated play equipment to constructing accessible park facilities.

Several Weekend Motorists Arrested For Drunk Driving

Several motorists were arrested this past weekend for drunk driving, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Charles Martin Morehead, 44, Mtn. Lake Park, was stopped after his vehicle was seen crossing the center line on several occasions along Maryland Highway near Leon White Road, police said.

After failing field sobriety tests, he was arrested and charged with driving under the influence (DUI), DUI per se, driving while impaired by alcohol (DWI), and failure to drive right of center.

Early Sunday morning, a vehicle driven by Ronald Antwon Rhodes of Oakland was stopped for crossing the center line, police said.

He was arrested and charged with DUI, DUI per se, DWI, and failure to drive right of center.

In a separate incident, an unknown subject alerted a deputy outside the Sheriff's Office Sunday night of a motorist who was observed driving erratically.

The vehicle was stopped along Second Street, after deputies observed the vehicle passing the stop sign and stopping in the middle of the intersection at Center Street and then again at Pennington Street, police said.

Carol Brigitte Werkeiser, 43, Oakland, failed sobriety tests and was arrested. She was charged with DUI, DWI, failure to drive right of center, and failure to stop for a stop sign/stop line.

Police would like to talk to the person who contacted the deputy outside the sheriff's office Sunday night at approximately 10:50 p.m.

Motor Vehicle Violations Lead To Man's Arrest

A Preston County man was arrested in Oakland Friday night by Oakland Police of-ficers who were checking on a suspicious occupied vehicle parked on the west end of town.

Paul Allen Brock, 18, Terra Alta, W.Va., was behind the wheel of the vehicle, which was located shortly after 9 p.m. parked on the wrong side of the road along Oakland Rosedale Road at Washington Springs. Brock told police he had stopped there when his engine overheated.

A routine computer check revealed that the vehicle was not insured and was not registered, and that the license plates displayed on the vehicle were not registered to that vehicle.

Brock was arrested on charges stemming from those violations, and was later released from the Garrett County Jail on his own recognizance.

Oakland Man Charged With Arson Threat

An Oakland man was charged with arson threat after deputies responded to a trailer along Gorman Road Monday night, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

The victim accused William Edward McCrobie Jr., 29, of saying he was going to set the residence on fire with the victims inside, police said.

McCrobie was arrested, and later released by the District Court commissioner on an unsecured $10,000 bond.

Single-Vehicle Crash On I-68 Injures Driver

A Virginia woman was injured when her vehicle ran off Interstate 68 just inside the West Virginia state line last Thursday, Sept. 4, according to Maryland State Police troopers assigned to the McHenry barrack. The driver was the car's sole occupant.

The 7:03 mishap occurred shortly after Sara-Beth Perrine Doyle, 19, Fredericksburg, entered Maryland on the eastbound interstate. Approximately one mile inside Garrett County her 2000 Ford Focus failed to negotiate a curve to the right and drove off the left side of the roadway onto the shoulder. When she attempted to correct direction, she overcompensated and lost control, veering all the way across the eastbound lanes until her sedan hit an embankment on the right side of the roadway. The vehicle overturned and came to rest on the outside shoulder.

Doyle was transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad. The Friendsville Volunteer Fire Department assisted at the accident scene.

No charges were filed.

Driver Injured After Avoiding Animal In Road

A Swanton woman was injured after she attempted to avoid an animal in the roadway along Route 495 near Green Glade Road, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Sonya Lloyd's vehicle struck the ditch and rolled several times, police said. She was transported by Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital for medical evaluation.

Deer Park Community Volunteer Fire Department also responded to the scene.

In other police news, Gerry Bowser, Oakland, stopped his vehicle along Route 219 north of Mason School Road after he smelled a burning odor inside the vehicle, police said.

Shortly after parking the vehicle, it became totally engulfed with fire. The Oakland fire department extinguished the fire, and the vehicle was destroyed, police added.

McHenry Man Sentenced For 4-Wheeler Theft

A McHenry man pleaded guilty in Garrett County Circuit Court last Thursday to motor vehicle theft. Additional charges of motor vehicle theft and burglary against Benjamin Tyler Perando, 20, were dismissed upon his plea.

Judge Fred A. Thayer sentenced Perando to two years in the Division of Corrections, with all of that sentence suspended but two months. After his release from jail, Perando will be on supervised probation.

In March, Perando was arrested and charged by officers with the Garrett Bureau of Investigation who determined that he and two juveniles had broken into a garage in the Grantsville area and removed three 4-wheelers.

During their investigation, the officers recovered the 4-wheelers, which had been damaged. As a condition of his probation, Perando must make restitution for the damage.

The juveniles had previously appeared in Juvenile Court, admitted their involvement, and were committed to a Department of Juvenile Services facility, according to State's Attorney Lisa Thayer Welch.

Elections Board Slates Move To Mtn. Lake Park

The Garrett County Board of Elections will be moving out of the courthouse and relocating to the Public Service Center at GW Plaza, 2008 Maryland Highway, Suite 1, Mountain Lake Park.

Yes, We are Changed...

Two years ago to this very hour (10 a.m.), news columnists, politicians, and people on the street made the statement, or facsimile thereof, "The world has been changed forever."

How true those words were. Life is quite different today than it was prior to 9/11/01, as we now cope almost daily with that nagging apprehension about whether or not we are safe. For the first time since 1941, our homeland was attacked, and for the first time since the War of 1812, our mainland was attacked by foreigners. We constantly wonder and worry about what the terrorists' next move will be, because we are convinced that it is just a matter of time. We have been on edge now for 24 months straight.

Our elected officials have responded by adding a new cabinet position/office (Homeland Security), which is working feverishly to plug the many holes in our walls of security that we didn't really worry too much about two years and a day ago. There has been progress in this effort, as several additional attack plans have been thwarted, but there is a long way to go, as proven once again just this week by the nutwit who boxed himself up as cargo and flew undetected from New York to Texas.

Our president has also responded by unleashing military attacks in both Afghanistan and Iraq, with the intention of bringing justice to the perpetrators and restoring stability and peace. That effort continues today. Public opinion on his actions runs the gamut, from total support to suggesting that he should be tried for war crimes. Only time will tell if opting for warfare was the right or wrong decision.

The death and destruction was immediate and massive on 9/11/01, throwing thousands of families into grief beyond description. And death and destruction continues to this day as a result. We all want it to just stop. The disagreement among us centers around how best to make that happen. In the opinion of this writer, pulling our troops out of Iraq now would be a major mistake down the road. Things are truly in a mess there right now, but we knew that they would be for many months. It is crucial, however, that the United Nations become involved in the rebuilding and stabilization efforts and quickly, now that the major military action has subsided.

No matter how this nightmare plays out, it is a fact that our nation and our world are indeed changed forever.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I agree with your pet peeve; however, the wipers on/lights on law is a secondary offense, and the officer on the street cannot stop anyone for this violation unless a more serious one is observed. Then he can write a ticket for this one as well.

I am a homeowner in McHenry and was interested in the proposed expansion of the DC Sanitary District to see if it would affect me. I was also aware of the proposed Bumble Bee Rd. $20 million proposed new plant. I stopped at the Sanitary District Office on Garrett Hwy. on Friday, Sept. 5, and was told:

1. The "map" was not available as it was out getting copied. (Gee, only one copy available - I was skeptical.)

2. The $20 million project on Bumble Bee Rd. has been abandoned - "they" have changed their minds and the money is being spent on this expansion instead.

I must have missed this info in your paper - if, in fact, it was ever reported as news. I didn't think federal funds like this could be moved around and put to a new project without a lot of input and justification. Is this another example of those with money getting special treatment?

Just some information that I thought you should be aware of - and I think should be investigated and reported on by your paper for all citizens to be aware of.

Thank you,
John L. Grumbach

Since 1919, Business and Professional Women has promoted equity for all women in the workplace through advocacy, education, and information. With 15,000 local organizations across the country and members in each congressional district, BPW is a leading advocate for millions of working women and women in general. More than $5 million has been awarded for scholarships, loans, and fellowships by the non-profit education and research arm of BPW, which also sponsors education and training on topics such as starting your own business, leadership development, career strategies, work and family issues.

So, if you are interested in networking, if personal development and professional training are of interest to you, if you feel strongly about issues affecting Garrett County and all women and want to support those working for a change, then Garrett BPW offers this and more.

This year BPW will be featuring programs on the Garrett County Detention/Jail System and Women, Adventure Sports, Bioterrorism, County Planning issues, and Financial Planning. To the Editor:

This letter is in response to Doug Arey's note in a recent issue. Custer was indeed crowned Garrett's County farm queen ambassador several weeks ago at the Garrett County fair.

Weeks before the county contest, there was a note in The Republican that our farm queen contest was taking some turns. On a county level, our young woman who is crowned the farm queen will still be referred to as the farm queen for our county, but at a state level she will represent our county as the agriculture ambassador. We did announce this during our queen contest at our fair also. Shaina also gave personal interviews with me during the tractor pulls and the truck pull, and we did refer to her as our Garrett County fair queen ambassador.

Shaina was crowned our 58th farm queen this year. On our county level she was given a crown, a sash, lots of gifts donated by local business places and individuals, and also a $500 scholarship from Garrett County Farm Bureau. We are pleased to have knowledgeable, responsible, young women run for our county contest, who take pride in an agriculture and have an understanding of it and the hard work farmers put into this county.

This year at the state contest the girls wore a blazer with no crown, and a black sash with the county name. I think it was a big letdown not to see the girls in crowns and evening gowns, which show their individual personalities. The Maryland state fair board has also received a lot of negative feedback over this issue as well.

The FB Women's board will take aim at the final rules and bylaws at the upcoming Farm Bureau convention held in December. There has ever been some discussion that the Maryland Farm Bureau Women would like to have boys run next year, but that is not totally finalized. They are getting away from the queen aspect because of the lack of interest, with some of the counties finding girls to run, and in some counties the queens were getting made fun of for being a queen. But, in today's world it seems like kids make fun of everything, including each other. It would be a blessing if some of the people in today's world would be nostalgic in their ways, and could have the values of some of our ancestors. The world would be a better place in which to raise our children.

As a representative of agriculture, I will still try to promote the importance of our county agriculture queen, our farming backgrounds, and the future for the county. Others can, of course, criticize us for being provincial backwater, but we are proud of our American traditions and our strong agricultural county.

To the Editor:

I have lived in Oakland only two years and I love it here, for the most part. The rural beauty, farm life, and natural resources are spectacular. However, trying to make a living here, as is no surprise to native Garrett County residents, is almost impossible. The wages paid to employees here are shameful. From what I understand, this county is controlled by politicians and business owners who make sure that the average (year-round) resident stays poor and can only survive by working two or three low-wage jobs. It seems the motivation on the politicians' part to keep wages so low is so that the county will qualify as a low-income region in order to receive state grants, funding, and programs.

All these programs are well and good for those who are needy, but perhaps there wouldn't be as many needy people if they were paid a fair wage for their work and were allowed to earn a decent living. For this town being the county seat and with attorney and professional offices, as well as commerce being so strong, there is no excuse for this. It costs just as much to live here as it does in the Baltimore/Washington area, where salaries are astronomical compared to Garrett County. Housing prices have skyrocketed just in the short time I've lived here; and it's no cheaper to buy food, gas, or electricity here. In fact, the housing market has become distorted due to the million dollar homes being built around the lake. Most people who can afford those homes sure don't work in Garrett County.

I heard that when Wal-Mart came to town they were prepared to pay wages comparable to other regions in the country, but were discouraged from doing so by the county politicians, the Chamber of Commerce, and the few larger business owners who would not be willing to also pay a fair wage.

Not only are wages so low it should be criminal, the fact that employees here rarely receive benefits (health care, paid sick, and vacation leave, etc.) is almost unheard of in other parts of the state.

What kind of future do young people have when they can't earn enough money in their home county to buy a house, raise a family, or earn a decent living?

As citizens we all need to make a stand together and stop tolerating low wages being paid by employers. I have come to know and respect the hard-working people of this county, and they deserve to be treated well and fairly. I hope writing this letter will generate discussion among all residents and encourage them to speak out and raise awareness of the problem of low wages in this county. We should all pay attention to our elected officials so that at election time we can vote for those whose actions have benefited all of Garrett County residents, not just the few who hold the purse strings.

Sincerely,
Susan Hinton

To the Editor:

Last year I joined the Gorman Volunteer Firemen's Auxiliary. I understood they were short of help, and I had only my time and my experience to offer. I helped with the buckwheat cake and sausage dinner last fall, the soup sale this spring, the "brown bag" food program, and of course, attended the required meetings of my newly adopted community organization. Things were going just fine and I was enjoying myself. Only one thing troubled me. Communication between the firemen and the auxiliary was practically nonexistent. This often affected our ability to plan functions to generate money for our fire company.

Things worsened this summer when local gossip had it that the firemen were thinking about getting rid of the fire hall. I brought this up at the very next meeting. Our president told those assembled that the firemen had said the fire hall had become a financial burden. The fire hall was seldom rented for community functions anymore. The annual ramp dinner had been canceled two years earlier because of lack of help. She said they told her the building was just costing them money. Indeed, the firemen were thinking about disposing of the fire hall in some fashion. There was even talk of tearing the building down!

In an effort to determine what was going on, I questioned some firemen and learned that the "talk" was of renting the building to Mr. Kenny Paugh. The rent amount discussed was $200 a month. Mr. Paugh's intention was to move his business, "Discounted Treasures," into the building, and that a vote was imminent.

In our next meeting I asked again about the "talk." Our president shrugged her shoulders and replied that the building belonged to the firemen and was theirs to do with as they chose. Again she shrugged; she knew nothing of the talk or the impending vote. I could not believe my ears! Neither could I believe my eyes when, the very next week, I drove past to see "Discounted Treasures" moving into the building.

Now, I don't know, folks, but this is beginning to have a strange smell to it. How can a small group of volunteer firemen decide what happens to property and equipment that the community paid for without first consulting the community? Think about it. How will the firemen raise money without the fire hall? There will be no more buckwheat and sausage dinners, no ramp dinners, no soup sales, or bake sales. Where will the community vote? If we have a community or large family function, where will it be held? Last year I asked about renting the hall for a family function, and the rental was $200 a day. Why is the hall today worth only $200 a month? What's next? Will they sell the kitchen equipment just as cheaply, leaving the building unable to support itself?

I've called Emergency Management and they tell me that this may indeed be legal, that the fire company does own the property. With the proper vote they can do this without consulting the community. It seems our only recourse is to let our wishes be known to the fire company, and to withhold our financial support if they will not comply.

It is my understanding that the fire company meets the first and third Monday of the month at 7 p.m. Their next meeting will be Sept. 22. I intend to be there to see if I can get some of these questions answered. I would request that The Republican send a reporter to this meeting. The community needs to be informed of this situation.

We here in the Gorman area have been blessed to have talented first responders with their lifesaving equipment close at hand in case of sudden illness or emergency. We also have brave selfless firemen who risk their lives to protect us and our property from fire and flood. I fear this is the first step towards losing this lifesaving service. We cannot let this happen!

If you, too, are troubled about this situation, I would like you to join me in my query at the fire house in Gorman on Monday, Sept. 22, at 7 p.m.

Sincerely,
Linda Kyle

To the Editor:

I've been thinking about how and when to write a letter on the following subject for quite a while. After reading Mr. Caldwell's request for our support of the paper mill workers, I hope you will find space for these observations.

While all across America people worry about how their future will be affected by our so-called "economic downturn," in my opinion, few realize the depth of what has happened to our beloved country in the recent past.

For about the last 30 years, our nation has been systematically de-industrialized by the real people in power – the men who control multi-national businesses and their international banker bosses. They have done so with the bought-and-paid-for permission of our elected officials in the name of "globalism" and "free trade." Just check out the big campaign contributions of most of the incumbents of both parties. All the way to the top!

The truth is, the industrial revolution has not come to an end; it has just been moved, in search of cheaper "slave" labor. Every month, thanks to our elected "representatives," the trade agreements they signed cost this country over 40 billion–yes, that's billion–dollars in trade deficits!

It wasn't hard to predict the closing of the local Bausch & Lomb plant as soon as I heard they had a new factory opening in China. Despite their promises to the contrary, we all know what happened a few years later. It sure sounds like the Luke mill could go the same way. I'm betting five years or less!

While it is really not funny, it is, at least to me becoming a real possibility that the Chinese army wouldn't need troop ships to invade us any more. They could just load their men into shipping containers with a bowl of rice apiece, and then have them all run out of the Wal-Marts across this country one morning and take over the good old U.S.A. once and for all.

But seriously, folks, if you read the city papers the news is anything but good. More and more millions work today with no health insurance. According to Congress itself, thousands of pension plans and even the government insurance program to back up these pensions, are now in dire straits. No one knows how long Social Security itself will survive, with more and more "baby boomers" returning in a few years. I predict we will soon find out what happens when everyone is riding on the wagon and there are too few left to pull or push!

The American worker of today is slowly losing almost every benefit that was fought for and won over the last century. Along with them are going the good jobs and wages that created the great 'middle class' of people whose prosperity has driven the giant economic engine that made this country the super power it was over the past decades.

In recent years we have been told the big lie that these 'free trade' agreements that were virtually shoved down the throat of our country will eventually create a middle class of folks able to buy our products in Mexico, China, and elsewhere by allowing big business to move millions of those jobs to these 'slave labor' markets. They apparently don't care if by that time our once proud country will be virtually destroyed economically. In my opinion we will soon prove the hard way that we cannot compete with a worker who lives in a mud hut unless we are willing to live in a mud hut also.

Let me be very plain here. In my opinion, none of this has happened by accident. You may call it what you want. I will call it treason. Unless the people of the United States wake up and realize this, and vote accordingly, this nation, as we know it, cannot continue to survive much longer.

I say that we must prove by our votes that we can and will politically destroy any and all candidates for any government office, local or national, who cannot or will not back an 'American Jobs' policy that says we are going to start taking the necessary steps to move the industrial revolution back to the U.S.A. whether the rest of the world likes it or not!

If we don't stop the 'selling off' of our industrial base now, while 'we the people' still have some of the economic power that we once had, we will have lost our last chance to save this country from the financial calamity that is surely coming.

Don't kid yourself, it is already that bad, whether we like it or not!

Trust, explained how United Way funds are used to "provide a safe, nurturing and highly sheltered temporary haven for Garrett County children in crisis."

The money given to the Boy Scouts will allow Garrett County boys whose families have limited incomes to attend summer camp, according to Brad Burr, executive director. Additional monies are used for uniforms and Scouting equipment.

"There are so many other stories that can be told of how United Way funds are being used to better our communities," said Tom Myers, chairperson of the Community Response Committee. "Actually seeing the results of the money raised from our neighbors is incredible and very enlightening."

In all, 11 agencies are currently funded by the United Way of Garrett County, while three others are affiliated but not funded.

Information on the programs of other agencies funded by the United Way of Garrett County will be made available as the 2004 campaign progresses.

The Community Response Committee volunteers are responsible for recognizing and funding the needs of local people by gaining knowledge of the needs of the county and the services the affiliate organizations provide.

The volunteers on the committee are Rose Ahern, Lucia Biers, Phil Emery, Jeannette Fitzwater, Bob Huebner, Wayne Johnson, Stan Mopsik, Terry Riley, Frank Shap, Christine Sisler, Bob Stephens, Fran Wishnick, Ken Witte, and Paula Yudelevit.

The United Way of Garrett County, formed in April of 2000, is fully supported by contributions from individuals and businesses in the community. Affiliated organizations have met the requirements of the organization by delivering community services to improve the quality of life for the county. Any non-profit organization meeting the human needs of the community is welcome to apply for affiliation.

REL Making Home Access Of Library Accounts Available

Patrons of the Ruth Enlow Library system will soon be able to keep track of books they have on loan via the Internet. Beginning Monday, Sept. 15, patrons who presents their library cards at the circulation desk of any branch can either request or suggest a PIN (Personal Identification Number) that will provide home access to their personal library accounts through the library's Web site.

"By going to www.relib.net, clicking on 'View Your Library Account,' then entering your specific library card number and PIN number, it will be possible to view which items you have checked out, learn when they are due, and whether the books are renewable or non-renewable," a library spokesperson explained. "The account can also indicate the status of books patrons have requested to be placed on hold for them."

Individual PIN numbers can be obtained from any library branch. Each cardholding patron, no matter what age, can get a PIN number which is good only for that person's present library account. No one can access another patron's account, and accounts are not kept of the patron's library requests checked out in the past.

"Parents can use this system to encourage children to keep track of the books they have out of the library, and to be responsible for their own renewals and for returning books on time," the spokesperson concluded.

Timmy, we love you and today we want to honor your smile.
If we could only be in your presence again for just a little while.

It would ease the heartache that we carry each and every day.
God needed you as an angel, but we wanted you to stay.

One more laugh, one more smile would truly ease the pain,
if in our lives only you could have remained.

It has been a year since the day we lost you.
And we trust and know only God will see us through.

Since the day you left us, all our hearts filled with sorrow.
But it's the memories of you that help us look forward to tomorrow.

So we honor you this day with love in our hearts,

Friends Of New Germany Plan First Fall Fest

Friends of New Germany, New Germany State Park's incorporated volunteer organization, are meeting this week to make final plans for the first Fall Fest. The event, which is to be a celebration of the fall season, will be held on Saturday, Sept. 20, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

A variety of day-long activities are planned for adults, children, and families, as well as for both first-time and returning visitors.

Information about what New Germany State Park provides to the community, including educational, social, and volunteer opportunities, will be available at the Lakehouse Welcome Center. Also available at the center will be door prize registration, the sale of Nature Field Guides, and drawings.

"Welcome Walks" of the various areas of the park and cabin tours will be conducted throughout the day. A yard sale and "White Elephant Treasures Sale" will take place on the green. In the small pavilion, guests may participate in making supervised, nature-oriented crafts.

Persons may take home seed collages, sun catchers, leaf designs, or one of several other art creations as souvenirs.

Music in the afternoon will be provided by Don Robinson and his One Man Band. There will be apple-cider-making demonstrations and samples throughout the day. A park scavenger hunt with prizes will be held in the afternoon.

Food concessions will include hot dogs and baked apple dumplings, according to an organizer. As with all Friends of New Germany events, all proceeds will be used for improvements within New Germany State Park.

For more information, persons may contact the park office at 301-895-5433.

Springs Society Sets Program On "Forgotten History"

The Springs Historical Society will sponsor a program about "Pennsylvania's Fascinating and Forgotten History" on Monday, Sept. 22, at 7:30 p.m. at the Folk Meeting House in Springs, Pa. Professional storyteller Dr. Alan Irvine, commonwealth speaker for the Pennsylvania Humanities Council and an instructor in the sociology department at University of Pittsburgh, will present the program.

"Pennsylvania has contributed more than its share of great leaders and major events to history," said a society spokesperson. "But what of the ordinary people who actually lived history and the small incidents on which it was built?"

Irvin will tell stories about little-known events that helped forge the history of Pennsylvania, such as the last duel fought in the state, a runaway canal boat, the life and death of a boom town, and "the wickedest man on earth."

The speaker was the guest editor for Storytelling Magazine in 2001 and has performed at the Mid-Atlantic Storytellers' Gathering.

The Folk Meeting House is located along Springs Road (Rt. 669). Admission to the program is free and open to the public. For further information, persons may call 814-445-6945 or 814-662-4366, or visit online at springspa.org.

The society also sponsors the Springs Museum, which is open Wednesday through Friday from 1 to 5 p.m. and on Saturday 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. through Oct. 4.

Flowery Vale Health & Fitness Center

by Peggy Santamaria

Many members of Flowery Vale Health & Fitness Center have lowered cholesterol, increased strength, lost weight, and reduced blood pressure readings. Many could tell their stories. One woman, protesting that she is only one among many "success stories," agrees to share her experiences.

Sally Schwing recounted her journey toward a healthier lifestyle, guided and encouraged by Elaine Kackley, director of the Flowery Vale Senior Health & Fitness Center.

Two years ago, following surgery, Sally began sessions in physical therapy and "boarded" her first treadmill. This beneficial experience led her to want to continue such a program. The fitness center in Accident, a program of Community Action's Area Agency on Aging, had just opened to Garrett County residents age 55 and over. For Sally, services at the center were affordable and closer to home – an important consideration in winter.

One reason for wanting to lose weight, Sally admits, might sound funny to some people. "I have worked in the health care field for years and most recently cared for my terminally ill mother. I came to realize that one day someone may have to carry me around. I don't want to be too heavy when that time comes," she explained.

Sally also spoke of a family history of hypertension. "I don't remember my blood pressure diastolic ever being below 90 – even as a teenager," she said. But that was about to change.

"When I started at the center, I had already lost some weight and thought I knew something about the gym equipment. But I was only beginning the many steps in a great adventure of changing my lifestyle," said Sally. Working with Kackley, Sally learned more about using resistance training equipment such as the universal gym and weights. "Our director is a great lady – not pushy. She's just a super guide who continually introduces members to new and enjoyable forms of achieving physical fitness," she said.

The program Sally started at the center mirrored the one she had followed in rehabilitation, but gradually increased in number of repetitions, resistance, and time. One of her new experiences was using the trampoline. "I just looked at it for a few weeks. Finally, I decided to try it out. I liked it," she said.

When Kackley introduced Walk-Aerobics the members seemed hesitant. Unperturbed, she played the video and followed the program by herself while the others worked out, Sally recalled. "I didn't think I could do Walk-Aerobics. We all watched Elaine and, after a couple of weeks, two others joined in. Finally, I joined them. That first day, I only walked 1/4 mile. Now I can do three to four miles of rapid Walk-Aerobics five days a week," she reported.

Sally lost more weight, she said, and greatly increased her stamina and range of motion. "After an aerobic session my BP reading is 90/60. My cardiologist is very pleased and so is my orthopedic surgeon," she said.

YOGA postures and stretches to relax muscles and increase flexibility are among the fitness activities taught at the Flowery Vale Health and Fitness Center by director Elaine Kackley, pictured above, foreground. Also in the photo is Sally Schwing, who said she began slowly, but soon found that she could achieve far greater range of motion via the yoga exercises. Schwing is also pictured below using the universal gym, which provides resistance training that helps strengthen muscles. She said that she can now extend her legs with greater ease and less stress on her knees. This will promote quicker recovery from knee surgery that she must have in the future to correct a long-term problem.

When Kackley wanted to start a TOPS (Take Off Pounds Sensibly) program at the center, she needed 10 people for a chapter. Sally really didn't think she wanted to join the group, but since she would be the necessary 10th person, she agreed and has been thankful that she did. "We constantly learn about nutrition, comparison shopping, checking labels, and researching specific types of food. I have now lost 50 pounds," she said.

Most surprising to Sally has been yoga. She watched a while as Kackley introduced the stretching postures of yoga. After several sessions, Sally was ready to give it a try. She said she couldn't believe that just by standing in a certain positions, she can break a sweat, burn energy, and greatly increase agility.

The Garrett County Health Department, working with the fitness center, offered a walking program. Sally signed on. She has received her 100-mile sweat shirt and her 500-mile patch. In April, she joined her sons in California for the Golden Gate Bridge walk and signed up for the Chesapeake Bay Bridge walk with a group from the center. To her disappointment, this was canceled.

Devoted to her fitness schedule, Sally admits it's not always easy. "There are days I don't feel like getting out of bed at 5 a.m. and getting to that 7 a.m. aerobics class. My arthritis hurts. It is an effort to get up the stairs at the center. But, after my workout, my energy is better and I can almost run down the stairs," she said.

Like so many others who attend the center, Sally credits the program with improved health, strength, and a sense of well-being.

dards, particularly with special education.

"We were generally satisfied with the results," said Mullinix. "We felt our students were on target, and we will continue to look at ways to improve all of the results."

In another aspect of testing, Mullinix reported that the SAT test scores were slightly below last year's and the state averages, but the participation rate went from 38% to 44%.

"We feel that is a very positive factor," she said.

The composite mean score for the ACT was above the state average at 21.8. The test has a much smaller participation rate of 9%, she added.

Mullinix also spoke to the board about the strong numbers in percentage of students passing AP courses. Students must rate a 3, 4, or 5 to be considered passing.

All seven students who took the physics AP class passed, 90% passed the environmental science test, and 87.5% passed the English test.

M&B Saw Sharpening

SHARP AND READY TO GO – Michael A. Miller, on the left, and Joey Burns, owners of M&B Saw Sharpening LLC, are open and ready for business. They can sharpen anything from circular saws to beautician scissors, and are located in the same building as Snyder's Cabinets. See story.

According to Joey Burns and Michael A. Miller, owners of the newly opened M&B Saw Sharpening LLC, they hope to build their business by the quality of service.

They purchased the business, previously called Saving Saws, from Wayne Shreve, and have been open since July 7.

Mike worked woodwork at the Blue Ribbon Pallet shop for 10 years, and Joey has worked woodwork at Snyder's Cabinets for eight years and has several years of sharpening experience.

According to Miller, they can sharpen "nearly anything." They sharpen circular saws, chain saws, drill bits, planer knives, router bits, shaper bits, scissors, knives, and mower blades. They even sharpen beautician scissors.

Both owners were born and raised in Garrett County, and they offer prompt service. They can be reached at the office phone, 301-334-1023, or by beeper, 301-334-6843.

They serve individuals as well as businesses. The business is located in the same building as Snyder's Cabinets along Route 219, Gortner.

Southern Band Opens Season In Elkins Tourney

The 2003 competitive field show season for the Southern Garrett Marching Band opened Saturday in Elkins, W.Va., where the band participated in the second annual Chapter VIII Preview, sponsored by the Elkins High School Band.

Southern finished in second place in the Group I division, being edged by one-tenth of one point by the Northern Garrett Marching Band. Southern was awarded a score of 70.05, while Northern captured first place with a score of 70.15. Finishing third was Westmar High School with a mark of 66.55.

There were nine bands in the overall competition. Greenbrier East High School of Lewisburg, W.Va., competing in Group II, was the overall winner of the competition with a score of 75.5.

Southern was also awarded the Best Auxiliary specialty trophy in Group I.

"We had a very good first show," stated Richard Clever, Southern director. "Our program this year is among the most challenging we've ever done, and we got off on the right foot. Our audiences should see us grow with this show each week throughout the season."

The band's next competition will be the Howard County Music and Motion Tournament, to be held this Saturday in Fulton.

Duane Salisbury is the assistant director of the SG Marching Band.

TIGHT COMPETITION – In fact, competition couldn't have been much tighter between the Northern and Southern Garrett marching bands in their season opening performances, presented at the Chapter VIII Preview Tournament at Elkins (W.Va.) High School on Saturday. Northern, pictured above, won first place in Group I with a score of 70.15, while Southern, below, finished in second place with a score of 70.05. The theme for the Northern show is country western, while the Southern show utilizes the best-known music of Holst, titled The Planets. Both bands will be back in competition this Saturday, with Northern at Hedgesville, W.Va., and Southern in a tournament at Fulton.

God saw he was getting tired,
And a cure was not to be.
So He put His arms around him and whispered "Come with Me."
With tear filled eyes we watched him suffer and fade away.
Although we loved him deeply,
We could not make him stay.

A golden heart stopped breathing.
Hard working hands put to rest.
God broke our hearts to prove to us
He only takes the best.

Piano Program Set To Benefit Schrock Fund

Pianist Joseph Lowe will present a pops concert to benefit the Alta E. Schrock Memorial Fund at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 20, in the Great Hall at Penn Alps in Grantsville. The suggested donation for admission is $10, with all proceeds going to the Schrock Fund, which is currently supporting educational and performance opportunities for young local musicians, including a new program to support a music student recital series in the Great Hall.

"Broadway tunes meet Viennese classics in Lowe's performance, featuring a special medley of tunes by Sigmund Romberg," noted a Music at Penn Alps spokesperson. Lowe previously performed at Penn Alps during the 2002 International Piano Festival and during the 2000 concert season.

A native of Key West, Fla., Lowe has served as organist and choir director at St. Paul's Church in Key West for over 30 years. His versatility is evident in his arrangements of music spanning a wide variety of genres, from classical baroque to Broadway tunes. Lowe recalled that at the age of 12, his love for music prompted him to travel four hours every Saturday to study with faculty at the University of Miami, where he earned his bachelor's degree in music in 1970.

Described as a "musical fixture" on the Key West scene, Lowe offers free "Music in Paradise" concerts each weekday, and performs popular standards five nights a week at a local restaurant. His regular Sunday afternoon organ recitals at St. Paul's have been called "spiritually uplifting" by The Miami Herald.

This concert is being underwritten by David and Irene Eyer in support of the Schrock Fund. Founded in 2001, the fund has already made possible the purchase of a Yamaha grand piano for the Great Hall at Penn Alps.

Penn Alps is located east of Grantsville along Old Route 40, between exits 19 and 22 of Interstate 68. For concert information, persons may contact the Penn Alps Restaurant and Craft Shop at 301-895-5985. For information on the Schrock Fund or to make a tax-exempt donation, persons may contact Fred Bolton at 301-895-5881 or fbolton@gcnetmail.net. Music teachers interested in the recital series may also contact Bolton for more information.

More information about Music at Penn Alps is available at its Web site, www.musicatpennalps.org.

LOWE TO PRESENT TWO CONCERTS – Florida native Joseph Lowe, a favorite of past Garrett County audiences, is slated to present a pair of keyboard concerts at two different locations in the county. The first performance is an organ recital scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Friday, Sept. 19, at St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Oakland, and the second is a piano "pops" concert set to begin at 7:30 p.m. the following evening, Saturday, Sept. 20, at the Great Hall at Penn Alps in Grantsville. See stories.

Oakland Church Schedules Free Organ Recital

Noted organist Joseph Lowe will present a free recital of works by several organ masters at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Sept. 19, at St Mark's Lutheran Church, located at 6 South Second Street, Oakland. The performance will be followed by a reception and light refreshments.

Lowe has performed on the piano in Garrett County for Garrett Lakes Arts Festival and Music at Penn Alps. Since 1970 he has been organist and director of the Chancel Choir at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in his native Key West, Fla. He earned a bachelor's degree in music education from the University of Miami.

An accomplished composer and music arranger, Lowe has more than 600 church anthems to his credit. The self-described "devout Anglophile" has performed on several of England's historic organs.

The performance will feature works by English composers Charles Avison, John Stanley, Henry Purcell, William Hayes, and William Croft, as well German composer Johann Gottfried Walther. The program will be identical to Lowe's scheduled September 2001 concert, which was canceled by the tragic events of September 11 that prevented his air travel. Lowe is dedicating the recital is dedicated to the memory of the victims of the 9-11 attacks.

SPORTS

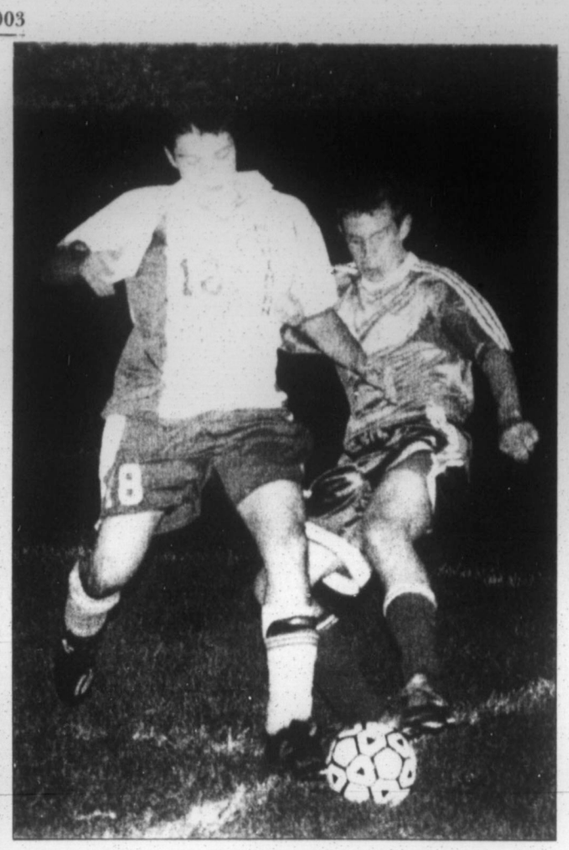
A DEFENSIVE STRUGGLE took place between the Southern High School girls' varsity soccer team and visiting Allegany last Friday evening, a match that was ultimately won by the Rams, 1-0, in overtime. The Campers sacrificed some offensive power in order to try to keep the potentially high-scoring Rams out of the net, as is evidenced in the photo above. Sandwiched between two defenders is Southern's Sabrina Scheffel, who tries to head the ball into the net. Scheffel had an assist on the winning goal about six minutes into the first 10-minute overtime period. Below on a breakaway is Ram freshman Corey Lewis. The Rams also defeated St. Maria Goretti on Saturday and will face a stiff challenge this evening at Northern. Photos by John McEwen.



OFF TO A GREAT START this season is the Northern High School boys' varsity soccer team, which won three of its first four matches this past week, falling only to undefeated Bishop Walsh. The victories came at the expense of Fort Hill, twice, and Allegany. The second clash with Fort Hill, played Tuesday night on the Huskies' field, was a thriller, as the match went into double overtime. The Huskies won when Scott Pusateri headed the ball into the net off a corner kick by Derek Cutter with just 1:10 remaining in the second OT period. Pusateri is pictured directly above right (#3) preparing to send the ball downfield. Cutter is in the photo at left (#18) engaged in a possession battle with an unidentified Sentinel. See story for details. Photos by John McEwen.

Northern Boys Open Season By Winning Three Of Four

Off to their best start since the return of soccer to Garrett County in the mid 1990s are the members of the Northern High School varsity boys' soccer team, as Coach Tom Ables and his squad won three of their first four matches this past week, falling only to perennial powerhouse Bishop Walsh.

The Huskies whipped visiting Fort Hill in their season opener last Thursday, 3-1, topped host Allegany on Saturday, 1-0, fell to Bishop Walsh at the Cove on Monday, 2-0, and rebounded for another victory over Fort Hill, 2-1, on Tuesday, also at Northern.

The first two matches were part of the Big Four Tournament, which the Huskies won with a 2-0 record.

Fort Hill took a 1-0 lead in last Thursday's game when Brooks Ingram recorded an unassisted goal with 17:49 left in the first half.

The rest of the match belonged to the Huskies, however, as they scored three goals in the final 12 minutes of the first half.

Derek Cutter knotted the score at 1-1 with a successful penalty kick at the 11:55 mark. About nine minutes later he made it 2-1 when he scored off an assist by Scott Pusateri with 2:31 remaining.

Torrey Poholsky then fed Chris Speicher, who put the ball into the back of the net with just 10 seconds left in the half to give Northern a 3-1 lead.

The final goal of the evening, and the only one of the second half, was scored by Northern's Robert Fontaine off an assist by Poholsky with 30:23 left in the match.

| Fort Hill | 1 | 0 | - | 1 |
| Northern | 3 | 1 | - | 4 |

First Half

FH - Brooks Ingram unassisted, 17:49.

N - Derek Cutter penalty kick, 11:55.

N - Cutter assisted by Scott Pusateri, 2:31.

N - Chris Speicher assisted by Torrey Poholsky, 0:10.

Second Half

N - Robert Fontaine assisted by Poholsky, 30:23.

The Huskies finished with a 14-9 advantage in shots on goal. Chris Fickes had seven saves for Northern, and Ronald Mallow turned away 10 for the Sentinels. Northern also led in corner kicks by a 4-0 margin.

It was another penalty kick by Cutter in Saturday's match with Allegany at Greenway Avenue Stadium that gave the Huskies their 1-0 win. It came at the 26:42 mark of the second half of the defensive battle.

Allegany finished with an 8-6 edge in shots, while the Huskies had a 5-1 advantage in corner kicks.

Goalkeepers Fickes and Shane McDade each had six saves.

Fort Hill, Allegany, and Southern were the other three teams in the tournament, each of whom finished with 1-1 records.

The undefeated Spartans of Bishop Walsh proved to be a bit too strong for the Huskies on Monday, as they scored one goal in each half to record their fourth win in as many starts.

The first score came about five minutes into the match with Alex Wilkinson putting the ball past the Husky keeper unassisted.

Ryan Villanueva scored the second goal, also unassisted, with about 10 minutes to play.

The Spartans finished with an 11-5 advantage in shots on goal and a 4-3 lead in corner kicks.

Fickes earned four saves for the Huskies, and Eric Miller turned away three of Northern's shots.

The Northern junior varsity won the preliminary match, 4-0, with goals being scored by Remington Friend, Zac Cupler, Taylor Jones, and Zach Beitzel.

The Fort Hill Sentinels played better against the Huskies in their second meeting, as Tuesday's match was forced into two overtime periods. It was finally decided with just 1:10 left in the second OT, as Northern's Scott Pusateri headed in the winning goal off an assist by Derek Cutter.

As in last Thursday's match with Fort Hill, the Sentinels scored the first goal of the game. After a scoreless first half, Adam Lonigro scored off an assist by Brian Jeffries with 23:07 remaining in the match to give the visitors a 1-0 advantage.

The Huskies knotted the score at 1-1 when Matthew Bass scored off a feed by Torrey Poholsky with just 4:25 left in regulation, which ultimately sent the match into overtime.

After the first overtime period went scoreless, and most of the second and final period had expired, Pusateri scored the winning goal off a corner kick by Cutter.

The Huskies finished with twice the number of shots on goal, 28-14, and led in corner kicks, 5-1. Fickes was credited with 13 saves, while Fort Hill's Mallow turned away 22 shots.

The Northern junior varsity was topped in the first match of the evening, 4-2. Zach Beitzel recorded a pair of goals for the Huskies, as did Josh Powell for the Fort Hill jayvees.

With just four matches behind them, the Huskies are just one win away from matching the total number of victories recorded last season (4-8).

Five starters are back from that team, and the Huskies will be led by senior starters Brent Housley Garrett Devore, Torrey Poholsky, and Zach Bruch.

Junior starters are Aaron Rawe, goalkeeper Chris Fickes, Preston Sisler, Scott Pusateri, and Robert Fontaine, while sophomores Chris Speicher and Derek Cutter round out the first-team line-up.

"Defense will be the strength of our team," Coach Ables said, with Housley, Devore, and Fickes anchoring that unit.

"We moved Torrey Poholsky, our leading scorer last year, to midfield to try to generate more team offense," Ables said.

"If our offense can score, we are going to have a very successful season. We need to establish our style of offense and not play 'boom ball' with other teams. When we establish our short passing game, we can score. We have two young sophomores on the front line (Speicher and Cutter), and they both will have to mature quickly if we are to be successful."

Ables said that he expects Beall and Bishop Walsh to be the strongest opponents on the Huskies' schedule. "But any opponent on our schedule can beat us if we take them for granted," he added.

"This team has prepared for the season better than any I have ever coached," he said. "We had 14 players involved in the indoor soccer program, and 20 took part in the AYSO program in Grantsville."

The Huskies will not return to action until next Tuesday when they host Westmar. They will then entertain Beall next Thursday. The junior varsity matches both evenings will begin at 6 p.m., and the varsity contests will both kick off at 7:30.

Southern Girls Open With Wins Over Allegany, Goretti

Area soccer fans are expecting the Southern High School girls' varsity to be among the best teams in the area this season, and the Rams did not disappoint in their opening matches. This past week. Coach Ron Petrella's squad earned a hard-fought 1-0 overtime victory over visiting Allegany on Friday and then whipped host St. Maria Goretti in Hagerstown on Saturday, 5-0.

After 70 minutes of scoreless regulation play and nearly six minutes of overtime, the Rams finally put the ball into the net at the 4:01 mark of the OT period last Friday to record the sudden-death victory. It was Kendra McLaughlin taking a feed from senior striker Sabrina Scheffel who got the ball past the Alco keeper.

Southern dominated the entire match, finishing with a lopsided 15-1 advantage in shots on goal and a 3-0 edge in corner kicks, and keeping the ball in Allegany's half of the field most of the evening. However, the Rams had trouble getting the ball past Allegany's defense, which had as many as eight players positioned in front of their goal. The strategy made it unlikely that Allegany would generate much offense, but also made it difficult for the Rams to score as well.

Senior keeper Alasha Rush turned away the only shot of the Campers to earn the shutout, while the Allegany keeper turned away 14 of the Rams' attempts.

Scheffel finished with a hat trick and an assist in Saturday's match against St. Maria Goretti, while fellow senior Robbin Gregg accounted for the team's other two goals, plus one assist.

Gregg put the first goal on the board when she took a feed from Casey Taylor and scored just under four minutes into the match (36:08).

Scheffel followed with a goal at the 19:21 mark, also off an assist by Taylor, and Gregg made it 3-0 with 6:20 to play in the first half when she scored off an assist by

NHS Girls Cage Falcons In Opener, 5-0

A veteran Northern High School girls' varsity soccer team opened its season with a bang on Saturday by rolling over visiting Frankfort, 5-0, behind a hat trick by senior striker Lyndsi Butler.

Butler wasted no time giving her team the lead for good, as she put the ball into the back of the net off an assist by Karie Kamp just 1:11 into the match.

She doubled the score with a goal off an assist by Tiffany Yoder with 12:20 left in the first half.

Yoder then made it 3-0 with a goal of her own, unassisted, midway through the second half (20:53).

Jutta Schonlau put the Huskies up 4-0 with a goal off an assist by Kamp with 10:28 left in the match, and Butler completed her hat trick with the final goal of the night, recorded at the 2:02 mark off a feed by Victoria Moser.

The Huskies dominated the Falcons in shots on goal by a 23-6 margin, with Sarah Masters stopping all six shots by the Falcons. Northern also led in corner kicks, 4-0.

Credited with 18 saves for Frankfort was keeper Rachel Wilson.

The Huskies will face a strong challenge this evening when they host county rival Southern in a 7 p.m. match. They will travel to Bishop Walsh Saturday for a 4:30 clash, and then play at Beall next Tuesday, with that kickoff set for 7 p.m.

Ram Booters Blank Alco, Get Blanked By Fort Hill

The Southern High School boys' varsity soccer team opened its 2003 campaign last Thursday on a positive note by defeating Allegany, 2-0, in the Big Four Tournament played at Northern. The Rams were then blanked 6-0, however, by Fort Hill in the same tournament on Saturday at Greenway Avenue Stadium in Cumberland.

Sean McCreery had a pair of assists, while Chucky Burton and Ethan Chorpenning each recorded a goal in the Rams' win over Allegany.

Burton's score came with just 1:16 remaining in the first half off a feed by McCreery.

Chorpenning doubled Southern's lead with a goal at the 26:53 mark of the second half, again off an assist by McCreery.

The Campers finished with a 22-19 edge in shots on goal and a 4-0 lead in corner kicks. Earning the shutout in goal for the Rams was Taylor Crabtree, who had 12 saves. Shane McDade recorded 11 saves for Allegany.

The Rams were no match for the Fort Hill Sentinels on Saturday, as the home team allowed only three Southern shots on goal while taking 19 of their own and scoring on about one-third of them.

Brian Jeffries led the Sentinel offensive effort by scoring two goals and assisting on two others.

Todd Mullaney made it 1-0 with a goal at the 33:45 mark of the first half off a feed by Jeffries. Jeffries then upped the lead to 2-0 less than a minute later off an assist by Brooks Ingram.

A goal by Dalton Mackie off a feed by Jeffries with 26:07 remaining in the half put the Sentinels on top 3-0, and Jeffries followed with his second goal of the match off an assist by Chris Twigg with 7:40 left in the first half. Adam Lonigro's goal with Zach Perry assisting at the 3:58 mark gave Fort Hill a commanding 5-0 advantage.

The only goal of the second half was recorded by Stefan Twigg off an assist by Michael Hupe with 37:01 remaining in the match.

Crabtree had nine saves in goal for the Rams, while Ronny Mallow earned the shutout with three saves.

Fort Hill (1-1) also finished with a 7-2 lead in corner kicks.

Southern will not play again until next Tuesday at home against Beall, with the kickoff set for 7 p.m. They will then entertain Hampshire on Wednesday in a 5 p.m. contest.

Rams Draw First Blood, But Then Fall To North Hagerstown

The Southern High School varsity football team drew first blood in its season opener against North Hagerstown, but the Hubs quickly woke up, rallied, and took control of the contest to record a 27-8 victory.

Sophomore running back Andrew VanBogelen put the Rams on the board with 7:42 left in the first quarter when he galloped 36 yards into the end zone. Brad Reese then hauled in the conversion pass from quarterback Cory Bosley to give Southern an 8-0 advantage.

North Hagerstown's first points of the evening came early in the second quarter when Brent Toms hit a 42-yard field goal at the 9:55 mark.

About 3½ minutes later, Derek Keith scored on a one-yard run to give the Hubs the lead for good. Toms booted the extra point to make it 10-8.

Toms then added another field goal, a 24-yarder, with just five ticks left in the first half to give the home team a 13-8 advantage.

Rigo Valentin, who led the Hubs in rushing with 139 yards, broke loose and raced 75 yards for a touchdown with 6:39 to play in the third quarter. Toms' conversion kick made it 20-8.

Valentin scored again on a nine-yard carry with 5:53 left in the game, and Toms wrapped up the scoring for the night with his third PAT.

The Rams finished with 107 total yards of offense, while the Hubs amassed 331 yards, 284 on the ground. Keith finished with 74 yards rushing.

North Hagerstown quarterback Ryan Rau went 5-for-5 in passing for 47 yards.

VanBogelen spearheaded Southern's defensive effort with 11 tackles, and senior Chris Bennett was credited with nine.

"We played fairly well overall," stated Ram coach Fred Gregg. "They were bigger, stronger, and definitely faster. We were pleased with how well we contained Keith (a solid Division I prospect), but we had major problems with Valentin. When he got on the perimeter, we simply had no one fast enough to catch him.

"Still, we were generally pleased with our defensive effort," he said. "If you take away one or two big plays, it would have been a much tighter ball game."

Besides losing the game, the Rams appear to have also lost Chad Everd to injury for the unforeseeable future. He will join teammate Nick Gregg on the sidelines.

Nothing will get any easier this week for the Rams, who must travel to Frostburg to face Beall, last season's Maryland 1A runner-up. The Mountaineers cruised to the state title game, and led Bohemian Manor 13-0 in that contest before being edged, 34-27.

Back in the Mountaineers' lineup this season are senior first-team All-Area all-purpose back Mahlon Harper ((5-10, 180) and senior quarterback Eric Parker (6-0, 190), who missed much of last season because of injury, but is healthy once again.

Last year Harper rushed for 1,320 yards, averaging an amazing nine yards per carry, and led the area in scoring by a wide margin with 180 points.

He was also a mainstay on the Mountaineer defensive unit, and filled in at quarterback for the injured Parker.

"Harper is the classic 'go-to guy,'" Coach Gregg said. "He can do it all. He is fast and strong, he returns punts and kickoffs, and he plays excellent defense.

"Parker does a fine job running their wishbone offense, and he is also a major threat as a runner."

The Mountaineers and Coach Roy DeVore like to use a lot of deception from that wishbone formation.

"They like to hide the ball and keep your defense off guard," Gregg said, "but they also have the ability and the strength to just line up and power the ball right at you. They also won't hesitate to put the ball in the air. They are just a very well-rounded football team."

Other players who have performed well in the backfield are seniors Cody Miller (6-0, 200) and David Winner (5-9, 170), who rushed for 616 and 404 yards, respectively, last season.

The Beall 5-front defensive unit is anchored by Harper and Parker in the secondary, former fullback Jared Kline (6-0, 205) and sophomore Jimmy Kline (6-0, 170) at linebacker positions, and junior Creade Brodie (5-9, 220) and senior Jason Laber (5-10, 220) on the line.

One question mark for the Mountaineers is their offensive line, which was virtually gutted by graduation.

"They are a very athletic, very intelligent group of young men, and they are playing with the belief that they will return to the state championship game and win it this time.

"Besides playing the fundamentals well, we are going to have to be very innovative if we hope to win," Gregg concluded.

Friday's kickoff at Beall High School is set for 7 p.m.

Leopards Pounce On Huskies As NHS Drops Opener, 48-6

The Northern High School Huskies were pummeled by their Smithsburg Leopard hosts in Saturday's season opener, which NHS lost by a 48-6 margin. The 19-man Northern squad was outmanned by a 44-player Leopard roster, and outgunned by some heavy artillery across a Smithsburg front line that averaged 260 pounds per lineman, almost 100 pounds more than the Huskies averaged.

"In my opinion football games are won or lost along the line of scrimmage, and they handled us there," NHS skipper Phil Carr commented afterward. "We think if we had stuck with our fundamentals we could have played much better, especially if we hadn't had blocking assignments breaking down again and again across the offensive front. We've worked real hard in practice this week to correct those mistakes."

The Huskies found themselves embroiled in a dogged catfight with the Leopards from the opening kickoff. The hosts hit the ground running, and put their first six points on the board at the 4:30 mark on a four-yard touchdown carry. Smithsburg went up 13-0 when quarterback Nathan Steelman connected on the first of two scoring strikes with a 52-yard pass down the left sideline.

A first quarter blow that would come back to haunt the Huskies occurred when sophomore NHS punter Nick Payne had to go high to corral a bad snap and do a bit of scrambling before he got off his kick. While the punt turned out to be a good one, according to Carr, Payne sustained a leg injury on the play that sidelined him for the rest of the game. The effects of that injury showed up early in the second quarter, as regular NHS long snapper Eric Johnson, a junior, was sent back to handling punting duty while an offensive lineman was shifted to center to make the always-crucial fourth down snap. The result played out in a blocked punt, and Smithsburg recovered the ball in the end zone for its third touchdown.

The Huskies' downhill slide through the second quarter continued from there, as the Leopards scored on a 24-yard touchdown pass, a 13-yard scoring carry, and a 20-yard return of an interception. Smithsburg carried a 41-0 advantage into the halftime locker room.

Northern gave up a 10-yard touchdown run in the third quarter for Smithsburg's final points. The Huskies finally cracked the scoreboard in the final stanza when junior running back Robert Stark capped a long drive with a one-yard touchdown run to make the final tally 48-6.

"We're very disappointed in our breakdowns, but we saw some things in the game films this week that gave us some ideas of how to correct some of our problems," stated Carr. "One thing for sure, our linemen have to be more aggressive in surging off the ball."

Despite the lopsided margin, which included a 290-136 edge in total offense going to the hosts, Northern's Carr did find a few bright spots on which to build in coming weeks. "Although he didn't start [because of a nagging injury], Michael Wolf ended up playing a great game. He hit the holes quick and hard, which is what he had to do because the holes weren't staying open for long." The junior NHS tailback recorded a game-high 71 yards on just 15 carries.

Carr also singled out the play of sophomore lineman Corey Yoder, who more than made up for his distinct size disadvantage with aggressive, intelligent line play. Yoder, who may weigh 150 pounds soaking wet, was matched against Smithsburg's biggest lineman, who tipped the scales at more than 270 pounds. "Corey handled their big man real well," Carr said. "He wouldn't let himself be intimidated, and used his speed and footwork to keep in front of his man and play some tough football."

Northern will have its work cut out for it in the season's second game tomorrow night at Keyser. The host Golden Tornado is a big, experienced squad that crushed the Huskies 46-12 last year at NHS. Coach Tom Preaskorn has guided Keyser to four West Virginia state playoff berths in his seven years at the school.

The Golden Tornado will field a 39-player roster for the battle, including two returning All-State First Team honorees, junior linebacker/defensive end M.J. Twyman (6, 240) and senior offensive tackle Matt Altobello (6-5, 280).

"Twyman is a force to be reckoned with, although it's possible he's going to still be hobbled by an injury" said Carr. "Either way, we'll be matching Steve Snyder or Dustin Wiland up with him, depending on where he lines up on defense, and he'll be a handful for our guys.

"Altobello will be tough too, he's a college Division I quality athlete,"Carr added, as evidenced by his three-way success for Coach Preaskorn as an offensive and defensive lineman, and top-notch punter. Altobello is being scouted by such schools as West Virginia University and Penn State.

Other key cogs in the Keyser machine are senior quarterback Brian Wilson (6-1, 180), halfback classmate Corey Szafran (6, 200), and senior defensive lineman Josh Wilson (6-7, 240). Brian Wilson is a cool-headed field general with an accurate throwing arm and good running skills, while Szafran has excellent hands after playing last season at split end. Josh Wilson takes advantage of his size by putting his hands high in the air, all but negating the possibility of getting a pass over that section of the defensive line.

"We'll be getting a lot of the same looks against Keyser as we had last week against Smithsburg," NHS's Carr commented. "They like to run a 4-4 defense and bring on the heat with a lot of blitzes to keep you off balance. Our lineman are going to have to do some quick thinking to pick up their linebackers, especially Twyman.

"Offensively, the Tornado likes the Wing-T formation. That's what they used against us last year with pretty good success. They tend to run more than they throw, but Brian Wilson is especially good at pulling off the play action pass. We have to be sure we don't bite on his fake until we have a good idea of how the play is unfolding.

"It's going to take all the speed, strength, aggressiveness, and intelligence we can muster to beat Keyser," said Carr. "Preaskorn will have his guys ready, especially since they took a beating against Moorefield last week. They had gone into that game ranked second in the state, so they'll be hungry to get back on the winning track.

Kickoff is slated for 7:30 p.m. at the Keyser field, which is located just south of downtown Keyser, in plain sight from Route 220.

SHS Jayvees Blank Huskies

Jason Wakefield scored a pair of touchdowns and passed for a two-point conversion to lead the Southern High School junior varsity to a 20-0 shutout over visiting Northern last Thursday. It was the season opener for both teams.

Wakefield scored on a one-yard dive at the 5:32 mark of the first quarter to give the Rams a 6-0 lead. The run for the two-point conversion failed and the score remained unchanged the rest of the first half.

Wakefield repeated his one-yard scoring run with 9:45 remaining in the third quarter, and again the conversion run failed, giving the Rams a 12-0 advantage. The score was set up by a 70-yard kickoff return by Nathan Stephens.

T.J. Ravenscroft put Southern's third touchdown on the board with a six-yard carry at the 1:12 mark of the third quarter, and Wakefield hit Anthony Schrock with the conversion pass to round out the scoring for the evening.

Pacing the Ram defensive unit were Matt Davis and Brandon Roberson.

The Rams will play again this evening at home against Beall, with kickoff set for 7 p.m. They will travel to Keyser on Monday for a 4 p.m. game.

Maddawgs Lasso Colts In Shutout Pee Wee Victory

The Northern Maddawgs extended their undefeated string Saturday with a huge win over the Frankfort Colts, the defending champions of the Pee Wee Football League. The 26-0 runaway triumph was doubly impressive as it came on Frankfort's home field.

Northern's B team defense, which has yet to give up a single point so far this season, shut down the Colts' vaunted power running game throughout the first quarter. The Maddawgs' Cody Rodeheaver put the visitors on the board during the stanza by reeling off a 34-yard touchdown run before Matt Thomas bulldozed in for the extra point.

Northern's A team took the field in the second quarter for what became a grueling defensive struggle. Frankfort's power running was quite respectable, according to the Maddawgs' coaching staff, but it proved no match for Northern's swarming defense. The half ended with Northern on top by a 7-0 margin.

The Maddawgs' B team kicked into gear in the third quarter as it scored two touchdowns. Rodeheaver got the first score of the stanza by capping a long march to the end zone with his nine-yard touchdown run. After a 53-yard touchdown run by Josh Mason was negated by a Northern penalty, the Maddawgs hit paydirt when Rodeheaver scampered down the sideline for a 55-yard touchdown run which was underscored by Mason's extra-point carry that made the score 20-0.

Not to be outdone, Northern's A unit matched the B squad's scoring output point-for-point when Dylan Day slammed up the middle for a 29-yard touchdown run that made the score 26-0.

The win marked the second week in a row that a combined Northern defensive effort has resulted in a goose egg for the opposition.

In the day's other action, Northern's C squad defeated the Colts' C team 26-12. Tyler Ireland scored two touchdowns, and Gerald Yutzy and Colton Grove each contributed touchdown runs. Collin Belcher and Colton Grove added the extra points.

Northern puts its unbeaten mark on the line this Saturday, Sept. 13, when the Maddawgs host the Westside Hunters at Northern High School. The battle will begin with a 9:30 a.m. kickoff.

Husky Jayvees Fall To Southern, Berkeley Sprngs.

Northern High School's junior varsity football squad kicked off its season this week, with a debut 20-0 loss to the Southern Rams on Thursday (see separate story), which was followed by a 25-6 defeat at the hands of Berkeley Springs Monday night.

Against the Yellow Jackets, Northern found itself down 18-0 by the half. NHS's lone score came at the start of the fourth quarter, when fullback Corey Carr capped a long drive with a one-yard touchdown run.

Husky defensive end Brock Glotfelty turned opportunities into interceptions by picking off two Yellow Jacket pass attempts while covering in the flat. Other fine performances noted by Northern's coaches were turned in by Carr at linebacker and defensive end Nick Farrell, who recovered a Berkeley fumble.

Northern's jayvees are slated to visit Meyersdale for a 7 p.m. Monday battle.

Oakland Rams Downed By Pats In CAYFL Action

The Oakland Rams of the Cumberland Youth Football League battled the powerhouse GFC Patriots on Saturday at Southern High School. The Division I Rams fell by 10 points, 36-26, despite a strong passing attack mounted by quarterback Jason Ashby and receiver Caiden Shaffer, while the Oakland's Division II squad fell by a 34-0 tally.

The Division I battle saw the Rams draw first blood in the opening stanza on Cory Lipscomb's six-yard touchdown run. GFC surged into the lead in the second quarter with a rushing score, which was capped by a successful point-after-touchdown kick that put the guests up 8-6. The Pats then extended their lead to 10 points on a 24-yard touchdown run, also followed by a successful two-point kick.

Southern got back on the scoreboard in the same stanza when Ashby connected on a 53-yard touchdown pass to Shaffer. The Rams went into the halftime locker room trailing by just four points, 16-12.

GFC scored in the third quarter on a five yard run to go up 22-12, but in the fourth the Rams' Ashby found Shaffer again for a 52-yard scoring strike. The Patriots closed out the day with touchdown runs of 53 and 42 yards.

For the day, Ashby completed 9 of 12 passes for 212 yards and two touchdowns. Shaffer finished with 146 receiving yards on three catches.

The Rams' Division II unit had a tougher day against its GFC counterpart, which extended its winning streak to 22 games. The Patriots' ground game was unstoppable, as GFC rolled up 387 total rushing yards and five touchdown carries.

Oakland is slated to visit Braddock this Saturday.

Northern Splits With Ridgeley In CAYFL Battles

The Northern Steelers split a pair of outings against the host Ridgeley Rams in Cumberland Area Youth Football League action Saturday, with the Steelers' Division I unit dropping a 30-18 contest while Northern's Division II team recorded a 13-7 victory.

The Steelers were done in by a strong Ram running game in the Division I contest, as Ridgeley's Davey Wolford rolled up 212 yards on just 12 carries, scoring two touchdowns along the way. The hosts also got scoring runs of 41 and 11 yards from other ball carriers.

Northern quarterback Garrett Guledge hit Blair Silbaugh with a pair of touchdown strikes, one of 32 yards and the other covering 58 yards. The Steelers' other touchdown came when Matt Mason plunged into the end zone on a one-yard carry.

Northern's Division II squad redeemed the Steelers' program with a six-point victory over the Rams.

Randy Wiley romped 43 yards for a first quarter Northern touchdown, and teammate Ryan Evans upped the Steelers' lead to 13-0 with a 47-yard race to the end zone in the third stanza.

Ridgeley's lone touchdown came on a 51-yard run in the third quarter.

Wiley recorded 82 rushing yards for Northern (2-0), and Evans, Nathan Payne and Mike Rugola were noted by the coaching staff for their outstanding defensive efforts.

Northern takes on the always tough GFC Patriots Saturday at Allegany College of Maryland.

Rams Kick Off CC Season At Clear Spring, Win At Home

The cross country teams of Southern High School opened their season on Saturday under the leadership of two new coaches, Jamie Beeman (boys) and Steve Cosner (girls), as Carl Booth and Louie Newcomb retired from those positions after last season.

The teams of Booth and Newcomb amassed an astounding seven state championships and several runner-up trophies between them, and a return to that level of achievement is the goal of Beeman and Cosner.

The Rams began their 2003 quest for that title by competing in the Interstate Classic, hosted by Clear Spring High School on Saturday.

The Southern boys placed fourth among 12 teams, while the girls finished fifth among 12 teams.

Pacing the SHS boys was Craig Conroy, who finished 10th individually with a time of 18 minutes, 13.6 seconds. Derek Upperman was 14th in 18:20.3, while David Cuddington finished 18th with a time of 18:47.1.

The Rams finished with 148 points. Beall, last year's state runner-up, won the meet with 28 points, followed by Clark County with 70 and Frankfort with 72.

As a team the Southern girls finished with 103 points for fifth place. Clarke County won with 30 points, followed by Frankfort with 57, Boonsboro with 96, and Clear Spring with 97.

The Rams then hosted their own tri-meet at Broadford Park on Tuesday, with both teams recording victories over Tucker County and Westmar.

Conroy won the boys' race with a time of 18:53, while Cuddington and Upperman placed fourth and fifth, respectively, with times of 19:47 and 19:59. Andrew Goad and Levi Filsinger placed 11th and 12th, respectively.

The Rams finished with 25 team points, followed by Westmar with 30 and Tucker with an incomplete score.

Domenick paced the Southern girls again by finishing second in 23:20, while Wade, Cosner, Elizabeth Thayer, and Mandi Stahl finished fifth (24:42), sixth (24:51), eighth (25:25), and ninth 25:40), respectively. Stephanie DiSimone was 11th.

The SHS girls won with 25 points, followed by Westmar with 30 and Tucker with an incomplete score. Westmar's Jennifer Patton, state 1A runner-up champion last year, won the race with a time of 21:12.

Domenick, Wade, Stahl, Cosner, Thayer, and DiSimone were all starters for the Rams last season.

"We have superior senior leadership," said Coach Cosner. "We have a hard-working team with a lot of experience and depth."

Cosner said that Williamsport is possibly the strongest 1A team in Maryland, while Frankfort is most likely the most talented team in the area.

"We lost two strong runners to graduation (four-time All-Stater Melissa Durst and Emily Cosner), but we have many girls who are working hard to fill their shoes," Cosner said.

Lack of depth is a major concern of Coach Beeman, as the numbers are slim on the Southern boys' team.

"We don't have enough to field a junior varsity team this year, so it will be essential for us to stay healthy," Beeman said. "But we are getting good leadership from our seniors, and the kids have a strong work ethic and a positive attitude.

"We will work hard to improve our times at every meet," he concluded.

The Rams will run again this Saturday in the Frankfort Invitational and travel to Beall next Tuesday.

Southern Golfers Swing Through Early Matches

The Southern High School golf team upped its record to 8-1 this week after a pair of matches on opponents' courses.

The Rams opened their latest flurry with a hard-fought four-stroke win over Keyser last Thursday, Sept. 4, at the Mill Creek Country Club. With every shot counting, SHS prevailed by a 154-158 margin.

Junior Matt Skidmore paced the Rams with a five-under par 30, easily taking low medalist honors. Teammate Travis Friend added a 38, and Joe Albert shot 39.

Keyser's top score was turned in by Ian Tysinger, who carded a 34.

Southern burned through the Canaan Valley links Tuesday for a 52-stroke victory over Tucker, 156-208.

Skidmore repeated as low medalist with a 36, good for even par, while Friend was one off the mark with a 37. Evan Thayer shot a 41, and Albert carded a 42.

Tucker County was led by Colby McKinney's 43.

The high-flying Rams should have some beautiful golfing weather this afternoon when they host Moorefield and cross-county rival Northern at the Oakland Golf Club.

Ram Volleyball Squad Falls To Hampshire, Hammers Huskies

Southern High School's varsity volleyball team stumbled in its opener Monday in hard-fought 3-1 loss to visiting Hampshire, but the Rams redeemed themselves last night with a 3-0 win over the visiting Northern Huskies.

After dropping the first two games of Monday's season debut to the Trojans, 25-12 and 25-17, SHS rebounded to take a narrow 25-23 win. Hampshire clinched the match with a 25-23 win of its own in game four.

Stephanie Steyer paced the Rams with 11 points and five assists, while Kayla Nazelrod had seven points, four kills, and two blocks. Julia Bosley recorded three kills and Chelsea Wassell tallied five blocks. Jenna Barnes led the Trojans with 19 service points and had two blocks.

Southern's junior varsity squad took a 2-0 sweep over its Hampshire counterpart by game scores of 25-16 and 25-18. The Rams' Randi Bennett scored nine points and Natalie Rohrbaugh added seven.

Last night's match in Oakland turned into a cakewalk for Southern, as the hosts rolled up three straight game wins of 25-18, 25-12, and 25-18.

SHS's Bethany Steyer led the way to the win with 12 service points and six assists, and Bosley and Nazelrod each tallied four kills. Megan Pike added four assists.

On the Huskies' side of the net, Kristi Garlitz served for seven points and Nicole Doerr for six.

Southern also took the JV match 25-13, 25-15. Rohrbaugh recorded 17 points and seven aces, Sarah Stephens had five kills, and Sarah Rexrode contributed five assists. Northern's individual marks were not available.

Southern visits Meyersdale before hosting Allegany Monday in a 7 p.m. contest. The Rams then travel to Fort Hill for a Wednesday match.

Sailboat Racing On Deep Creek Lake

PALMER WINS ADAMS CUP SEMI-FINAL, ON TO NORTH CAROLINA

by Dan Muss

The Adams Cup is the U.S. Sailing Association (USSA) national women's championship. It has been sailed every fall in various three-person, one-design sailboats since 1924; this year it is being sailed in Flying Scots.

The regatta this past weekend was a semi-final event to choose our region's representative at the finals to be held at Lake Norman, N.C., Oct. 20-25. There will be 10 teams sailing in the finals, the 10 winners from the 10 USSA areas from around the country. Flying Scot Inc. will be supplying 10 new boats for the National Championships in N.C.

Veteran Adams Cup competitor Lee Ingram and her crews, Michele Grulos and Amy Milnes, came from Sandy Hook, N.J. A very young team came from Keyport YC, N.J., led by Alannu Deeken with her crews, Ashley Willis and Sarah Richter.

The clear-cut winner of the regatta was Joni Palmer with her crews, Carrie Carpenter and Meredith Dodd. They come in first in every race, but that is not the whole story. The forecast was for wind light and variable both days and that's what we had. In that kind of wind anyone can win if they are in the right spot on the water. In two of the four races sailed, Joni came from behind to win. Even with the light air the races were quite exciting to watch.

I've been racing sailboats for 30 years, but I've never seen a race series run like this one. It was really big league. The competing teams rotated using the boats so that variations in the boats were minimized. There was, of course, a race committee boat, but there were also two "stake" boats, one at the windward mark and one at the leeward mark, so the competitors could easily see the mark. As the racing boats approached a mark, the stake boat held up a big sign with the compass heading to the next mark. There was a "change" boat that moved the marks at the direction of the race commander so that changes in wind direction could be addressed with changes in the mark positions.

Finally, there was a boat with a panel of judges aboard to adjudicate disputes right there on the water. We were honored to have Bill Ross from Lake Norman, N.C., the president of the Flying Scot Sailing Association (and VP of U.S. Sailing Association), as the chief judge. The race commander ran the series using VHF-SSB radios.

This is the first time our racing association will be sending a team to the Women's Nationals. Bring it home, Joni!

Garrett Netters Off To 2-0 Start With Wins Over Boyce, Pot. State

The Garrett College volleyball team exploded out of the blocks this week by taking its first two contests of the 2003 campaign. The Lakers debuted by downing CCAC-Boyce by a 3-2 margin Saturday, then skinned the visiting Potomac State Catamounts last night by a 3-1 margin.

Garrett got off to a shaky start in the opener against Boyce as the Lakers lost the first game. GC stormed back to take the second game with ease, 30-13, and surged ahead with a 30-25 victory in the third battle. Boyce tied things up at two apiece by taking the fourth game, but GC rebounded from that setback to take the tiebreaker 15-10, and lay claim to the match.

Sophomore Tiffany McFarland led the way with 18 service points and seven aces. Autumn Beavers added 14 kills and four blocks, and Northern High School grads Molly Wolf and Jolene Brenneman finished with 15 digs and six aces, respectively.

Manda Metzer led CCAC-Boyce with eight points, three aces, five kills, and a pair of blocks.

The Lakers did not have an easy time of it last night against Potomac State, as only two points separated the squads in one game, while the three others each had a four-point margin of separation. Garrett won the first two games, both by 30-26 scores, and just missed a sweep in dropping the third game 31-29. The Lakers sealed the match with yet a third 30-26 victory in the fourth and final game.

Beavers paced GC with five service points, eight aces, 13 kills, and four blocks. McFarland had five points and six aces, while Brenneman contributed eight kills.

PSC was led by Valerie Ball, who recorded 11 points and 16 assists.

The Lakers are slated to visit Butler County CC for that school's tournament, which will take place tomorrow and Saturday.

LENDING A HELPING HAND – Southern girls volleyball players were caught "serving" pizza at the fair this year with the Junior Woman's Civic Club. ## Husky Netters Edged By Alco, Swept By SHS

The Northern High School varsity volleyball team stumbled in its first two 2003 outings this week, as the Huskies dropped a hard-fought 3-2 match at Allegany Monday, and were swept by Southern in a 3-0 loss last night in Oakland. (See Southern account for that contest.)

The Huskies took two of the first three games from Alco, edging the Campers in the opener 25-22 and storming to a 25-18 victory in the third contest. Allegany sandwiched a 25-18 win of its own in between those two NHS wins. The hosts knotted the game tally with a 26-24 thriller that saw both squads play their hearts out, and a tiring Husky squad dropped the finale by a 15-8 margin.

Lakin Weimer had eight kills, Erin Festerman 10 points and Kristi Garlitz eight points for Northern. Melanie Mathews had 24 service points for the Campers.

Allegany won the jayvee match 25-8, 25-10.

The Huskies are slated to visit Westmar Monday and travel to Hancock on Thursday, Sept. 18.

Treatment of Infections of the Eyelids

Blepharitis is a medical term which refers to the margin of the eyelid. The area becomes chronically inflamed. Fortunately, there is no reduction in vision or changes in sensitivity to light. This condition can occur from blockage of glands located just behind the eyelashes, infections of the eyelids, or in conjunction with certain immune diseases. The incidence of blepharitis increases with age. It is also more commonly seen in fair-skinned people. In addition to redness and swelling, other symptoms may include a gritty, burning sensation that is more pronounced when waking from sleep. A crust may build up in the eyelashes.

Eyelid hygiene is critical in the care of blepharitis flare-ups, and use of gentle, water-based cleansers are recommended. If an infection is present, antibacterial products containing a mix of antibiotics is sometimes used. For resistant cases, oral antibiotics may be prescribed. Once the flare-up has subsided, daily lid hygiene is necessary to prevent blepharitis from recurring, since relapses are extremely common.

Hearing Held

one who has to pay for it," said Brant Road resident Elaina Evans. She noted that she was currently paying as much as the people who own a 15-room "mini-hotel" near her modest home.

Lake Shore Drive resident Charles McFarland said he paid $800 upfront for the system's debt service in 1984. "I paid for a system that was sufficient for 'X' number of gallons," he said. "Don't ask me to pay for a new system." The developers will be the ones who will profit from the new system, McFarland said.

John Cobb and other residents asked if a study could done on a metering payment system, so that residents could be billed based on usage, rather than a flat fee.

Brant Road resident Bill Tietz noted that he had just paid to connect to the new Meadow Mountain system, and now he was being asked to help pay for upgrades. "It's totally unfair," he said. Others concurred.

"Can we please address this fairness issue in a way that is concrete?" asked Pam Cobb.

To explain, Tonkovich and Holliday used an analogy, comparing repairs to the system with buying a new car and its needed repairs. Mufflers, tires, and other equipment have to be replaced to keep the car running, Holliday noted "There is a life expectancy for anything," he said, adding that money should have been reserved in a "sinking fund" to pay for repairs to the system.

The county government was given authority over the former Garrett County Sanitary District in late April through state legislation. Tonkovich was appointed as director of the new Garrett County Department of Public Utilities shortly after the governor signed the legislation into law.

Tonkovich and the commissioners indicated that a metering system could be studied. Holliday pointed out that meters would be costly to implement. Several residents indicated that they were willing to accept the possible added cost.

Joan Krause said she has had problems with her system since 1997 and asked when she could expect it to be upgraded. "I'm now on an obsolete system," she said, adding that she knew work had to be done to the treatment plant.

Tonkovich said the plant must be upgraded first, but that rehabilitation work and planning could take place at the same time. "We will experience catastrophic failures if we don't move forward," he said. "We must move forward on this immediately."

Other residents asked about expanding the district into other areas where service is sorely needed, such as Sky Valley and Thousand Acres. New areas could be included in the Deep Creek Sanitary District, said the director, but that there is no specific time frame for expansion. Engineering reports need to be completed, the feasibility studied, public health risks evaluated, and a public hearing held before an area could be included.

"We've received a lot of input on the proposal," said Commissioner Ernie Gregg. "A number of communications have been sent to our office." He said the record on the expansion would be held open for two more weeks. Persons may submit their comments in writing to the commissioners at the Garrett County Courthouse, 203 South Fourth Street, Room 207, Oakland, MD 21550.

Information presented at the public hearing is available online at garrettcounty.org on the Public Utilities page. A copy of the resolution and a plat showing the boundaries of the proposed service area are also available for public inspection during regular business hours at the Public Utilities' office, 14689 Garrett Highway, Oakland.

"I would like to begin the rehabilitation and construction with the treatment plant between now and the end of 2006," said Tonkovich.

LOCAL RACERS COMPETE IN 24-HOUR MTN. BIKE EVENT – The Seven Springs Mountain Resort in Champion, Pa., hosted the Ford Champion Challenge 24-Hour Mountain Bike Race recently, and three Garrett County mountain racers were among competitors on the 12-mile loop. The three western Maryland based teams that competed were each composed of members of the Western Maryland Wheelmen (WMW) club, and were sponsored by Thomas Automotive of the Cumberland area. The local five-person team took first place in the 200-Plus total age class, and included Finzel resident Rich Raesly and Deep Creek Lake area residents Audrey Kennedy and Clark Lanthier. That team's support crew, which provided food, bike cleaning, and plenty of other support, included Finzel resident Elaine Raesly. The 200-plus team also finished fourth out of all 5-person teams, and 10th out of the event's entire 129-team field. Pictured above, in the front row from the left, are team members Clark Lanthier, Jim Roth, and Audrey Kennedy. In the back row are Kristen Dieffenbach and Chris Baker (the WMW-Thomas duo team that took second place in its class), and Rich Raesly and Bruce Williams. The smiling Raesly is shown below as he bounces over a rocky section of the course.

OAKLAND ROTARY DONATES TO SHS – The Oakland Rotary recently donated funds to Southern High School's Best Buddies and girls' athletics programs. Monies will be used to sponsor activities for both groups. Southern's Best Buddies program, a peer organization for disabled and non-disabled students, won first place for western Maryland recently. Bob Stephens (far right), president of the Rotary, presented checks to athletic director Matt Redinger (center left) and Best Buddies adviser Steve Plum (center right), as principal Tom Woods (left) looks on.

Friendsville Elem. Launches After-School Program

The Friendsville Area Community Watch organization has secured a grant to plan and implement an after-school program at Friendsville Elementary School. Facilitated by a 21st Century grant through the Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families, this program will finance a variety of supervised activities for 8 to 13-year-olds (third to eighth grade).

The program, titled Partners After School, will operate on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays from 3:20 to 6 p.m.

Specifically, the grant will pay for program staff, academic assistance programs, enrichment activities, special events, and biweekly trips to the library, a spokesperson said. Three program staff members and one tutor will supervise students.

Each afternoon will begin with free play and snack, followed by an hour of organized homework instruction. Students will complete paper assignments, participate in guided reading, and review for weekly tests.

Arts and crafts and karate fitness classes will run for 10 weeks this fall as enrichment activities. The grant budget includes funds for field trips, parent-child dinners, reading materials, laptop computers and software, "Life Skills" training, and guest speakers.

Finally, "reading for fun" will be promoted through library trips and non-fiction reading groups.

Ultimately, the goal of Partners After School at Friendsville is to provide a safe and structured extended day through exposure to educationally and culturally enriched programming, the spokesperson said.

The kick-off rally for Partners After School will be held Wednesday, Sept. 17, at 7 p.m., at the Friendsville Elementary School. This rally will provide parents and students with pertinent program information. Student enrollment will be completed at this time as well.

The program will begin on Tuesday, Sept. 23. For additional information, persons may contact Tammy Humberson, program coordinator, at 301-746-5477.

Health Care Services Suffering Under Budget Cuts, Officials Say

by Debra George Siedt
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – Maryland hospitals and some of their poorest patients receiving Medicaid may be faced with higher costs because of budget cuts on health services that become effective Jan. 1.

Health care administrators Tuesday told the General Assembly's Health and Government Operations Committee of the harm repeated budget cuts will wreak this year and next. Hospitals face a $10 million cut in the first six months of 2004 that will mean an increase in uncompensated cases.

And patients may face a limited number of days in which they can stay at hospitals. Insurance company limits on hospital stays could shift the cost burden to patients, or hospitals when patients have no insurance.

The Health Services Cost Review Commission, which met Wednesday, ultimately will determine if insurance rates will rise. Hospital rates have already increased 6.5 percent for fiscal year 2004.

"We're dealing with some incredibly difficult problems," said Nelson J. Sabatini, secretary of the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene.

The impact of the cut on hospital services could be reduced through an increase in insurance rates. Although it was not clear if the cuts would trigger a widespread insurance rate hike, the impact on hospital staff and quality of care is expected to be marginal.

"I have yet to see a budget cut that everyone stands up and applauds," said Sabatini. Nursing homes, mental health services and pharmacies also are affected. "Hopefully, some of these measures will be temporary, one-time measures," he said.

Nursing homes suffered a $10.6 million cut in the spring and now another $4 million in reductions from state and federal government sources. Medicaid accounts for about half of all nursing home spending in Maryland. In addition, hospital stay limits would place an additional burden on nursing homes, which would have to take hospital patients needing extended care.

The Mental Hygiene Administration sustained $10.1 million in budget cuts for fiscal year 2004, and community mental health service providers must turn away uninsured consumers, reduce authorized services, and complete more paperwork.

Pharmacies, facing a $2.2 million state and federal cut, will also feel the crunch. Beginning in January, the state's reimbursement rate for pharmacies will drop from the average wholesale price less 11 percent, to that price less 12 percent.

•Due to increased vandalism at the community park, all restrooms will remain closed for use until further notice.

•The election reform committee met prior to the regular council meeting. This group of citizens and council members is developing a list of recommendations regarding the municipal election process. These will be presented to the mayor and town council in the near future.

•The town's annual fall clean-up activity is scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 18, from 9 a.m. to noon. More information will follow.

•The town-sponsored Halloween trick-or-treat activity is scheduled for Friday, Oct. 31, from 5:30 p.m. to 7 p.m. Residents who wish to participate in the activity are reminded to have an outside light turned on.

•As the next step in the Community Legacy process for the planning of the town's economic future, a Revitalization Task Force is being formed. This will be made up of approximately 10 local citizens with an interest in the future of the town. Persons interested in serving on the task force are asked to contact the town hall at 301-746-5919.

The next regularly scheduled meeting of the mayor and town council will be on Thursday, Sept. 18, starting at 7 p.m.

Agreement Made To Help Nurses With Education

In what has been called one of the most progressive nursing articulation agreements in the country, the state's Nursing Advisory Council, in conjunction with the Maryland Higher Education Commission, and the Maryland Board of Nursing have developed an articulation program that will make it easier for nurses to pursue advanced degrees without the loss of credits. The Maryland Council of Deans and Directors of Nursing Programs has approved the program for implementation at all Maryland higher education nursing programs.

The program, the "Maryland RN to BSN or RN to MSN Articulation Model," will guarantee that licensed registered nurses wishing to earn a bachelor's or master's degree in nursing will receive a minimum of 30 upper-division nursing credits when they enter a four-year college or university nursing program. Under the agreement, RNs may also transfer from a community college up to one-half of the total credits required for the bachelor's degree.

A similar agreement for licensed practical nurses has been established. The "PN to Associate Degree in Nursing Articulation Model" will allow LPNs to be awarded a maximum of one year of nursing courses in the program they are entering.

"These new articulation agreements make continuing nursing education more accessible and affordable in Maryland," said Dr. Sharon Bernier, chair of the Nursing Advisory Council. "The agreements help nurses to advance to higher practice levels through education. This will provide Maryland with continued excellence in patient care and a greater prospective supply of qualified nurse educators."

"We are hoping that this agreement will serve as an incentive to nurses wanting to pursue higher education," said Dr. John A. Sabatini Jr., acting secretary of higher education. "As we work to address Maryland's critical nursing shortage, we want to remove barriers that would prevent students from entering the nursing field or nurses wanting to advance in their careers through further education."

The articulation models were developed by the Nursing Advisory Council and approved by the Maryland Council of Deans and Directors of Nursing Programs with the endorsement of MHEC.

Full implementation is to be completed by fall 2004.

"The team will utilize certified coaches currently on staff at Wisp to provide quality instruction during scheduled practice times." ## 4-H Members Turn Heads, Heels In Fashion Revues

Several Garrett County 4-H members participated in Fashion Revue contests at both the state and local levels recently. The Fashion Revue showcases two categories of outfits, according to a spokesperson. First is "Made by Member" featuring fashions made and modeled by the youth. A second category is "Ready to Wear," which includes items purchased at bargain prices, those requiring minor changes, and those handed down, redesigned, or recycled.

Sarah Rexrode of the Country Kids 4-H Club was named champion in her division of the Business and Professional Wear category at the Maryland State 4-H Dress Revue, which was held recently at the Maryland State Fair in Timonium. Tailored from wool-fabric, Rexrode's outfit had previously earned her senior division champion honors at the Garrett County 4-H Fashion Revue, which was held at last month's Garrett County Fair.

Finzel 4-H Club member Allison Malone also represented Garrett County at the State Fair, after having been named the senior division champion in the local contest's Ready to Wear category.

The 4-H Fashion Revue at the GC Fair featured 21 outfits. The participants in the local Fashion Revue, arranged in their respective categories, were:

•Made by Member — Junior: Kerri Skipper, Lindsay Lipscomb, and Bethany Rexrode; Intermediate: Nichole Harvey, Emily Lipscomb, and Rachel Skipper; Senior: Sarah Rexrode.

"Young people who participate in the 4-H Fashion Revue gain skills in sewing, interviewing, and record keeping," pointed out Ann Sherrard, Extension educator for 4-H Youth Development of the Garrett Cooperative Extension.

Agency Slated To Hold Fund-Raiser Pig Roast

The Area Agency on Aging, operating under the direction of the Community Action Committee, will host a pig roast on Saturday, Sept. 27, from noon until 5 p.m., at Pavilion 5 at Broadford Lake Park. Due to significant reductions in state funding, the pig roast will help the agency raise funds to maintain aging services, including home-delivered meals.

The cost of the ticket is $35, which entitles the holder and a guest to all food and beverages and entertainment. The cost per person for food and beverage is $7, and the remainder is a donation. The ticket holder also has an opportunity to win $25 to $200 or other prizes during the drawings to be held throughout the day. Attendees will also have an opportunity to try their luck at dunking a "local notable" as an additional fund-raising activity.

The day's menu includes roast pig, corn on the cob, kraut, parsley potatoes, grilled Italian sausage, roll, home baked pie, beer, and soda.

Tickets may be purchased at Proudfoot's or Gregg's pharmacies, Oakland; Beachy's Pharmacy or Grantsville Station in Grantsville; Deep Creek Pharmacy, McHenry; Kathy's Furniture at Deep Creek Lake; AAA office at 104 E. Center St., Oakland; or the Grantsville and Mary Browning senior centers.

Mothers' Support, Education Group Set In Loch Lynn

A new Mothers of Preschoolers (MOPS) group, part of an international support and education organization, will hold an introductory meeting from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. on Tuesday, Sept. 16, at the Loch Lynn Church of God. Membership in the interdenominational, biblically rooted organization is free and open to all mothers with children up to the age of 5.

Child care will be provided at the introductory session and each to follow in the MOPS program, which meets at the church the first and third Thursdays of every month.

"MOPS recognizes that the years from infancy to kindergarten are foundational in a mother-child relationship and are filled with unique needs," said local program coordinator Tina Skiles. "MOPS helps moms through relationships established in the context of local groups that provide a caring atmosphere for today's mother of young children.

"While each MOPS is different, the program is built on several foundational principles of community, mentoring, practical instruction, and leadership development," she said. The program will feature instruction relating to womanhood, marriage, children, and the home, all stemming from a biblical perspective; small group discussions; and such activities as craft making.

"This year's MOPS theme is 'Get growing, rooted for life'," stated Skiles, adding that the theme will incorporate the "nine basic needs of a mom."

The new group will be one of more than 2,700 MOPS groups that meet across the United States and in 19 other countries.

For further information on the new locally based group, persons may call the church office at 301-334-3221. Comprehensive information on the international MOPS program can be obtained from the organization's Web site at www.mops.org.

In many school systems, Reinhard said, positions are filled by provisional teachers – those who may have some form of certification, but not the required one, or who are missing a course or required state test.

Maryland is competing with other states with better pay and importing teachers from West Virginia, Virginia, Delaware, and Pennsylvania.

Montgomery County is using about 100 provisional teachers in its 191 schools and among its roughly 11,000 teachers, said Thelma Monk, director of staffing.

Prince George's County has joined other organizations, such as the state board, to help teachers with alternate routes to certification, said Howard Burnett, the county school system's human resources chief administrator.

"We're recognizing the strength in our pool," said Burnett. "We've managed well in a system this large."

The Prince George's system has 192 schools, about 137,000 students and more than 9,000 teachers.

Smaller school systems like Harford and Garrett counties seem to be making out better than their larger counterparts.

Harford has just two vacant positions among its almost 3,000 teachers, and those are filled by long-term substitutes. Candidates also are available to fill them, said Don Morrison, public information director for that county's schools.

Garrett County is unique, said system finance and personnel director Ervin Fink, because of its completely certified teaching staff in its 15 schools and among its 400 teachers.

"We've been very fortunate," Fink said.

Monk, of Montgomery County, advises those considering applying for teaching positions to avoid self-assessment.

"We're willing to work with our candidates," she said. "This is education we're talking about. This is children we're talking about."

NATIONAL DOG WEEK PROCLAIMED – The Board of Garrett County Commissioners signed a proclamation this week for National Dog Week, which is Sept. 21-27. According to organizers, this is the 75th annual National Dog Week. In conjunction with the celebration, the Garrett County Humane Society will be placing donation boxes at several locations throughout the county. Persons may donate dog food, collars, leashes, toys, treats, and other items for shelter animals. Cat items may be donated as well. Persons who wish to make a cash donation to the humane society may call Gayle Miller, vice president, at 301-387-4862. The donation boxes will be placed at the Pineview and Countryside animal hospitals, Arrowhead Market, Foodland Fresh, Browning's Foodland, and Grantsville Foodland. They will be in these locations through Sept. 30. Pictured from left are Lisa Baker (holding Shelby the dog), Commissioner Fred Holliday, Miller, and Commissioners Ernie Gregg and Dave Beard. QUILT MADE FOR READING PROGRAM BENEFIT – The quilt shown above was recently finished by Minnie Bittinger, pictured left, to be used as the prize of a raffle to benefit the Grantsville Elementary School reading program. A past cafeteria worker at Grantsville, Bittinger is shown with Linda Buckel, principal of the school, as they arrange the quilt for display at the school. Raffle tickets for the quilt will be $1 each or six for $5, and the drawing will be held Dec. 19.

WINS QUILT RAFFLE – Natalie Marley, pictured, Pykesville, was the winner of the quilt raffle held at the Garrett County Agriculture Fair. ## Maryland, Garrett County Receiving $65.8 Million Reading First Grant

Maryland is slated to receive a six-year $65.8 million Reading First grant from the U.S. Department of Education in order to help schools and school systems, including Garrett County's, improve reading achievement through scientifically proven instructional methods in kindergarten through grade 3.

Eugene Hickok, U.S. under secretary of education, made the announcement Friday to Governor Robert L. Ehrlich and State Superintendent of Schools Nancy S. Grasmick during the annual meeting of the Maryland Business Roundtable for Education, a statewide business coalition of partners in the state's educational reform efforts.

"Maryland's Reading First initiative will establish a focused, coherent approach for K-3 reading instruction across the state," said Dr. Grasmick. "To do so will demand hard work and an unwavering commitment to scientifically based reading research from all of us at the state level, at the local level, from institutions of higher education, and from business and community leaders. Reading First enables us to provide a solid foundation for the higher standards and higher expectations we have for Maryland's children."

"Maryland Reading First is a comprehensive model for ensuring that all our children are reading by the end of third grade and have the requisite skills to move on through school successfully," said Ehrlich. "We outlined a fine plan, and I am proud of the approach that we will be taking in Maryland."

Maryland Reading First will provide funding to nine school systems – Garrett, Allegany, Baltimore, Dorchester, Montgomery, Prince George's, Somerset, and Worcester counties and Baltimore City – through a competitive sub-grant process. The initiative will focus on the link between instruction, assessment, and professional development in kindergarten through third grade.

Maryland Reading First will work with noted national reading research experts, such as Dr. Louisa Moats and others, to ensure that school leaders and practitioners in every K-3 classroom and K-12 special education classroom know how to translate the research into practice.

Maryland Reading First Fast Facts

1. What is the purpose of Maryland Reading First?

To prepare children so that they can be successful readers by the end of third grade with the skills necessary to master the content knowledge taught in future grades. Its basis is in scientifically proven reading research translated into effective instructional practices.

BUSINESS DONATES TO BBBS – Steel City Hobbies, 13812 Garrett Highway, recently made a donation to Big Brothers Big Sisters of Garrett County. The business, which specializes in radio-controlled cars, trucks, planes, and boats, donated proceeds from radio-controlled races that were held during the recent Garrett County Agriculture Fair. The funds will be used to expand the Lunch Buddies Program into Grantsville Elementary School. Persons interested in participating in the program may call Big Brothers Big Sisters at 301-334-3591. Pictured, left to right, are Joan Johnson, local BBBS director; Mike Rooney, owner of Steel City Hobbies; and Jerry Durst, store manager.

2. How much money will Maryland Reading First receive and how will it be allocated?

Maryland Reading First will receive a six-year $65.8 million grant. The Year 1 grant is for about $11 million.

The vast majority of Maryland Reading First funding will go directly to school systems. For instance, in Year 1, $9 million will go directly to school systems and $2.2 million is allocated to the state. The $2.2 million is further broken down so that 65% of the funding will be spent on professional development, 25% on technical assistance, and only 10% on administration.

3. What are the five components of reading that Maryland Reading First is based on?

Maryland Reading First will follow the research that stipulates that five components must be present in every beginning reading program:

•Phonemic awareness (the ability to focus on and manipulate the sounds of spoken words)

•Phonics (learning that letters and groups of letters have sounds and make words; phonics is the key to decoding

•Fluency (reading with speed, accuracy, and expression)

•Vocabulary (knowing the words used in print and the words used to communicate in speaking and writing)

•Comprehension (understanding what is read)

4. How will reading instruction look in Maryland Reading First schools?

All Maryland Reading First schools will:

•Provide at least 90-minute blocks of uninterrupted time for reading instruction in K-3

•Use one core reading program based on scientific reading research for K-3

•Utilize flexible groups so that students can learn basic skills and then move on to more challenging ones

•Utilize a system of frequent screenings, progress monitoring, and diagnostic assessments to help teachers quickly identify students who are not making progress so that they can provide those children with immediate supplementary instruction or intervention

•Possess an in-school reading coach whose time is dedicated to helping teachers implement only those strategies based on research

•Provide extensive professional development in reading for teachers that is focused on translating research into practice

5. How did Maryland Reading First get approved?

A panel of reading experts selected by U.S. Secretary of Education Rod Paige, the National Institute of Literacy, the National Research Council, and the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development approved all state applications for federal Reading First grants. Successful states, such as Maryland, received funds under a formula.

Sauter's run-ins draw drivers' ire

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Richmond, Va.

Johnny Sauter appears to be making a bid to become NASCAR's newest bad boy. The 25-year-old driver from Necedah, Wis., had a run-in with Mark Martin during the Sharpie 500 at Bristol Motor Speedway that left Martin with a wrecked car and harsh words for Sauter.

"That boy's a weapon," Martin said.

In Friday's Funai 250 Busch Series race at Richmond International Raceway, Sauter slammed into Matt Kenseth twice in the final four laps to get his second win in the series.

SAUTER

Kenseth, one of the mildest-mannered Winston Cup drivers, rammed into Sauter after the first encounter, then was uncharacteristically critical after the race. Kenseth had recovered from the first hit, then was knocked out of the lead on the final turn of the race and fell to sixth.

"I passed [Sauter] fair and square, and he just ran into me," Kenseth said. "I don't race that way."

Sauter said Saturday that he's making no apology for his aggressive driving.

"It was just good short-track racing and tempers flare," he said. "We were racing hard and Matt took it kind of personal and tried to wreck me under caution.

"I wasn't going to have any of that, so I knew I was going to have to get back after him. My car wasn't very good on restarts, so I knew I was going to have to make some kind of contact with him to get the win. The bottom line is I was hungry and I needed to win."

Sauter said he's not worried about being labeled a bad boy.

"I really don't care," he said. "Everybody's got their own opinion, and they're going to make an opinion on you either way. One person will say you won't get up on the wheel and drive, and the other will say you're out of control.

"The bottom line is I've got to do what makes me happy and makes my team happy," he said. "We've just got to continue to win races."

Teams won't be racing Toyotas

Two teams that once were poised to be part of Toyota's entry next year into the Craftsman Truck Series appear to be out of the running.

James Finch, a Florida businessman who fields cars in the Winston Cup and Busch Series from a shop in Spartanburg, S.C., was in the running for two Toyota truck teams, but he now says that won't happen.

"I've been talking to [Toyota], but as of the first of the week, we weren't able to make a deal with them, so I'm out of the deal now," Finch said. "They're going to contract with three teams and we weren't able to work it out for mine to be in there."

The IWX team, which fields the Chevrolet driven by Travis Kvapil, also was in the running but Kvapil said his team is no longer a candidate.

Newman wins No. 6

Winner dodges as field tangles at Richmond

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Richmond, Va.

Ryan Newman stretched a tank of fuel for 131 laps to win the Chevrolet Rock & Roll 400 at Richmond International Raceway, his sixth triumph of the season.

NEWMAN

But most eyes were on the Knock and Roll 400, which was taking place in Newman's rearview mirror as four of the top five runners traded blows in the final laps of the Winston Cup race.

The first major contact came on Lap 381 when fourth-running Robby Gordon spun in Turn 4 after contact with Jeff Burton.

Gordon radioed to his crew that he would get revenge.

"I will wreck him in the next couple of weeks," Gordon said.

Then Ricky Rudd and Kevin Harvick collided entering Turn 1 with four laps to go. Harvick spun into the wall, while Jeremy Mayfield seized the opportunity and claimed the runner-up spot.

Rudd finished the race in third, followed by Burton and Rusty Wallace.

As Rudd rolled to a stop, Harvick pulled his wrecked Chevy alongside and jumped on the hood of Rudd's car.

Rudd said Harvick caused the spin and that he gave up a spot to Mayfield while trying to give him room to save his car.

But he was hot at Harvick for damaging his car on pit road after the race.

"It's ridiculous that NASCAR puts up with this," Rudd said. "We planned to run this car next week, and now look at it."

Matt Kenseth, who entered the race with a 389-point lead over runner-up Dale Earnhardt Jr. in the points standings, brought out the third caution flag of the race when he spun on the frontstretch on Lap 84.

He said his car was handling poorly just before he spun into the wall.

"I couldn't hang onto it," he radioed to his crew.

His crew patched up his No. 17 Ford and 50 laps later he was battling for a spot in the top five. He finished seventh.

Two early-race, multi-car crashes on the backstretch ruined the night for several drivers.

A seven-car crash on the backstretch on Lap 94 ruined the night for Bill Elliott, Dave Blaney, Kyle Petty, Steve Park and Johnny Sauter.

Nine green-flag laps later, Greg Biffle bumped John Andretti exiting Turn 2. That contact sent Andretti into the wall and six trailing drivers scrambling to get through the wreckage. Todd Bodine and Christian Fittipaldi were the big losers. Bodine was forced to park his No. 54 Ford and finished 42nd after starting 12th. Fittipaldi was credited with 43rd.

Just after the ensuing restart, Tony Stewart and Jeff Burton collided entering Turn 3 with Stewart skidding into the wall.

"You can thank Jeff Burton for that mess," Stewart told his crew. He spun two more times and finished 27th, three laps off the pace.

Jimmy Spencer kept his No. 7 Dodge among the lead pack for most of the race. He was running in fourth place on Lap 316 when he suddenly keyed his microphone and in a dejected voice told his crew chief Tommy Baldwin: "It blew up, Tommy."

He ran eight more laps before parking for the night.

Tempers flare after race

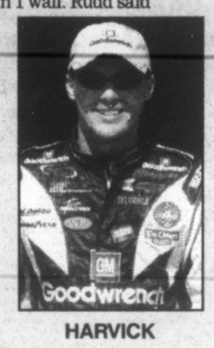
It got kind of crowded in NASCAR's big red truck late Saturday night as officials summoned two entire teams after a pit road altercation broke out following the Chevy Rock & Roll 400.

Ricky Rudd, who finished third behind winner Ryan Newman, ran into the back of Kevin Harvick in the closing laps of the race on the ½-mile oval at Richmond. The contact sent Harvick spinning into the Turn 1 wall. Rudd said Harvick started the crash by slowing on the straightaway, and that he gave up the runner-up spot to Jeremy Mayfield as he slowed in an attempt to let Harvick right his car.



HARVICK

But Harvick was looking for revenge and drove onto pit road and into the side of Rudd's No. 21 Ford.

Harvick, who wound up 16th, threw his HANS device at Rudd, and then members of Harvick's Richard Childress Racing crew — and Harvick — climbed on top of Rudd's car.

NASCAR summoned both teams to the red truck, which serves as its mobile office. NASCAR official Jim Hunter emerged from the truck and vowed to put an end to the "bench-clearing mentality" that took place after the race.

Hunter didn't give specifics, but he indicated that stiff penalties are forthcoming.

"We are not going to condone this type of behavior," he said. "What happens on the race track will stay on the race track and we'll deal with that the best we can.

"It's our responsibility to deal with that."

Hunter also promised that NASCAR will react swiftly and strongly.

"There is a very strong possibility of penalties," he said.

Rudd said his crew stayed away from the fray and doesn't deserve to be penalized.

"We had one guy there," Rudd said. "It wasn't the Wood Brothers against [Richard Childress Racing]."

"They had 30 guys there using our car as a doormat."

Nadeau returns to site of wreck to give thanks

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Richmond, Va.

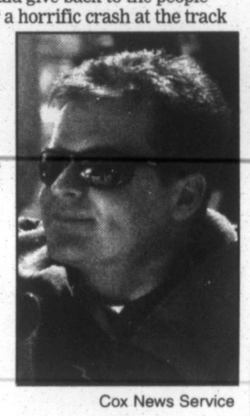
Most race drivers go to the track to get as much as they can in the way of trophies and cash and points. Jerry Nadeau came to Richmond International Raceway this past weekend to see how much he could give back to the people who saved his life after a horrific crash at the track on May 2.



Cox News Service
Jerry Nadeau returned to Richmond International Raceway, vowing to return to NASCAR racing in 2004.

Nadeau, still recovering from a head injury suffered in that crash during practice before the spring race at Richmond, met with doctors and patients at Virginia Commonwealth University Medical Center in Richmond on Friday. And he was at the track on Friday and Saturday to thank the rescue workers who removed him from his car and treated him at the track.

During an emotional visit to the hospital, Nadeau received an ovation from the staff and met with a patient, Tommy Bradshaw, who for three weeks has been in the same brain injury unit where Nadeau was treated.

Seeing the young man, Nadeau asked how he was doing.

"Pretty good," Bradshaw responded.

The doctors were taken aback. Those words were the first Bradshaw had spoken since he came to the hospital.

Upon hearing that, Nadeau's first thoughts were of the man's family.

"I realized what his family was going through because I didn't say anything for three weeks," he said. "It's a long road, and that's what parents have to deal with."

Nadeau also joined in a presentation to the Turn 1 safety team of Jimmy Hughes, Doug Jessup, T.C. Moore and Mark Rowland, who received the AMKUS Golden Star Award before Saturday's Chevy Rock & Roll 400.

The crew used AMKUS tools in removing the unconscious Nadeau from his No. 01 Pontiac after he hit the Turn 1 wall.

Since Nadeau's crash, the speedway has installed steel-and-foam barriers in the turns. Nadeau said he didn't know how much difference the barriers would have made in his crash, but he suspects they would have significantly softened the blow, one of the hardest hits ever measured by NASCAR's black-box data recorders.

"I don't really know because I didn't hit [the barriers]," he said. "I couldn't imagine how much softer it would have been."

After he returns to his home near Charlotte, he'll continue with his speech therapy and with his reintroduction to racing at Greenville-Pickens (S.C) Speedway.

"It takes time to get better, and hopefully I'll be just as good as I was before."

He says he's still planning to return to NASCAR's top series at next year's season-opening Daytona 500.

"I'll be there," he said.

'The Iceman' thaws a little after victory

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Richmond, Va.

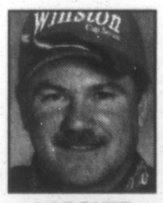
Terry Labonte's win in the Southern 500 two weeks ago after a four-year drought brought 70,000 fans to their feet and tears to the eyes of many veteran NASCAR observers. And it seems the victory even had an effect on Labonte, known as "The Iceman" for his cool demeanor.



LABONTE

"When I got home I couldn't sleep," Labonte said. "I was too excited. I had to get up and be sure that trophy was still there. I did sleep some, but not very good."

He said his victory at age 46 isn't as significant as it seems.

"If you analyzed everything it takes to win a race today, the age of the driver is the least important," he said. "But everybody makes a big deal out of it."

Labonte finished eighth in Saturday's race at Richmond International Raceway and jumped two spots — to ninth — in the points standings.

Lakes of Garrett County

Most people don't realize that there are 15 lakes in Garrett County. For the next several months, The Republican will provide information about each of those lakes in this column.

The author of the articles is Jack Slocomb, a retired industrial forester who resides in the Goodwill Village in Grantsville with his wife Evelyn. Originally from Cape Cod, Slocomb holds a master's degree in forestry from Yale University.

HERRINGTON MANOR

Location: This lake is situated in Herrington Manor State Park, approximately 4½ miles northwest of Oakland and 4 miles southwest of Swallow Falls.

Ownership: The park (365 acres) and lake are owned by the people of Maryland and managed by the Maryland Department of Natural Resources, Forest and Parks. The park is part of the area given to the state of Maryland by the Garrett family (B&O Railroad) to demonstrate the potential of high forest management. The area marks the birthplace of forestry and the DNR in the state of Maryland.

Description: Fifty-three acres of clear mountain water form the lake behind a rock-faced 750-foot earthen dam. The lake runs from the southwest to the northeast and measures approximately 1,000 yards wide and ½ mile long. The shoreline measures about 1½ miles. The average depth is 8 feet, with a depth of 20 feet at the dam. The summer temperature of the water is generally from 70 to 75 degrees F. There is a 300-foot-long white, sandy beach on the northeast side. The lake is fed from a small pond called Koshare (not in the park).

Whereas most of the east side of the lake is cleared, the south and west sides are bordered by a magnificent stand of planted white pines and areas of natural, mature hardwoods. There is a marsh at the southwest end. Overflowing at the flume, Herrington River is formed, feeding the Youghiogheny River two miles downstream.

Type of Project: Strictly recreation.

How to get there: From Oakland, follow Liberty Street and Herrington Manor Road 4½ miles to the park entrance. From U.S. Rt. 219, turn onto Mayhew Inn Road (two miles south of Thayerville) and follow signs to Swallow Falls. From the falls park entrance, continue on Swallow Falls Road west and south to Herrington Manor Park entrance on the right (about 9 miles from U.S. Rt. 219).

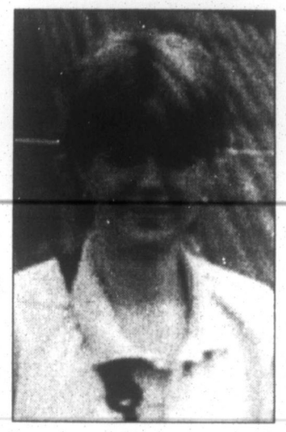
Facilities: The lake and the park offer many facilities: the aforementioned beach; and boat ramp; shaded picnic tables and grills; parking lots; concession building with showers and changing rooms; boats for rent; two tennis courts; a volleyball court; slides for children; ball field; a picnic shelter for up to 100 persons; and 20 furnished and very rustic log cabins. There is no primitive camping.

What to do: Swimming, sunbathing on the beach, boating (battery-powered outboards, rowboats, kayaks, canoes, and paddle boats), hiking (five trails), volleyball, softball, tennis, slides for children, picnicking, nature programs, birding, staying in one of the cabins for a week or more, and good fishing (trout, bass, catfish, sunfish, bluegill, etc.). Also cross-country skiing in the winter.

Fees: Daily entrance, summer season, $2 per carload during the week; $2 per person on weekends and holidays; senior citizens admitted free. Boat ramp use is free; shelter rental is $35 per day; and boat rentals are $5 per hour. Cabin rental fees are: $70 per night, $420 per week for two persons; $80 per night, $480 per week for four persons; and $90 per night, $540 per week for six persons. Only weekly rentals are available from Memorial Day to Labor Day. Cabins are available year-round.

Persons may call 1-888-432-2267 for more information.

Garden Club To Probe "Wonders Of Butterflies"



CAROLINE BLIZZARD

The Mountain Laurel Garden Club inaugurates its 2003-04 luncheon slate with a guest speaker's program titled "The Wonders of Butterflies," slated to begin at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday, Sept 16, in the Ruby Lodge at Alpine Lake, W.Va. The speaker will be Caroline Blizzard, a locally based park naturalist with the Maryland Department of Natural Resources.

The gathering will open with a short business meeting, followed by Blizzard's presentation and a lunch. After lunch, club members and guests will travel to Swallow Falls State Park to identify butterflies in their natural habitat.

Blizzard, who received her bachelor of science degree in parks, recreation, and wildlife from Frostburg State University, has been employed by the DNR for the past 10 years as a park ranger. For the last three years she has been based at Herrington Manor and Swallow Falls tate parks, where she serves as a park naturalist.

Persons interested in attending the meeting and making a reservation for lunch may call Karen Ewing at 301-334-6180, or Norma Hesen at 301-387-4384.

The Mtn. Laurel Garden Club is a member of the Federated Garden Clubs of Maryland and the National Garden Clubs, both of which are involved in environmental issues on the local, state, and national level. The organizations also host Environmental Studies Schools.

Rabbi Ted Simon will be the guest speaker at the Sand Spring Church of God on Sept. 20 and 21 at 6 p.m. each evening.

Rabbi Simon, who became a Christian in 1976, will share Biblical history as it relates to current events. His topics will include Judaism, Islam, and Christianity, and what they have to do with terrorism.

Simon graduated from the Columbia Grammar and Preparatory School in Manhattan, New York, and from Oberlin College, Ohio. After attending the Messiah Biblical Institute, he was granted ordination in 1992. He has served as a teacher, deacon, elder, assistant pastor for three years, and senior pastor at El Shaddai Congregational Church for nine years.

He is a past president of the Frederick Evangelical Minister Fellowship and has served on the board of directors of the Crisis Pregnancy Center and the Tri-State Rescue Mission.

Simon is a co-host of the daily radio program titled Messianic Minutes. He spoke in Washington, D.C., at Promise Keepers in 1997, and has spoken internationally in Poland, Russia, Ukraine, and Mexico.

Oak Park Church Will Air Philip Yancey Program

Philip Yancey, author of Rumors of Another World and several other books, will host a nationwide live satellite broadcast on Sunday, Sept. 14, from 6 until 8 p.m. The Oak Park Church of the Brethren will air the broadcast, which is in conjunction with Church Communication Network (CCN), and the public is invited to attend.

Yancey's program will focus on spirituality in today's society, according to a spokesperson. Yancey said there is a "world of people who are interested in spirituality but not religion, who are seeking God but not in the church." He said while many focus on the differences between a broad spirituality and traditional Christianity, Yancey sees the similarities.

"I celebrate the common ground we share, a belief that there are invisible, spiritual forces at work in the world," Yancey said. "From that common ground, I move on to the differences and, frankly, I think Christianity stands up pretty well in comparison."

Yancey has more than 6 million copies of his books in print, the spokesperson said. Two of his works — The Jesus I Never Knew and What's So Amazing About Grace — were each named Christian Book of the Year.

Oak Park Church of the Brethren is located at 110 Church Lane, Mtn. Lake Park, across from Southern High School. There is no charge for the event. For more information, persons may call 301-334-2243.

Ask The Everyday Scientist

by Dr. Thomas P. Sheahen

Q: What is "the Grid," and how can it cause a blackout?

A: "The Grid" is a national system of interconnections used to transmit electricity all over the country. It is a far more complex system than nearly everyone realizes. When a system is local and isolated, it's simple; but the national electrical system is anything but simple.

An example of a simple isolated electrical system is a flashlight. You switch it on and it gives light. The power flows from a source (the battery) to the load (the filament of the little light bulb). Eventually the battery runs down, and you then have first a brownout and then a blackout. The solution is to put in a fresh battery.

Many people have produced their own small local blackout at home by plugging too many appliances all at once into a kitchen outlet. When too much current is drawn, a circuit breaker opens and the electricity to the entire kitchen is interrupted. The circuit breaker is a safety device – if excess current were to flow through the wires in the walls of your house, it might set the whole house on fire. The circuit breaker prevents that from happening

Now scale up to an entire city: Massive generators are the source, typically at a coal-burning, nuclear, or hydroelectric plant. The load is the collected total of all the electricity to many homes, factories, and office buildings. The electrical utility is the company that sees to it that the sources provide exactly the amount of electricity needed to match the load. Although no one can predict exactly when you or a neighbor will turn on an appliance and increase the load, the utilities have a lot of experience, and can predict with remarkable accuracy just how much electricity will be needed to meet the needs of the entire city. Engineers at the utility have to be pretty nimble in adjusting the various sources to provide exactly the right amount of power all the time.

Each city is constantly at risk that its own power plant/plants might break down. Since it's a good idea to be able to exchange power with other places, many interconnections are made between sources in other cities. We call all these interconnections "the Grid." It has turned a large collection of cities into a single regional operating system.

As a result, engineers throw a few switches and power can be drawn from sources located very far away, and nobody notices. This increases the reliability of the entire system, and if one single big generator shuts off, the rest of the sources take up the slack and keep on providing electricity. The homeowner in Garrett County never realizes (or cares) that for a little while his power came from Tennessee. Normally the Grid runs without a hitch.

Just like your home circuit breakers, big utilities have big circuit breakers in place to protect their equipment from the abnormal condition of too much current.

1. In your home, when a circuit breaker "trips" open, you have to walk down to the basement to close it again and bring the power back on.

2. On the statewide or regional level, when a utility circuit breaker opens, it has to be reclosed. Modern equipment does this automatically. But sometimes the equipment finds that there is still something wrong, so the circuit doesn't reclose right away.

If one transmission line is overloaded and it switches off, the electricity tries to go down a different path of the Grid. But maybe that action overloads the second line, so it too switches off. A few such events in rapid sequence and soon you've got a cascade going on in which consecutive parts of the system each disconnect. When there are no paths from the sources to the loads, no power moves, and the Grid shuts down – Blackout. Moreover, when a generator discovers it has no place to send its power, it too shuts down.

Brief local blackouts of a few seconds are common during electrical storms. The big troubles come when a blackout lasts much longer, and generators actually stop producing electricity. Normally, all those generators that are interconnected through the Grid are providing AC electricity at exactly the same frequency, 60,000 cycles per second (60 Hz). Once a generator is shut down, it has to be restarted very carefully. (You wouldn't dare connect one generator running at 60.0 to another running at 60.5, because you'd burn something up in a few seconds.) The computer-driven controls necessary to blend their operation together and exactly synchronize their electrical outputs are very intricate.

The load must also be brought back slowly, by gradually switching customers' service back on, a few at a time. (Remember, load always has to match the sources.) On August 14, upstate New York was back up before midnight, but in the city of New York on August 15, the "power on" condition marched slowly northward over Manhattan Island, a few blocks at a time, over a series of many hours.

In the months and years ahead, a lot of thought is going to be put into figuring out how to protect the Grid from overloads and cascading shutdowns. The economic cost of a major regional blackout is so high that reliability is well worth paying for.

CBS' 'Joan' has a 'Jet' for a dad

By Taylor Michaels

Amber Tamblyn

Q: Is Amber Tamblyn of the new CBS drama "Joan of Arcadia" related to Russ Tamblyn of "West Side Story"? –Bob Buscavage, Moriches, N.Y.

A: Yes, the 20-year-old actress is the daughter of Russ Tamblyn, who played Riff, the Jets' gang leader in the Oscar-winning "West Side Story."

Previously, Tamblyn created the role of Emily Bowen Quartermaine on the soap "General Hospital" and made guest appearances on "Without a Trace," "CSI: Miami," "The Twilight Zone," "Boston Public" and "Buffy the Vampire Slayer."

Tamblyn's film credits include "The Ring" and "Live Nude Girls," and she keeps fans updated via a Web site: http://www.amtam.com.

Q: What has happened to little Ben on "Friends"? He is scarcely mentioned and it seems that his absence should be explained. –Jeanetta Danford, St. Joseph, Mo.

A: "Friends" is a situation comedy, not a docudrama, and its first priority is to be funny – in fact, to let each of six very highly paid stars have his or her moment to be funny in the space of only 20 minutes or so (allowing for commercials).

A "Friends" publicist assured me that Ben is mentioned whenever it serves the comedy, such as when Chandler told the guys he and Monica were having fertility problems and Joey suggested that Ross should just give them Ben.

You are not alone, Jeanetta, in your opinion that it strikes a false note for Ben to be so rarely seen or mentioned, but to carry that insistence on "reality" to its logical conclusion, remember this: Each week you see only 20 minutes out of the lives of this sextet. Ben presumably shares a healthy and happy relationship with his dad, Ross, and Aunt Monica during the other six days, 23 hours and 40 minutes.

Q: While watching Monica Potter in the movie "Along Came a Spider," I noticed that her expressions, gestures and voice are so much like Julia Roberts. Am I correct? –Vella Mae Jantz, Holyrood, Kan.

A: That Potter bears a striking resemblance to Roberts in many respects? Yes! That the two ladies are related in some way? Not at all.

Q: Is the actor who plays Ephram on "Everwood" one of Mel Gibson's sons in "The Patriot"? –Marcia G. Dunham, Roseville, Calif.

A: Yes, Gregory Smith, 20, played Thomas Martin in "The Patriot." He has been acting since he was 6 and was one of Mary Stuart Masterson's sons in the CBS drama series "Kate Brasher." His other film credits include "Andre," "Harriet the Spy," "Big Bully," "Small Soldiers" and "American Outlaws."
